THE PITRI OF THE FIRE ALTAR

PRAPATHAKA I

The Placing of the Fire in the Fire-pan

- a Yoking¹ mind first,
 Extending his thoughts Savitri,
 Discerning the light,
 Hath brought Agni from the earth.
- b Yoking with mind the gods,
 Going to the heaven, the sky, with thought,
 Those that are to make great light,
 Savitri in sight.
- c With mind and yoked are we
 In the instigation of god Savitri,
 For strength to go to the heaven.
- d They yoke their minds, they yoke their thoughts,
 The priests of the mighty were priest,
 He alone, who knoweth the way, appointeth their functions.
 Great is the praise of the god Savitri.²
- e I yoke with honour your ancient prayer;
 The praises go like horses on their way;
 All the sons of immortality bear (it),
 Who have achieved dwellings divine.³
- f He whom advances others followed,
 Gods, of the god praising might,
 He who meted out the regions of earth,

1 RV. xvi. 1; MS. v. 2. 1; Wh. xi for the Brâhmaṇas see Th. v. 1. 1.
 This gives the Mantra for the
 ; of the spade in the ceremony of ritual kâṣṭha at the Uthramâtri-
 , which takes place at noon or full
 ; at the Khayâka, specifically to according to some authorities; offering a single oblation in eight street within the Vedi; this in four parts, and & is the spade; see Ap. 3, xvi. 1, no

³ Found also in RV. x. 18. 1, wh and yokes, and is given
 xvi. 2. 32, where see Wh.
 Eti. has adhara savitri, in agrees with RV. savitri is a

He is the brilliant god Savitr in greatness.

g O god Savitr, instigate the sacrifice, instigate the lord of the sacrifice [2] to good luck; may the divine Gandharva who purifies thoughts purify our thought; may the lord of speech to-day make sweet our utterance.²

h This sacrifice for us, O god Savitr.

Do thou instigate, serving the gods,

Finding comrades, ever victorious,

Winning booty, winning heaven.

i By the Re make the Stoma to prosper.

By the Gāyatra the Rathantara,

The Br̥hat with the Gāyatri for its metre.³

k On the impulse of the god Savitr, with the arms of the Agyina, with the hands of Pūṣan, with the Gāyatri metre, I take thee, in the manner of Aṅgiras.

l Thou art the spade, thou art the woman⁴ [8], from the abode of the earth I bear Agni of the dust in the manner of Aṅgiras; with the Triṣṭubh metre I grasp thee in the manner of Aṅgiras.

m Thou art the bearer, thou art the woman: through thee may we be strong to dig Agni of the dust in his place; with the Jagati metre I grasp thee in the manner of Aṅgiras.

n Grasping in thy hand, Savitr,

Bearing the spade of gold,

Therewith digging Agni

Do thou bring for us light unperishing.

With the Anusṭubh metre I grasp thee in the manner of Aṅgiras.

. 1. 2. a This⁵ bond of order they grasped

At their assemblies in ages gone by, the sages;

Therewith the gods mastered the prosed (juice)—

In the Saman of order proclaiming the stream.⁶

Found in RV. v. 81. 3 with qasat for arcāṇa.

This quasi-verse is found in i. 7. 7 a.

Also in iii. 1. 10 b.

Also in i. 3. 1 a.

Cf. KS. xvi. 1, 2, 4; MS. iii. 7. 1, 2, 4; VS. xxii. 2; xi. 12-27. For the Brahmana see TS. v. 1. 2, 3. This section gives the Mantras for the mydikranti; with a he takes the halter, and yokes the horse with b; silently he takes the asses' halter and yokes with c; with d-f they go with the horse, leading to where they intend to dig the clay; g is said if an enemy is met; h is said in reverence to the ant-heaps which faces the rising sun; with i they return, but not in haste; with k he goes forward from the ant-heaps; with l and m he drives the horse to the 'clay pit'; with n he rubs the neck of the horse; then he makes it go north from the place where the clay is to be dug with o and p; with q he pours water into the footprint of the horse; he puts gold in the footprint, and with r and s he offers one oblation; with t-u, and v he marks out the clay pit with the spade, each outer being the larger line; see ĀpQd. xvi. 2. 1-3. 1; BVS. x. 3. 3; MC. vi. 1. 1; KGS. xvi. 2. 9-22.

* This verse occurs by the accordant agreement of KSAgyamedha i. 3; MS. iii. 12. 1; VS. xxii. 2 in the Agyamedha, and TS.

The Going to the Clay

- b Swiftly run hither O steed
Along the most extended space
In the sky is thy highest birth,
In the atmosphere thy navel, on the earth thy birthplace.
- c Yoke ye two the ass.
In this course, O ye of mighty wealth,
Which bearoth Agni, serving us.
- d In each need more strong,
In each contest, we invoke,
As friends, Indra to aid us.
- e Hastening [1] come hither, trampling the enemy,
Come with wondrous skill from the leadership of Rudra ;
Fare along the broad atmosphere,
With happy pastures, bestowing security.
- f With Pusan as fellow, from the abode of the earth do thou Agni of the dust in the manner of Aṅgiras.
- g We approach Agni of the dust in the manner of Aṅgiras.
- h We will bear Agni of the dust in the manner of Aṅgiras.
- i We bear Agni of the dust in the manner of Angiras.
- j Agni gazed along the forefront of the dawns.
Along the days first, the all-knower.
And in many ways along the rays of the sun [2].
He hath extended along sky and earth.
- k The steed coming from the way³
Driveth every foe ;
He is fain to gaze with his eye
On Agni in his great abode.
- l Coming to earth, O steed,
Do thou seek Agni with thy radiance :
Turning from earth⁴ tell us
Whence we shall dig him up.
- m Thy back is the sky, thy abode earth,
Thy breath the atmosphere, thy birthplace the ocean ;
Discerning with thine eye,
Do thou overcome [3] the enemy.
- n Arise for great prosperity
From this abode, giving wealth, O steed ;

I a has it there also. MS. has pāṇḍit and MS. VS. have śāṇīṇī and āṇī, which is necessary to make the Pada easy grammar: as it is difficult to be taken as an instr., a form such a parallel can hardly be found (doneil, Ved. Gramm. p. 274). No it is simply in origin a case of indifference on the part of the sūtra which adopted the form of verse

¹ VS. has yānapātīṣṭha and KS. gāṇapātīṣṭha

² All the other Sāhitas agree in this

³ All agree in the words bhūṣṇyāt or āṇī. It can hardly mean pythīṇī which is cited: the Pada takes the former and it makes excellent sense so

May we enjoy the loving favour of earth,

That are about to dig fire in her lap.

p The strong steed hath stepped forward, giving wealth;

He hath made the place of earth well wrought;

Thence let us dig Agni of fair aspect.

Mounting the heaven on the top of the vault.

q The water divine do thou pour, full of sweeteness

To avert diseases for men,

From their place let arise

Plants with fair leaves.

r I touch [4] Agni with mind, with ghee,

Who lordeth it over all the worlds.

Broad, vast, with pervading vital power,

Most extensive, impetuous, winning food.¹

s I touch thee with speech, with ghee,

With friendly mind accept it;

With mortal glory, with engaging colour,

Agni, with body full of life may not be touched.²

t Round the offerings hath Agni gone.

The sage, the lord of strength,

Bestowing jewels on the donor.

u May we set thee around us, O Agni,

The sage, O strong one, as a fort,

Of daring due, day by day,

Destroyer of that which may be broken.³

v Thou, O Agni, with days, fain to shine towards us,

Thou from the waters, thou from the rock,

Thou from the woods, thou from the plants,

Thou, O lord of men, art born pure.

. 3. a On⁴ the impulse of the god Savitṛ, with the arms of the Agniṇa, with the hands of Pūṣan, in the abode of earth,⁵ I dig Agni of the dust in the manner of Augicus.

b Full of light, thou, O Agni: of fair aspect,

. n. 16. 4 has hūm-pi, annath, and digvisham. It is not certain if digvisham may not belong to annam but it is most improbable.

. n. 10. 5 has aśvādah pratyākṣam, yasata, and jātihvāṇah; KS. has yujpathah, but otherwise agrees with TS.; MS. agrees in a with RV., for the rest with TS.

so in 1. 5. 6 p in full.

KS. xvi. 3; MS. ii. 7. 2, 8; VS. xi. 28-37. For the Brāhmaṇa see TS. v. 1. 4. This section deals with the digging up of the clay for the fire; with a and b he digs up the lump of clay; with c he takes a lotus leaf to serve as a receptacle for the clay, with d and e he spreads a black goat's-pe's skin north of the place of the digging, hair up, neck east, and puts on it the lotus leaf; with f he addresses the place of digging; then with g for a Brāhmaṇa, i to a for a Kāshya, he collects the clay and puts it on the skin and the lotus leaf; see ApGS. xvi. 3, 2-4; BG. x. 2, 4; MG. vi. 1. 1; XGS. xvi. 2, 28-37.

* KS. and VS. have the more simple sa-dhareshāḥ.

Shining with unaging radiance,
Auspicious and harmless to offspring
In the abode of earth, I dig Agni of the dust in the manner of A Thou art the back of the waters, expansive, wide,
About to bear Agni, least to be laid aside;
Growing to might as the lotus-flower,
Do thou extend in width with the measure of heaven.¹
Ye two are protectors [1] and a help,
Unbroken, both expansive;
Do ye expanding be united;²
Bear Agni of the dust.
Be ye united,³ that win the heaven,
In union of heart and self;
Who shall bear within Agni
Full of light and unaging.
Thou art of the dust, all-supporting; Atharvan first pressed on Agni.
Thee, O Agni, from the lotus Atharvan pressed out,
From the head of every priest.⁴
Thee the sage, Dadhyān,
Son [2] of Atharvan, doth kindle, Slayer of Vṛtra, destroyer of foes.
Thee Pāthya Vṛṣan doth kindle,
Beat slayer of foes,
Winner of booty in every conflict.
Sit thou, O Hotṛ, in thine own world, wise,
Place thou the sacrifice in the birthplace of good deeds.
Eager for the gods, do thou sacrifice to them with oblation;
O Agni, bestow great strength on the sacrificer.
The Hotṛ hath sat him down in the place of the Hotṛ, wise, Glittering, shining, skilful,
With vows and foresight undeceived, most wealthy,
Bearing a thousand, pure-tongued Agni Sit thou down, thou art great,
Burn [3] best servant of the gods;
O Agni, pure one, send forth the ruddy smoke.
O famous one, that can be seen afar.

VS have the simple nirdhūmīna īca pīgīśa, but MS. has mātī like ugh otherwise it agrees; the other s have in a gīśīr agnōh svādīnam parādīnam. The version of TS. difficult to construe and is clearly inferior; at iv. 2. 8 c the same as that of the other texts is read

² g-i are found in iii. 5. 11 7-v. and as / and g there; g occurs also full at iv. 4. 4 b.

- a Be born noble in the forefront of the days
 Kind to the kindred in the woods
 Bestowing seven jewels in every home Hath Agni sat him down as Hotr.
- . 1. 4. a May Vāyu, Matariqvan, unite
 The broken heart of thee that art outstretched :
 To him who moveth with the expiration of the gins
 With thee, O goddess, be Vasat.¹
- b Wellborn with light,
 Guard and protector, thou hast sat on the heaven :
 O Agni, thy garment of many hues,
 Put on, O thou that dost abound in light.
- c Arise, thou of fair sacrifice,
 Aid us with thy divine radiance ;
 Brilliant to behold, with mighty blaze,
 Do thou come hither, O Agni, in response to our prayers [1].²
- d Arise erect to aid us,
 Like Savitr, the god ;
 Erect to win the booty,
 When in contest we call on thee with the shining prisms.³
- e Born, thou art the child of the two worlds,
 O Agni ; a brilliant child distributed among the plants :
 A beauteous babe beyond the darkness outspread,
 Thou didst come thundering from thy mother.⁴

¹ KS. xvi. 4 ; MS. II. 7. 4, 5 ; VS. xi. 39-43. For the Brāhmaṇas see TS. v. 1. 5. This section deals with the taking of the wet dust or clay (med) for the dhūlītār, with a the Adhvaryu pours water on the clay pit ; with b he ties the ends of the black antelope skin, and with c and d drives up with the clay in his hand ; with e he takes it, and with f ties it on the back of the asvā ; with g he addresses it on the asvā's back ; with h-i the priests and the sacrifice advance with the horses in front ; with l and m the clay is deposited on the plants, to the north of the tiktim, or place of the fires, and on a covered spot ; see ApGS. xvi. 3. 7-14 ; in BGSA. x. 4 the ritual is the same, save that k-t are pronounced over the clay and g is used in reverence to it ; the last words of k are used as the priests gaze on it ; i and m accompany the depositing of the clay on the Kharas ; cf. MGSA. vi. 1. 1 ; KGSA. xvi. 3. 8-14.

² KS., MS., and VS. agree in reading sa śāstra, which is probably less primitive. In the second half line RS. has tarṣi śāstra simply ; MS. and VS. have tarṣi śāstra śāstra.

³ KS. and MS. omit śāstra, and with VS. have śāstra.

⁶ This is RV. i. 1. 2, but with śāstra for śāstra.

- f Be firm of strong limbs,
 Swift a mighty steed
 Be broad, of kindly seat,
 Thou art the carrier of dust for Agni.¹
 g Be auspicious [2], for offspring
 Of men, O Angims ;
 Scorch not sky and earth,
 Nor the atmosphere, nor the trees.
 h Let the steed advance, thundering
 And resounding, the as. the flier ;
 Bearing Agni of the dust
 May he fall not before his day.
 i The as., well yoked to your chariot,
 O ye strong ones, that thundereth,
 May he as swift envoy Bear hence Agni of the dust.²
 k The strong, bearing the strong Agni, Germ of the waters, him of the ocean,
 O Agni, come hither, for enjoyment [3].
 As holy order and truth.³
 l O plants, do ye accept⁴ Agni here Who comest auspicious towards you ;
 Casting aside all hostilities,⁵ all evil imaginings, Sitting down, may he smite away from us misfortune.
 m O plants, do ye rejoice⁶ in him.
 O ye that are rich in flowers, and have fair berries,
 This germ of yours, of due season,
 Hath sat him in his ancient seat.

v. 1. 5. a Radiant⁷ with extending blaze, which is read also in VS. and perhaps should be inserted in KS. and MS. where the MSS. are varied in reading.

 From here to the end the texts differ merely in small points.

KS. has prati, MS. krish, VS. pacit.
 Not in the other Sūtras.

The last two words are clearly in effect a new Mantra and are so taken in KS. and MS. and by the Sūtras except Āy. VS. transposes prati grhita and prati madhukam and omits in m even.

Second omitta is read in KS., MS., and VS.

Cf. KS. xvi. 4, 5; MS. ii. 7, 5, 6; VS. xi.

49-52. For the Brāhmaṇa see TS. v. 1. 6. This section gives the Mantras for the fashioning of the Ukhā, or fire-pan, with a the Adhvaryu uncoosens the skin ; with b-c he pours water on the clay, and with c and f mixes the clay with various things (armakupala, vr̥grahāra, vr̥kshaspa, pulāyakapīḍana, parkard, hairs of the black antelope skin, and hairs of the goat) ; with g he collects the clay into one, and with h-k hands it over to the panmaker, with i a ball is made, and with k the skin and lotus leaf are touched or pressed on the clay with the thumbs ; n is said by the sacrificer as the pan is made by the chief wife, if the sacrificer is a polygamist, by the Adhvaryu if not ; with o a girdle is put on, with p a hole made, and

KS xviii. 16; KapS. xxix. 4; MS. ii. 12.5; VS. xxvii. 1-10. For the Brahmans see TS. v. 1. 8. 5, 6. This section gives an additional set of ten Samidheni verses to accompany an offering of five animals (aya, apta, ṛṣabha, ruru, bava); see ApG.

his is found in AV. vii. 81. 2. and the Pipp. agree with the XV. Sāthilas in reading it with n. 6. AV. has pīravīd and kātīśa, both inferior readings; MS. has pārīcīta; KS., KapS., and VS. agree with TS. The reference is of course to people who anticipate the worshipper in seeking the favour of the god.

his is AV. ii. 6. 4. AV., KS., and MS. read mīra for māyā; AV. has no mī, KS. and MS. have mādhyamāyīya; AV. has mātrādhā and māyāya.

his is AV. ii. 6. 5, which has dātī aś-māyā; KS. and MS. have mīyāya for mātīm and end with aśmā. AV., KS., and MS. have mīa tūm, and TS. alone has mātītūm. mātī must be read for AV.

mātī and mīyā of the XV. Sāthilas.

* This is AV. vii. 84. 1. AV. has īmātīyā for īmītā, mīvīk for dātā and gāyem for tyāha; KS. has dātīvīk with mādhyamā-yīya, MS. nī and mādhyamāyīya; VS. agrees with TS. except in having with Kd. and MS. pīravīd.

• This is AV. vii. 16. 1, which, however, inverts b and c and reads in a somtar (making a second deity against the sing. of the verb), vārdhaya and in our b jyotiyaya; with MS it has somtarīm for som-tarīm; MS. ends vītā caśum.

* This is AV. vii. 53. 1, which has dātī and mātī; MS. has mātītūm. It is found also in Tā. x. 48.

* This is RV. i. 60. 10 without variant.

Sarya a god among the gods,
Have come to the highest light.

Anointeth the ways with mead and ghee.³
c With mead thou attainest the sacrifice, Delighting, as Narayana, O Agni,
The kindly god Savitṛ, with every boon.⁴
d Hither he cometh, with might, with ghee,
The priest implored with adoration;
To Agni the ladies (move) when the rites proceed.⁵
e Worship let him pay to the greatness of him, of Agni;
He [1] indeed is pre-eminent among the delightful,⁶
The wealthy, the wisest, best bestower of wealth.
f The divine door—all—preserve
The rules of him, of Agni,
Of wide expanse, lording it with dominion.⁷
g May day and night
Like heavenly maidens in his birthplace
Protect this our sacrifice and offering.⁸

f KS. xviii. 17, KapS. xxix. 5; MS. ii. 12. 6; VS. xxvii. 11-22 for a-m, and for n-i KS. xi. 1; MS. ii. 13. 28; the verses are found scattered in VS. xiii. 4; xxii. 1, 3; xxv. 10-18; xxvii. 26, 36; xxxii. 8, 6, 7. This section contains the Āpri verses (a-m) for the fore-sacrifice of animals (ĀpCS. xvi. 7, 8, 10) and the verse for the Aghār with the spoon for an offering to Vāyu (n), and six Yajyas and Puronuvākyas for the offering to Prajapati of a hornless victim (o and p for the offering of the omentum, q and r for the cake offering, s and t (with u as a variant) for the oblation (havis)); see ĀpCS. xvi. 7, 8, 11; BCS. x. 11.

his hymn (a-m) occurs in a mutilated form in AV. v. 27, the variants of which are discussed elaborately by Whitney and need not here be repeated.
S. and MS. take in a. of the next verse; MS. has dāvī dāvīkya dāvīgnām; in b MS. and VS. have anuttu. KS. anuttu with pātka.

* KS. and MS. add a. of the next verse to make up for the first Pāda here which is added to the preceding verse; both read anuttu; MS. has agnih for agni.

² KS. makes this verse out of b and c, reading śatā mantras saṃgrahāḥ; MS. has with VR. 44 in śatā mantras saṃgrahāḥ (suppressed in VS.) and then adds śatā mantras saṃgrahāḥ before our o. The sense of the passage is merely conjectural, the text being clearly hopelessly corrupt.

³ KS. and MS. read vīṣa, which improves the sense. If vīṣa is kept devīṣa can be understood.

⁴ This verse is alike in all, but is not in AV., where it occurs in a different form at v. 12, 8.

The Animal Offering to Prayapati

To our uplifted sacrifice to Agni's tongue,
Make for us good offering.

* May the three goddesses sit on this strew.

Ida, Saravati [2], Bharati, the great, being sung.*

* That seminal fluid of ours, wondrous.

Abundant, may Tvaṣṭṛ release

As increase of wealth with good heroes, as offspring to us.

? O tree, let free,

Bestowing with thyself among the gods ;

Let Agni as queller make ready the oblation.

? O Agni, utter 'Hail !' O all-knower, over the oblation !

May all the gods rejoice in this offering.

* The golden germ first arose ;

Born he was the only lord of creation ;

He supporteth the earth and the sky [3] ;

To what god shall we offer with oblation ?

? He that alone by his might is king

Of the breathing, the winking world.

Who is lord of these bipeds and quadrupeds ;

To what god shall we offer with oblation ?

? He who is giver of breath, giver of strength,

Upon whose bidding all, even the gods, wait,

Whose shadow is immortality and death ;

To what god shall we offer with oblation ?*

? He whose are these snowy mountains through his might

Whose they call the ocean with the Rāsh [4],

Whose two arms are these quarters ;

To what god shall we offer with oblation ?

? To whom the armies stablished

Through his aid gazed with minds disturbed.

Over whom on the rising of the sun it goeth ;

To what god shall we offer with oblation ?

? He by whom the dread earth and the sky were made firm

² Thus occurs about I. 3. 2 & KS. has yo, with rota twice and yogya with yo dhvani ; MS. on the other hand has yo and yo and yo respectively with yogya.

³ MS. reads yo dhvani for yo dhvani, and RS. with VS. omits it entirely, presumably because yo dhvani occurs just below ; so is added there in the other texts. For the dual see v. 2. 3. 2 (p. 413, n. 1).

KS. has upigata.

MS. has upigata, KS. upigata, VS. upigata, and it changes the position of aranya and tasyata. The verses k-m recur at iv. 2. 1 k-m.

KS. and MS. have utkhyatā, and if the text is correct the gen. is really one of equivalence, which is denied for Sanskrit by Whitney, Sanskrit Grammar, § 293, and Speijer, Sanskrit Grammar, § 116. VS. has utkhyatā, and in the next half-verse MS. reads tasyata for the tasyata of the other texts. Cf. below utkhyatā utkhyatā, iv. 2. 3 a.

utkhyatā occurs in MS.

Cf. KS. xvi. 7. 8; MS. ii. 7. 7, 8; VS. xi. 78-xii. 4. For the Brahmanas see TS. v. 1. 10. This section gives the Mantras for the Adhvaryu with a-s the Adhvaryu

 To what god shall we offer with oblation?¹
b Turn towards (us), O earth.
 With the sacrifice, with milk;
 Over thy caul let Agni, aroused, creep.²
c O Agni, that of thee which is pure, which is bright,
 Which is cleansed, which is fit for offering.
 That we bear to the gods.³
d Food and strength do I take hence [1].
 From the abode of holy order, from the birthplace of immortality
 May it enter us, in cattle and in plants;
 I abandon decline, lack of food, and ill-health.⁴
e O Agni, strength and fame are thine, Thy rays shine mightily, O rich in light;
 O thou of broad radiance, with thy might, strength worthy of laud,
 Thou bestowest on the worshipper, O sage.⁵
f Do thou extend over men, O Agni, Ruling over wealth for us, O immortal one;
 Thou art the master of a glorious form.
 Thou fillest glorious wealth.⁶
g O son of strength, O all-knower, Rejoice in our fair praises [2], being adored in our prayers;
 In thee have they placed food, rich in seed,
 Of wondrous aid, of prosperous birth.⁷
h With pure radiance, with bright radiance,
 With undiminished radiance, thou comest forth with thy light;
 Visiting thy parents thou aidest them;
 Thou fillest both worlds.⁸
i The righteous, the bull, common to all men, his agrees exactly with RV. x. 121. 9; VS. has ma, and for yajñin in b. yajñat and prathamay for bhavati, KS. and MS. agree in the two latter readings, but omit as.

S., MS., and VS. have arhat.

S. omits te, and KS., MS., and VS. have ya as yajñigra.

2. has ddv yajñye manih mahipasyit dhárum and in c. tançu; MS. has ad yajñuya and then as in KS. in b. VS. has ddam yajña and as in KS. and MS. In a. it has me for mo and d tançu.

I agree in this verse, which is RV. x. 40. 1

* All agree also in this verse, save that RV. x. 140. 4 and VS. have kraham at the end.

* RV. x. 140. 3 has Udirvarpasah, in which KS., MS., and VS. agree; KS. has vípa for isa. The construction is not easy, but probably the nominal forms are all really acc. In MS. v. Schröder prints ta ésh.

* RV. x. 140. 2 has mátrid; MS. and VS. agree; RV., KS., and VS. put ésh at the end of d. MS. agrees with TS. but has yajñat.

must be correct, despite the agreement of the MSS. here in prāṇa and the version of Skṛtapa as anugrāha. Weber Ind. Stud. xiii. 68, compares the blunder made here in iv. 3. 18 a. Cf. p. lxxviii.
āśat is of uncertain sense; Skṛtapa renders 'of distinguished might'. Olden-berg (Ygueda-Notes, i. 86) prefers 'ye pro-met' for pāṭh, and takes āśat as 'from sky'; Caland and Henry (L'Agogone, 212) render 'ye come to drink from the sky'.

 TS. v. 2. 10. 1. 3. The Mantras accompany the depositing of four sets of five bricks for the first layer, the first five being set down in the east of the man's figure in a line running from the east to the west, the second in the south in a line northwards, the third west in a line eastwards, correct, but the sense 'home', given by Oldenberg (ZDMG. II. 507) seems here

preferable; cf. Macdonell, Ved. Gramm.

 Mantras for the putting down of five sets of ten bricks each, the Prāpāthiks; the first four sets are put down to the east, south, west, and north of the centre self-perforated brick (see iv. 2. 9), and the last set is apparently put around it; see e This one above, thought; his, thought's, speech; the winter born of speech; the Pañkti born of winter; from the Pañkti that which has finales; from that which has finales the Āgrayāya (supti). From the Āgrayāya the twenty-sevenfold and the thirty-threefold (Stomas); from the twenty-sevenfold and the thirty-threefold the Cakravara and Raivata, from the Cakravara and Raivata Viśvakarman, the Ḫai; with thee taken by Prajapati, I take speech for offspring.

f. a The³ east of the quarters; the spring of the seasons; Agni the daily, holy power the wealth; the Trivṛti the Stoma, and it forming the path of the fifteenfold (Stoma); the eighteen month-old bull the strength; the Kṛta of throws of dice; the east wind the wind · Hanu · the Ḫai.

¹ Sāman, 'like a Ḫe', is conjectured by Eggeling SBE. xlvi. 8, n. 2, to be a simpler form of the Vaidrōga Sāman. Bloomfield (VOJ. xvii. 156-164) thinks that r̄kṣama is for r̄kṣama as in r̄kṣama, and he compares SV. i. 369. Contra. Bühler, BMSGW. Apr. 1901, p. 7.

² The Svāra Sāman, one minus a finale, in which the Svārita does the part of a finale, see Eggeling, SBR. xlvi. 8, n. 2. MS. II. 1. 20. Neither KS. (but cf. xxix. 7), KapS., nor VS. has any parallel.

This section gives the Mantras for the five sets of the Apaṇabhr̄ita (Kāryāya in TS. v. 2, 10, 6), banks which are deposited, E. S. W. K. and recited the midday, as in the case of the Prāṇabhr̄ita (iv. 3, 5); see ApGS. xvi. 22, 3, and cf. ApGS. x. 25, which defines the position of the Apaṇabhr̄ita in detail as south, west, north, and before the Prāṇabhr̄ita in lines E. S. W. K., and the fifth set outside the fifth row; both Stobas agree in making 5 an addition to each Mantra e.g.

b The south of the quarters, the summer of the seasons, Indra the deity; the kingly power the wealth; the fifteenfold the Stoma, and it forming the path of the seventeenfold (Stoma); the two-year-old the strength: the Tretā of throws, the south wind the wind; Saumana the Rsi.

c The west of the quarters; the rains of the seasons; the All-gods the deity; the peasants [1] the wealth; the seventeenfold the Stoma, and it forming the path of the twenty-onefold (Stoma); the three-year-old the strength; the Dvapara of throws; the west wind the wind; Ababana the Rsi.

d The north of the quarters; the autumn of the seasons; Mitra and Varuna the deity; prosperity the wealth; the twenty-onefold the Stoma; and it forming a path of the twenty-sevenfold (Stoma); the four-year-old the strength; the Askranda of throws: the north wind the wind; Pratnī the Rsi.

e The zenith of the quarters; the winter and the cool season of the seasons; Bṛhaspati the deity; radiance the wealth; the twenty-sevenfold the Stoma, and it forming a path of the thirty-threefold: the draught ox¹ the strength; the Abhibhu of throws; the wind all through the wind, Suparna the Rsi.

the four quarters E. S. W. N., the order is 1, 3, 7, 2 = E. S. W. N.; 4, 6, 8, 5

iv. 3. 10. They² praised with one, creatures were established, Prajāpati was overlord. They praised with three, the holy power¹ was created, the lord of holy power was overlord. They praised with fire, beings were created, the lord of beings was the overlord. They praised with seven, the seven seers were created, Dhātr was the overlord. They praised with nine, the fathers were created, Aditi was the overlady. They praised with eleven, the seasons were created, the seasonal one was the overlord. They praised with thirteen, the months were created, the year was the overlord [1]. They praised with fifteen, the lordly class was created, Indra was the overlord. They praised with seventeen, cattle were created, Bṛhaspati was the overlord. They praised with nineteen, the Cūdra and the Ārya⁴ were created, day and night were the overlords. They praised with twenty-one, the whole-hooved cattle were created, Varuna was the overlord. They praised with twenty-three, small cattle were created, Pūṣṇ was the overlord. They praised with twenty-five, wild cattle were created, Vāyu was the overlord. They praised with twenty-seven, sky and earth [2] went apart, the Vasus, Rudras, and Ādityas followed their example, theirs was the overlordship. They praised with twenty-nine, trees were created, Soma was the overlord. They praised with thirty-one, creatures were created, the Yāvas and the Ayāvas⁵ had the overlordship. They praised with thirty-three, creatures came to rest, Prajāpati was the overlord and chief.

¹ KS., MS., and VS. agree in Ayava and Yava, and the two halves of the month, the dark and the light half are said to be meant by Mañihara, but according to TS. v. 3. 4 the months are the Yāvas, the half-months the Ayāvas. Cf. Vedic Index, ii. 162, 187; below, iv. 3. 10, n. 5.

² Cf. KS. xvii. 5; KapS. xxvi. 4; MS. ii. 8. 6; VS. xiv. 28-31. For the Brahmana see TH. v. 3. 4. 7. This section gives the Mantras for the seventeen bricks called Sṛṣṭi, which follow on the two Sañkyāni (iv. 4. 6 ff.) and the two Itavāya (iv. 4. 11 ff.); see ApṭS. xviii. 2. 11; MCS. vi. 2. 1; BG. x. 48; Kṛṣṇ. xvii. 10, 17.

³ With the double sense of the power and the class or caste.

⁴ Explained as Cūdra plus Ārya in the Pāda-pātha, and glossed by the comm. as cūdrak and ṛṇyāk respectively. But this explanation is not necessarily correct and Cūdra and Ārya may well be meant, the use of brahma and kṣatram above is no proof that the four castes must be seen, cf. Vedic Index, i. 37.

each deposited diagonally in the several quarters with the Mantras in f, see ĀpCS. xvii. 3. 1-4; BCN. s. 44; MvB. vi. 2. 2; KCS. xvii. 1. 5.

KS, MS, and VS agree in vidhi, whereof course favourable is understood; probably with vidhi vidharshak in intent.

All agree: spina is not so much pregnant as merely used to recall parvata above.

MS. and VS. have sapta; the dvaya is in one case dvaya and in one dvap.

The other texts have a full line; spada is derived by the schol. from a and pa, 'injuries'.

- Eager for wealth, joyfully Kindled pure as offered.
- b Thou Soma art very lord,
Thou art king, and slayer of foes ;
Thou art favouring strength.
- c Favouring is thy look, O fair-faced Agni,
That art dread and extending, pleasant (is it) ;
Thy radiance they cover not with the darkness ;
The defiling leave no stain in thy body.
- d Favouring is thy face, O mighty Agni ;
Even by the side of the sun it is bright [1],
Radiant to behold it is seen even by night,
Pleasant to the sight is food in thy form.¹
- e With his countenance the kindly one Will sacrifice to the gods for us, most skilled to win prosp erity ;
Guardian undeviated and protector of us,
O Agni, shine forth with radiance and with wealth.²
- f Prosperity for us from sky, O Agni, from earth,
With full life do thou procure, O god, for worship ;
That splendid thing, O sky-born, which we ask,
Do thou bestow upon us that radiant wealth.³
- g As thou, O Hotr, in man's worship [2],
O son of strength, shall sacrifice with offerings,
Verily do thou to-day, gladly, offer sacrifice
To the glad gods together assembled.
- h I praise Agni, domestic priest,
God of the sacrifice and priest,
The Hotr, best bestower of jewels.
- i Thou art strong, O Soma, and bright,
Thou art strong, O god, and strong thy rule, Strong laws dost thou establish.⁴

the name here gives no real help.

¹ savit may be adverbial, but it is take it here as an acc. after dyati.

The Metre Bricks

Atharvan pressed out
 From the head of every priest.¹
 This Agni is lord of a thousandfold,
 A hundredfold strength;
 The sage, the head of wealth.²
 Leader of the sacrifice and the region art thou,
 Where with steeds auspicious thou dost resort;
 Thou placest in the sky thy head winning light,
 Thou makest, O Agni, thy tongue to bear the oblation.³
 Agni hath been awakened by the kindling-stick of men
 To meet the dawn that cometh on like a cow [1];
 Like young ones rising up to a branch,
 The rays rise towards the vault.⁴
 We have uttered to the sage, the worshipful,
 Our voice of praise, to the strong bull;
 Gavishtha with his homage hath raised to Agni this laud,
 Wide extending like brilliance in the sky.⁵
 He hath been born as guardian of men, wakeful, Agni, skilful, for fresh prosperity;
 Ghee-faced, with mighty sky-reaching (blaze)
 He shineth gloriously, pure for the Bharatas.⁶
 Thee, O Agni [2], the Aṅgirases found
 When hidden in secret, resting in every wood;
 Thou when rubbed art born as mighty strength;
 Son of strength they call thee, O Aṅgiras.⁷
 Banner of the sacrifice, first domestic priest,
 Agni men kindle in the three stations;
 With Indra and the gods conjoined on the strew
 Let him sit, as Hotr, well skilled for sacrificing.⁸
 Thee of most resplendent fame
 Men invoke in their dwellings,
 With flaming hair, O dear to many,
 O Agni, to bear the oblation.⁹
 O friends, together (offer) fit [3]
 Food and praise to Agni,

The Fifth Layer of Books

Highest over the folk,
 The son of strength, the mighty,
 Thou gatherest, O strong one,
 O Agni, all that belongeth to the rugged Thou art kindled in the place of offering.
 Do thou bear us good things.
 With this homage Agni,
 Son of strength, I invoke,
 Dear, most effectual intercessor, the good sacrificer
 The envoy of all, immortal.¹
 He, the ruddy, shall yoke (his steeds) all cherishing,
 He shall hasten when well adored,
 The sacrifice bath good prayer and strong effort;²
 Of the Veins, the divine gift of men.³
 The radiance of the bounteous offerer Hath mounted on high,
 The ruddy smoke (riseth) touching the sky.
 Men in unison kindle Agni.⁴
 O Agni, lording it over strength rich in grace, Youthful son of strength,
 Bestow upon us, O all-knower, great favour.⁵
 Being kindled, bright, sage,
 Agni, to be praised with song,
 Do thou shine with wealth for us, O thou of many forms.⁶
 O Agni, lord of the night,
 And of the morning, and of the dawn,
 Do thou burn against the Rakshas with sharp jaws,⁷
 May we kindle thee, O Agni, Radiant, O god, and unaging:
 When this most desirable
 Kindling-stick maketh radiance for thee in the sky,
 Do thou bear food to thy prisoners.⁸

 O lord of brilliant light,
 Bright abiding, wonderworker, lord of the people,

¹ KS. xl. 4, 5, which contains much the same matter in different form and with other additions. For the Brahmana see TS. v. 8. 9 1. This section contains the Mantras for eight Sayuj bricks (a), then for seven Kṛtikā bricks (b), and then for three circular bricks (c-e); see ApGī. xvi. 6, 2, 4, and for the three Mandaleṣṭakas which are put on in the first, second, and third layers. xvi. 28. 9; xvi. 1. 16; 4. 2, and cf. ² MS. II. 8. 18 budi is read and staccato replaces suryapanti.

³ MS. ii. 8. 14 is found udagena nimbaya danaṇa rigg, which is easier to construe, but the sense is clear
(a. has wheel).

has the simple agnes ying aśi, agnir ying aśi, and so in the following, but though it differs in the form of its Mantras from TS. has the forms agnesi, &c. They seem to be no more than mere blunders.

GB. xxii. 5; MS. II. 13, 12, 18. For the rāhmanas see TS. v. 8. 11. This section contains the Mantras for the five Bhuyashrt bricks (a), the five 'forms of Agni' bricks (b), the five wealth givers (c), the givers of life (d), the heart of the (e), and the seven seasonal bricks

(f); see ĀpGS. xvii. 5. 10-15; BGS. x. 46 gives seven to d, which postulates another text (three on the middle as with f); MGGS. vi. 2. 3.

* Peculiar to TS.

* KS. and MS. agree in inverting āśāḥ and āśāḥ; KS. has yāśi ayāśāḥ, MS. yāśā ayāśāḥ; both have abdhāt for the mysterious sabdhā. It is found in GB. I. 7. 2. 26 as sabdhām in the Kauya recension and as sabdhām in the Mādhyamadina; GB. has sagādā for a feminine as 'night'; see Eggeling, SBE. xi. 199.

4.8. (Thou¹ art) all overcoming through Agni;² self-ruling through the sun; lord of strength through might; creator with the bull; bountiful through the sacrifice; heavenly through the sacrificial fire; slayer of enemies through rage; supporter of the body through kindness; wealth through food; through the earth he hath won; (thou art) master of food with verses; increased by the Vasa³ cry; protector of the body through the Saman; full of light with the Virâj; drinker of Soma through the holy power; with cows he supporteth the sacrifice; with lordly power men with horse and car bearer of the bolt; lord with the seasons, enclosing with the year; unassailable through penance; the sun with Indra.

4.9. (Thou⁴ art) Prajapati in mind, when come to the Soma;⁵ the evoker in the consecration; Savitr in the heating; Pâpati in the cow for the purchase of the Soma; Varuna when bound (in the right); Agni in the being bought; Mitra when purchased; Cipavata when put in place,⁶ delighter of men when being drawn forward;⁷ the overlord on arrival, Prajapati being led on; Agni at the Agnidh's altar; Bhîṣajat on being led from the Agnidh's altar; Indra at the oblation-holder; Aditi when put in place; Visnū when being taken down; Atharvan when made wet;⁸ Yama when pressed out; drinker of unpurified (Soma) when being cleansed;⁹ Vâyu when purifying; Mitra as mixed with milk; the Nentha when mixed with groats; that of the All-gods when taken out;¹⁰ Rudra when offered; Vâyu when covered up;¹¹ the gazer on men when revealed.

Cf. KS. xxxix. 11, which is generally parallel but less elaborate. For the Brâhmaṇa see TS. v. 4. 1. 1. This section gives twenty-two Mantras for the Indratana bricks, five for each quarter and two in the middle; see ApGS. xvii. 6. 2 (ibid. I recognizes the ten names of Indra given in KS. t. c.); BGS. x. 46.

No doubt the comm. is right in assuming that each Mantra is addressed to a brick, as a rule; in the cases where asmat and dâdhâra occur, the Mantra is said of the brick, identified with the deity pro tempore.

not read in A.W. seems at least as good as sdm, which, however, is understood by the comm. (mâryârûpa bhâshitam).

Cf. KS. xxxiv. 14-16; VS. viii. 54-59, both differing a good deal. For the Brâhmaṇa see TS. v. 4. 1. This section contains thirty-three formulae to accompany the bricks called Yajñatana, eight in each quarter and one in the middle; see ApGS. xvii. 6. 2; BGS. x. 46; in the KGS. xxv. 6. 1 as in CB. xii. 6. 1. 2-36 the various are used to make good errors in the sacrificial performance, and it is clear that they are equally available for that or any other purpose.

² i.e. on the thigh of the sacrificee.

⁴ The Soma is removed from the cart and deposited on the pressing-plate, and is wet with the Vasa⁴vâri waters.

⁵ In the Adâbhya cup with the Soma shoots (comm.). The reference is rather to the Adâbhava.

b (Ye are) Āukra and Āuei, the months of summer.

nirṛtīḥ but that demands āyūtāḥ, and the sense 'covered up' is at least natural with prātīhyatāḥ, 'revered', following it; VS. has abhyārtāḥ which Griffith renders 'reverted', 'carried away for partition to the Sadas'; KS. has abhyārtāḥ which yields that sense.

f K⁴. xxix. 18; MS. ii. 18. 20. for this list of. Vedic Index, i. 161.

² and MS. repeat this verse in two forms, first after c with vidvāneśām and then at the end with gaṇīśām; no doubt the verse should be repeated after each; the Mantra consists of a prose introduction and two Verses according to von Schröeder's texts, but it is obviously 8 + 8 + 8 + 8 followed by 8 + 8 - 11, 11, the last Pada having dvirūpa ta as equivalent to three syllables. KS. and MS. spoil the metre by reading śpāṇayā for śpāṇāy, and K.S. adds a needless an- before parīkṣā.

³ These are found only in Kd. xxii. 5, which, however, has yastu and param in i. In m there is the usual and strange tu in the last clause, and VS. (xv. 68, six) has it.

ten hundred thousand million, and a hundred hundred thousand million may these bricks, O Agni, be for me milch cows, sixty, a thousand, ten thousand unperishing; ye are standing on holy order, increasing holy order, dripping ghee, dripping honey, full of strength, full of power; may these bricks, O Agni, be for me milkers of desires named the glorious yonder in yon world.

The Horse Sacrifice

4. 12. a May the² kindling-stick of the quarters, that winneth the heaven, (Guard us) according to our hopes; from Madhu may Mādhava protect us;

Agni, the god, hard to overcome, the undeceivable,
May he guard our kingly power, may he protect us.³

b May the Rathantara with the Samans protect us,
The Gayatri with every form of metres,
The Trivṛt Stoma with the order of the days,
The ocean, the wind, make full this strength.⁴

c (May) the dread among the quarters, the overpowering, giver of strength,

Pure, full of might on a bright day (protect us);

O Indra, as overlord, make full,

And for us [1] on all sides do thou preserve this great kingly power.⁵

d (May) the Brhat Saman, which supporteth kingly power, with vast strength,

The force made beautiful by the Tristubh, that of fierce strength (protect us);

O Indra, with the fifteenfold Stoma

S (xvii. 10) has a similar list but ayutam follows prayutam and ten is inserted, while the sequence is of the form daata ca patu or until samudrik is reached; MS. (ii. 8. 14) has the same scheme, and has ayutam, prayutam and then ayutam again; VS. (xvii. 2) has the same scheme, but the same names and order as TS. The latter part of the Mantra is slightly varied in each case; MS. and KS. have madhavinis and MS. adds kulavinis and has rūshidh for rāshidh; KS. omits ayutih—ākṣayamāndh, and has rāshas sīha rāshyadha rūshidh sīha rāshyadha; it places rāsho—kāmadighidh before ā—santu, and omits amrita-lok; VS. (xvii. 3) has a truncated version rāshas sīha rāshyadha followed by rāshidh sīha rāshyadha, the rāsho nāma kāmadhyāgā īkṣyamāndh.

² KS. xxii. 14. * MS. iii. 16. 4; not in VS

This section gives the Yajyas and Anuvakyas for the ten sacrifices at the Aqva-medha proscribed in TS. vii. 5. 14, and the verses are made to fit the qualifications of the deities thus enumerated, which accounts for the artificial nature of the verses; in each of the offerings all the Pr̄ṣṭha Stotras are used; see ĀpCS. xx. 9. 8.

* KS. has the much easier madhur-atah, and this is no doubt correct: though mādhoh may be construed as 'after Madhu', Madhu and Mādhava being the two spring months; MS. has madhu ratuh, which is nonsense; KS. ends brahma jīnatu; MS. has ādayānah, and KS. and MS. ādubdhuk.

⁴ KS. omits nat.

⁵ KS. has pukro akany or eye; MS. has ojasine; both have ddhipat�ath.

 The season winter in order make us full;
 May the great ones, the Ākavart (verses), with favouring winds [8]

 The goddess aid us, full of ghee;
 Thou art the protector, who givest in front and behind;
 O Brhaspati, yoke a voice in the south.⁶

¹ gīa would seem to have this sense; cf. dis Index, I. 458. The use of spūdātām is not conclusive evidence against it, proof of the tense 'having a sword', so presumably has the sense of thief, or 'pluckers of hair' as Monier-Williams takes it, following Böhtlingk and Roth.

² Cf. KS. xvi. 12; Kaph. xxvii. 8; MS. II. 9. 4, 5; VS. xvi. 24-28
³ For spūdāyā cf. IV. 1. 10-3; p. 304, n. 4.

 f Homage to him who dwelleth with Yama,⁹ and to him at peace.

¹ MS. but VS. and KS. have Puñjibhavyah, and this is no doubt correct; cf. *Vedic
Index*, i. 525.

² KS. xvii. 13, 14; KapS. xxvii. 3, 4;
MS. ii. 9, 4, 5; VS. xvi. 28-31.
According to MS. ii. 2. 13 the reference is to the smallness of the god; see Geldner, Ved. Stud. iii. 81, n. 1. But though tempting the view is after all only a speculation.

VS. and MS. have variants pointing to sueñhava or sueñhāvā as their text (von Schroeder's critical notes to MS. and KS. are different); VS. has mṛtyuha.

pravaydaya is certain; KapS. has anavā- yāya, a mere misreading. Griffith renders in VS. 'him who dwells in still waters' which is impossible. Eggeling (SB xviii. 153) has 'roaring'.

⁴ Cf. KS. xvii. 14; KapS. xxvii. 4; MS. i.
9, 6; VS. xvi. 32-35.

⁵ 'Abortive' is Eggeling's version.

⁶ Sobhya is quite uncertain: 'dwelling the air-castles' is Eggeling's version.
Sobha is said to be the city of the Gandharvas by the schol. on VS. The schol. here explains it as the world men as it has in it both (sa-abha) good and bad.

⁷ Cf. ydmayum in TS. iv. 4. 12 k.

g Homage to him of the ploughed field, and to him of the threshing-floor.

h Homage to him of fame, and to him at his end i Homage to him of the wood, and to him of the thicket.

5 8. a Homage⁷ to Soma, and to Rudra

b Homage to the dusky one, and to the ruddy one.

c Homage to the giver of wealth, and to the lord of cattle.

d Homage to the dread, and to the terrible.

Cf. KR. xvii. 14, 15; KA. xxvii. 4, 5; MR.
ii. 9, 6, 7; VS. xvi. 80-89.

The same question arises as above at iv. 5.
b and c as to the sense of mr̥igya, which Egginger and Griffith both render 'swordsmen'; see Vedic Index, i. 453.

KS. has gr̥ivya, and Kap. pr̥ivya; Griffith takes it as referring to 'roads', but this seems needless.

kr̥iyā perhaps refers to the sea.

KapS. and some MSS. of MS. have rajanya- yā.

The other texts, though with various readings, all aim at vidhriyā; the sense is uncertain; perhaps 'him of a clear sky' is meant; Egginger's version gives the 'cloudless sky' as meant, in AV. iv. 521 v sītā is treated by PW. and Whitney as referring to a clear sky, but the opposite sense would equally well do, and so in iv. 1, 24. The derivation of ek would suit this better.

* Cf. KR. xvii. 15; KapS. xxvii. 8, MS. ii. 9, 7, b; VS. xvi. 82-83.

* All the other texts have cananya, which is simpler than mr̥igya, probably a blunder;
if not it stands for mr̥igya (cf. Wacken-agel), Ancient Grammar, ii. 1. 216.

k Homage to the maker of health, and to the maker of delight.

l Homage to the auspicious, and to the more auspicious.

m Homage to him of the ford, and to him of the bank.

n Homage to him beyond, and to him on this side.

o Homage to him who crosseth over, and to him who crosseth back.¹

p Homage to him of the crossing, and to him of the ocean.²

q Homage to him in the tender grass, and to him in foam.

r Homage to him in the sand, and to him in the stream.

5 9. a Homage to him in the cleft, and to him in the distance.³

b Homage to him dwelling in the stony and to him in habitable places.

c Homage to him of braided hair, and to him of plain hair.

d Homage to him who dwelleth in the cowshed, and to him of the house.

e Homage to him of the bed, and to him of the dwelling.⁴

f Homage to him of the hole,⁵ and to him of the abyss.

g Homage to him of the lake, and to him of the whirlpool.⁶

h Homage to him of the dust, and to him of the mist.

i Homage to him of the dry, and to him of the green.

k Homage to him of the copse,⁷ and to him of the grass [1].

l Homage to him in the earth,⁸ and to him in the gully.

m Homage to him of the leaf, and to him of the leaf-fall.

n Homage to him who growleth, and to him who smiteth away.

o Homage to him who draggeth, and to him who repelleth.

p Homage to you, sparkling hearts of the gods.

q Homage to the destroyed.⁹

Who passeth over and who bringeth ashore' is Eggeling's version.

This set is not in other texts, and the meaning of akasyāya is quite uncertain; Monier-Williams's Dict. adopts the view that ak = al is the basis, the sense being 'to be cried down', i.e. ocean.

[¹ KS. xvii. 15, 16; KapS. xxvii. 8, 6; MS. ii. 9, 8, 9; VS. xvi. 43-46.]

The comparison is not certain: 'barrenland' and 'beaten track' is Eggeling's version. The repetition of gehyāya after gṛhyāya in ² is not found in VS. where the gṛgha and gṛja are contrasted.

¹ kasyā again doubtful as in iv. 5 7 h.

² The form nasyāya is clearly intended in KS., where, however, von Schröder reads nasyā as in VS.; in MS. the MSS. vary and perhaps nasyāya is the original form there. The schol. recognises nasyāya as meaning 'produced in nasyā', i.e. nihardjula.

³ kṣaya is given this sense by Mahidhara on VS. and it seems reasonable. MS. has ukṣaya, an obvious blunder.

⁴ KS. and MS. have anasyāya.

⁵ KS. has this word; MS. has akṣayāya (i.e. ak = al). VS. anasyāya.

o I undance

Let us, O Rāma, mounted on the chariot seat, Drive away the fierce wild beast;
Driving onward, O Rudra, thou directed to the singer;
Let thy arrows fall down another than us.²

In thousands by thousands.

Their bows we are string
At a thousand leagues.⁶

b The Bhava, in this great ocean.

The blasters —

c The Vargas of black backs and white throats,
Who wander below on the earth.⁷

¹ This is RV. i. 111. 10 which is however, easier to construct, as it is followed by gṛihṇāma ut pūrṇapūrṇā nṛayāt

² This is RV. ii. 81. 11 without comment.

⁵ KS. has vīrāṇa, MS. tyākṣya (with variants); and VS. vīrāṇa; the sense is uncertain; KS. has any 'mātā, which is nonsense.

⁶ KS. and MS. have hālegas tira bhīsh; MS. and VS. have vīrāṇa and KS. vīrāṇa and vīrāṇa and tāra.

⁷ Cf. KS. xviii. 16; KapS. xxvii. 9; MS. ii. 9, 9; VS. xvi. 64-66.

⁸ KS., MS., and VS. have usamīkhyā sahi-

The Preparation of the Fire

v. 6. 1. a The⁷ strength resting on the stone, the hill,
 On the wind, on Parjanya, on the breath of Varuna,

All agree in the text.

KS has mang.

All agree in the text which is formally unmetrical, adhipaisag being no doubt to be read as of four syllables.

KS. has pashnīm, which spoils the metre; it has āgamyād, MS. has āgamyād and VS. ālomyād; the second part is uncertain in form and sense; VS. has dyerudhah and MS. re yudhah but gyapdhah seems likely to be correct.

MS. has gyarantah and VS. gyakastah.

KS. and MS. have ca bia.

The action apparently is that of stretching ten fingers as the common suggests; MS. has vyāpata, and MS. and VS. have ām evā jambhe dākṣay; KS. having ca but dākṣay; in every case it remains unexplained and cannot be other than an anacoluthon. Cf. p. 550, n. 3.

¹ Cf. KS. xvi. 17' avit. 1; Kapil. xxvii. 1, 2; MS. i. 9 9, 10; VS. xvi. 1 16. For the Brahmanas see Tāt. v. 1 1. 1 5. 3. This sentence contains the first rite for the moistening of the fire and the dragging of a frog, a crow, and a hen over the fire, &c.; with a the Athvaryu takes a waterpot and thrice circumambulates the fire, drenching it; with b he goes round thrice, without pouring hot water after putting down the pot; c-h accompany the various performances by means of a long pole to which the frog, &c., are tied; i and j accompany the mounting on the altar; k accompanies the making of butter offering on the fire or the perforated brick; l and p accompany the anointing of the altar with ghee mixed with honey by means of a handful of Darshā grass; with q he descends, and with r and s he offers an

- Brought together from the waters, from the plants, from the trees, That food and strength do ye, O Maruts, bounteously bestow upon us.¹
- b* In the stone is thy hunger; let thy pain reach N. N., whom we hate.
c With the wind of the ocean
We envelop thee, O Agni;
Be thou purifying and auspicious to us.²
- d* With the caul of winter
We envelop thee, O Agni;
Be thou purifying and auspicious to us.³
- e* Down upon earth [1], upon the reed,
Upon the waters lower (do thou descend);
Thou, O Agni, art the bile of the waters,⁴
- f* O female frog, with these come hither;
Do thou make this sacrifice of ours
Pure in hue and auspicious.⁵
- g* Pure, with radiance wonderful,
On earth he hath shone as with the light of dawn.⁶
- h* Who (cometh) to battle,
Moving with strength as ox: Etaṇa's course,
In the heat unathirst, immortal.⁷
- i* O Agni, the purifying, with thy light,
O god, with thy pleasant tongue,
Bring hither the gods [2], and sacrifice.⁸
- k* Do thou, O shining and purifying one,
O Agni, bring hither the gods
To our sacrifice and our oblation.⁹

oblation to Agni; see ĀpCS. xvii. 12. 4-7; 13. 5, 6; BCs. x. 44, 50, 51; MCs. vi. 2. 4; KCs. xviii. 2. 1-3. 12.
S., MS., and VS. omit vite-pīgnā; KS. also omits grīm while VS. has vātībīmī pānī; in our b KS. has grīm dīcūrī tīvra, grīg pānī, and MS. and VS. preface to this māgī tī jāgī.
adds here and in d a new Pāda, māgīs tī vātībīmī hētāgī.

to note 1.

If the other texts have dīcūrī except that P in MS. has vātībīmī, and the sense is clear; the comm. takes the sense as atīgāyena rākṣukatām pāthā bhāvati, but this is impossible and vātībīmī as vātībīmī is improbable.

The frog is here female, which looks as if the text had been misunderstood in Āp. But the same discrepancy exists already in CB. ix. 1. 2. 23.

⁶ KS., MS., and VS. have pīvālāyā and KS. has kādīmī; all accent as TS. rūrācī, showing that the sentence is not really independent. KS. and MN. have ketāndī. RV. vi. 15. 5 also has pārakāyā, and Oldenberg (Fischer nachi, p. 458) points out that the text represents a misunderstood Sāñhitā. Cf. i. 4. 15 a; p. 56, n. 4.

⁸ These verses are found also in full at i. 3. 14 z, aa and 5. 5 i, k.

1 This is the meeting of the waters

Th' abode of the ocean

May thy bolts afflict another than us,
Be thou purifying and auspicious to us.¹

2 Homage to thy heat, thy blaze;

Honour be to thy light;

May thy bolts afflict another than us,

Be thou purifying and auspicious to us.

3 To him that sitteth in man, hail! To him that sitteth in the waters, hail! To him that sitteth in the wood, hail! To him that sitteth on the strew, hail! To him that ruleth the heaven, hail!

4 Those gods among gods worshipful among the worshipful,

Who await their yearly portion.

Who eat not oblations, in this sacrifice

Do ye delight yourselves with honey and ghee;

5 The gods who above the gods attained godhead,

Who lead the way to this holy power,

Without whom no place whatever is pure,

Neither on the heights of sky or earth are they.²

6 Giver of expiration art thou [4], of inspiration, of cross-breathing,

Giver of eyesight, giver of splendour, giver of wide room:

May thy bolts afflict another than us;

Be thou purifying and auspicious to us.³

7 May Agni with his piercing blaze

Cast down every foe;

May Agni win for us wealth.⁴

8 With his countenance the kindly one

Will sacrifice to the gods for us, most skilled to win prosperity by sacrifice;

Guardian undeviated and protector of us,

O Agni, shine forth with radiance and with wealth.⁵

In many a place did he deposit the germ of the waters.⁸
- i Father of the eye, the sage with his mind,

x. 81. 1 ; VS., MS., and KS. all have śat and prathumadācī māra; the exact sense is uncertain.

x. 82. 2 has rimand ad vihṛyāḥ; KS. has mand yd vydma, which is also read by KapS.; MS. has rimams; KS. has the absurd paramo nō samavfī; in c KS. has am no mahini sam yo mahantām.

x. 82. 3 and VS. have a different b, dhāndm veda bhīravānī rīpī; KS. has rundya and asti for ēta; MS. has vidhādī.

x. 82. 4 and VS. have asūrī sūrī rājācī ipūte; KS. and MS. have drārīndī; KS. ānūdānī hindī; both have asūrī sūrī. KS. a asūdī, MS. asūdī. For the probable sense see Oldenberg, Prlegomena,

⁶ RV. x. 82. 7 and KS., MS., and V. bubhūva.

⁷ RV. x. 82. 6 has with VS. samapāpi in; so VS. and MS.; in d RV. have yāmin vīpa bhrīvanānī tasthū; MS. has dīti and tasthī with b; KS. has tasthīdām.

⁸ Not in EV. or VS. KS. agrees except for A. but MS. has besides cī for Produced these two worlds rich in gold,

When the fore limbs were made firm
Then did sky and earth extend.

k With eyes on every side, with a face on every side,
With hands on every side, with feet on every side,
The one god producing sky and earth
Welds them together with arms, with wings.¹

l What was the basis?

Which and what has support?
When producing earth, O Viçvakarman, all-seeing, Disclosed the sky with his might.

m What was the wood, and what the tree,

Whence they formed sky and earth?
O ye wise ones, inquire with your minds
On what he stood as he supported the world.²

n Thy highest, lowest,

Midmost abodes here, O Viçvakarman,
In the offering do thou teach thy comrades, O faithful one;
Do thou thyself sacrifice to thyself, rejoicing.³

o The lord of speech, Viçvakarman,

Let us invoke this day to aid us [5], thought yoked for strength,
May he delight in our nearest offerings,
He with all healing, to aid us, the doer of good deeds.⁴

p O Viçvakarman, waxing great with the oblation,

Do thou thyself sacrifice to thyself rejoicing;
May the others around, our foes, be confused;
May our patrons here be rich.⁵

q O Viçvakarman, with the oblation as strengthening,

Thou didst make Indra, the protector, free from sin,
To him the clans of old bowed in homage,
That he might be dread, to be severally invoked.⁶

82 i, MS. and VS. agree; KS. in the position of dīkṣāpyakṣiṇi upparallelism with dīkṣāyakṣiṇi.

81. 3 and VS. have rūpātīkākṣi, ati, and ayavādīkṣi; KS. and MS. yo rūpātīkākṣi; MS. has dehākṣi, dehātī and yogātīkṣi. The accent on tī is probably due to the antithesis —sam.

81. 3, MS. and VS. have bathātī and ; KS. has bathātī but yo tī, which is easy.

81. 4 and VS. have deu: all accent —ta.

81. 5 and VS. end with

KS. has stātā and it and MS. have asātā. It is not certain if the sense 'sacrifice thyself' or 'to thyself', either sense being possible.

* RV. x. 81. 7 and VS. have māṇḍīkṣi and tiṣṭiṣi with jap. KS. has śāṅkāṇī dyāmātī; MS. śāṅkāṇī hūṣṭiṣi.

* RV. x. 81. 6 and the other texts have as ṛthīmā śāṅkāṇī, and śāṅkāṇī for asātā save that VS. has śāṅkāṇī. This and the next verse occur in Pratīka only at iv. 13 gg and 5A.

* Not in RV. but in the rest save that MS. has asātā.

The Agniprāṇayana

- To the ocean, the moving
The lord of streams homage,
To the lord of all the streams
Do ye offer, to Viṣvakarman,
Through all the days the immortal offering.¹
- 3. a O² Agni, to whom ghee is offered,
Do thou lead him forward :
Unite him with increase of wealth,
With offspring and with wealth.³
- b O Indra, bring him to the fore,
That he may be lord over his fellows ;
Unite him with splendour,
That he may assign their shares to the gods.⁴
- c Him, O Agni, do thou exalt
In whose house we make the offering ;
To him may the gods lend aid,
And he the lord of holy power.⁵
- d May the All-gods thee [1],
O Agni, bear up with their thoughts ;
Be thou to us most propitious,
With kindly face, abounding in light.⁶
- e May the five regions divine aid the sacrifice,
The goddesses driving away poverty and hostility,
And giving to the lord of the sacrifice increase of wealth.⁷
- f In increase of wealth the sacrifice hath been established, Waxing great on the kindled fire,
Grasped with hymns as wings, to be adored ;
They sacrificed embracing the heated cauldron.⁸
- g When with strength the gods laboured at the sacrifice
For the divine supporter, the enjoyer,

KS. xviii. 3; KapS. xxviii. 3; MS. ii. 0 4, 5; VS. xvii. 50-64. For the Brāhmaṇa see TS. v. 4. 6. This section gives the Mantras of the Agniprāṇayana; with the Adhvaryu takes up three kindlings sticks of Udumbara, and with d lifts up gni in the pan, and with e; takes it away from the Agnidh's altar; k and t are used as he deposits a stone on the agnidh's altar, and m-p as he goes up to the tail of the altar; see ĀpCS. xvii. 14. 6, 9, and cf. BCSS. x. 51; MCS. vi. 2. 5; CS. xviii. 3 14-21 has gñi and, for

ca, bahūm kñlin; MS. has s várcasū syād and then as KS., but uttaram; KS. agrees with TS. in and with KS. in c and d.

³ This is found above in full also at KS. has śāivid tādm, with VS. not the verse here.

⁴ KS., MS., and VS. end with asthāt a beginning of f, thus in all cases in the anena.

⁵ KS., MS. and VS. end with apā-

Serving the gods, human, with a hundred drinks (was it),

Savir hath raised before us his unending light ;
On his instigation faileth Pow'r the god,
The guardian gazing on all things.¹

i The gods stand serving as ministrants for the gods, Ready (is it) for the immolator, let the immolator sacrifice ;
Where the fourth offering goeth to the oblation, Thence let our pure invocations be accepted.²

k As measurer he standeth in the midst of the sky, Filling the two worlds and the atmosphere ;
The all-reaching [3], the bather-reaching, he dispeareth,

In the middle of the sky is the dappled star set down ;
He hath stepped apart, he giveth; the two ends of space.⁴

m All songs have come, dharma to work
To encompass the ocean,
Best charioteer of charioteers,
True lord and lord of strength.⁵

n Let the sacrifice invite favour, and bring (to us) the gods ; let the god, Agni, offer and bring (to us) the gods.⁶

o With the impulse of strength,
With elevation he hath seized me ;
Then Indra hath made my enemies

¹ and MS. have paripit and miti saksh ;
VS. agrees with TS. but adds as a dharmi— other from our.

but is RV. x. 139. 2, which has prastu and mati for dharmi ; VS. agrees, and KS. and MS. have prastu, which is much easier than pravart which, however, must have the same sense.

VS. has adharayuktah ; it runs on strik gumati parid yajudhyas ; MS. has dheer and parid gumati yajudhyas ; VS. gumati keert parid yajudhyas. The text of TS. yields a conceivable sense, and yajud- hyas need not be altered to parid ; Mahidhara on VS. claims that it is ~ gumati.
The school here renders as news. The fourth sacrifice is oblation ; according to OB. ix. 2. 3. 11 it is the part following the scattering of the Abraham, the chants of the Huff and the Aparivratas ring here (v. 8. 4) of the Brahman, the school takes it as following on the Adh- varyan's work, the bringing up to the shepherd, and the slaying. KS., MS., and VS. have vyas, not pravas, which the school takes as meaning the tree, not which is perhaps one with vyas. The Brahman gives no help.

² KS. has samskri, a more blander. In RV
v. 47. 8 svarg is read.

³ So RV. i. 13. 1.

⁴ So MS. with another verse ; KS. and VS.
have not saksh, and KS. has samskri.

Humble by depression.

p The gods have increased my prayer
Which is elevation and depression,
Then do ye, O Indra and Agni,
Scatter my foes on every side.¹

6. 4. a Swift,² like a bull sharpening his horns, the warrior
Fond of slaughter, disturber of the people, Bellowing, unwinking, sole hero,

b With the bellowing, unwinking, conquering, Fighter, hard to overthrow, and daring Indra,
With Indra do ye conquer, do ye withstand The foe, O heroes, with the strong one who holdeth the arrow in his hands.⁴

c He is mighty with those who have arrows in their hands and quivers Indra who joineth hosts with his band,
Conquering in combat, drinker of Soma, with many a band,
With bow uplifted, and shooter with well-drawn arrows.⁵

d O Brhaspati, fly round with thy chariot [1], Slaying the foe, driving away the enemy;
Defeating hosts, destroyer, victor in battle,
Be thou protector of our chariots.⁶

e The cleaver of the cowstalls, finder of the cows, with the thunderbolts on his arm,

Victorious, crushing in might a host,
Be heroes, O my fellows, like him;
O comrades, follow in Indra's footsteps.⁷

f Conspicuous by might, strong, heroic, Enduring, mighty, steadfast, dread,
Surpassing heroes and warriors born of strength,
Do thou, winning kine, mount, O Indra, thy victorious car.⁸

his and the next verse occur in full also in i. 1. 13 a and b; 6. 4 m and n. MS.

V. vi. 76. 17 agrees in a, b, and d, but with vigñāka, as in TS. iv. 6. 6. 8, while in iv. 6. 2. 6 vigñāda is read.

f KS. xviii. 4, 6; KapS. xxviii. 4, 6; MS. ii. 10. 6; 11. 1; VS. xvii. 65-86. For the Brâhmaṇa see TS. v. 4. 7. This section contains the Mantras for the placing of the fire; with a—the Adhvaryu mounts the altar; with f and g he offers on the perforated brick a spoonful of ghee; with h-i he places the fire on the brick (this version reckons bhâṣî as beginning a Mantra); with k he puts on a stick of Udambara, with l one of Vi-kâṅkata, with m one of Çamî; then filling the dipping-ladle with twelve lots, he offers a full oblation with n; the rest of the Mantras accompany an offering of cakes to the Maruts there being of those offerings; see ĀpCS. xvii. 15. 1-7, 16, 4, and cf. BCS. x. 52, 53; MCS. vi. 2. 5; KCS. xviii. 4. 1-25.

² KS. has puro agne, didyat; MS. (i. 6. 2) has puro agnih and didyat; VS. agrees with MS. in puro agnih.

³ The other texts have ddhram, also read in several MSS. here.

⁵ AV. iv. 14. 4 and the other Sâhitas agree, rodasî may possibly be pressed to mean 'they mount through the two (lower)

'worlds to the sky', but this is very unlikely, though Griffith on VS. so takes it.

⁶ AV. iv. 14. 5 has devatândam and mânuśayâm; MS. has sahâ; KS. and MS. have devatâ-

The gods, granters of wealth, support Agni.¹

g O Agni, of a thousand eyes [2], of a hundred heads,

A hundred are thy exhalations, a thousand three inspirations:

Thou art lord of wealth a thousand-fold:

To thee as such let us pay homage for strength, bull!²

h Thou art the wind itself, sit on the earth; sit on the ridge of earth; with thy blaze fill the atmosphere, with thy light establish the sky, with thy brilliance make firm the quarters.³

i Receiving offering, fair of face, O Agni;

Sit down in front in thine own birthplace, in due order;

In this higher place,

O All-gods [3], do ye sit with the sacrificer.⁴

k Enkindled, O Agni, shine before us,

O most youthful, with unfading beam;

Ever upon thee strength awaiteth.⁵

l Let us pay homage to thee in thy highest birth, O Agni,

Let us pay homage with praises in thy lower abode;

The place of birth whence thou didst come, to that I offer;

In thee when kindled they offered the oblations.⁶

m That various lovingkindness is given to all men,

Of Savitr, the adorable, I choose,

That mighty fat cow of his which Rupya milked,

Streaming with a thousand (draughts) of milk [4].⁷

n Seven are thy kindling-sticks, O Agni, seven thy tongues,

Seven scars, seven dear abodes;

Seven Hotris sevenfold sacrifice to thee;

Seven birthplaces with ghee do thou fill.⁸

¹ Verse is found in full above at iv. 1. ² There are here five lists of names, for a and c yield one set of names, KS. has the same set in order p, a, c, q and agrees in the rest, save that it adds shanav. LkL has same in H; in MS. the order is p, q, r, s and shanav is similarly read; in VdL p, q, r, s, and in addition there are two more sets (xviii. 10); all agree in dhanav as against dhanavat; v and x also found above at i. 8. 12 f and v. 1. 8. 12, and VS. have in v at the second part shanav and prishnadvat, and VL has only dhanav before sans but also before shanav. The Horse Sacrifice

6. 6. a As² of a thunder-cloud is the face of the warrior
 As he advanceth to the lap of the battles;
 Be victorious with unpierced body;
 Let the might of thine armour protect thee.³
b By the bow cows, by the bow the contest may we win,
 By the bow dread battles may we win;
 The bow doth work displeasure to the foe;
 By the bow let us win in all the quarters.⁴
c As if about to speak it approacheth the ear, Embracing its dear comrade.
 Like a woman this bowstring twangeth stretched over the bow [1], Saving in the battle.⁵
d They coming together as a maiden to the assembly,
 As a mother her child, shall bear (the arrow) in their lap;
 In unison shall they pierce the foes,
 These two ends springing asunder, the enemies.⁶
e Father of many (daughters), many his sons, the acc. is due to the anu in anuvartmāṇāḥ; cf. Delbrück, Altind. Synt. p. 181, who does not cite this case.

f KSAyvamedha, vi. 1; MS. iii. 16. 8; VS. xxix. 38-57. This section, which is part of the Agyvamedha ritual, deals with the putting on of the corselet and armour and the making ready of the chariot; a accompanies the putting on of the corselet, b the taking of the bow; with c the bowstring is stroked; with d the two ends of the string are brought together; with e the quiver is put on the back; with f the charioteer and with g the steeds are addressed; i-l are used in adoration of the Pits; with m he touches a stone (if agmīnam be read with Q), and takes the whip with n, and addresses the handguard with o, and with p-t the chariot; with u they make all the drums sound at one time; h is used for the placing of the chariot on its stand which of course is not in place at this point of the ritual but follows on the other actions at the end of the rite: see ĀpCS. xx. 16. 4-14, 18; MCS. ix. 2. 3, 4; KGS. does not include this hymn. In BCS. x. 24 a-n accompany the girding of the sacrificer; o-q the adoration of the chariot; r-t the sounding of the drum.

³ EV. vi. 75. 3: çākta may refer to the 'whisper' of the bowstring; see Griffith, Hymns of the Rigveda, I. 646 n.

⁴ RV. vi. 75. 4 yogā sing. seems correct, as mātā is sing. For sāmanā cf. Vedic Index, ii. 429.

- He whizzeth as he goeth to battle,

Doth conquer every band and army.¹
- f* Standing on the chariot he guideth his steeds before him
Wheresoever he desireth, good charioteer :

Then may we sit on the strong car,
All the days, with friendly hearts.⁴
- i* The fathers with pleasant seats, granting strength,
A support in trouble mighty and profound,
With varied hosts, with arrows to strengthen them, free,
With real heroes, broad conquerors of hosts.⁵

Where men run together and apart,
There may the arrows accord us protection.⁷
- m* O thou of straight path, avoid us ;
Be our body as of stone :
May Soma favour us,
And Aditi [4] grant protection.⁸

V. vi. 75. 6.

* RV. vi. 75. 6

V. vi. 75. 7 ; for anapā ayatnā, Oldenberg has 'neikt entkleidend'.

S and VS. agree in having this verse in order as in RV. vi. 75. 8. But MS. here interpolates p, q, and r. There can be no doubt as to the authenticity of this verse; see Oldenberg, Syntexis-Nam, i. 416, who has overlooked the fact that ApCS. xx. 16. 18 recognizes v. 8. Oldenberg, p. 416, gives two explanations as possible for a; the warrior's offering is his wagon rest (which would be combined with Geldner's view (Ved. Stud. ii. 275; Kosswigian, p. 106) that havī is an abbreviation for havī- deśā), i. e. his object in war, just as priest's is sacrifice, or the oblation is real substance on which the armour depends.

* The verb to be understood is probably 'propitious' as in k; the result too is far suggestive; but it is already too on to i and k. Thus in RV. vi. 75. 9

* RV. vi. 75. 10. MS. has vide rāvī for havī; rāvī is doubtless correct and rāvīp as suggested by Delbrück. Oldenberg, p. 416; rāvīp with accent cannot be rendered.

² RV. vi. 75. 12. KS. has obviously ayat-

n Their backs it smites,

The Horse Sacrifice

Arising from the ocean & the dust
 The wings of the eagle, the humps of the gazelle,
 That is thy names! birth, O steed!
 b The steed given by Yama hath Trita yoked,
 P Indra first mounted,
 The bridle of it the Gaudisvara grasped;
 O Varuna, from the sun ye fashioned the steed;
 e Thou art Yama, O steed, thou art Aditya;
 Thou art Trita by secret ordinance;
 Thou art entirely separated from Soma [1];
 Three, they say, are thy bonds in the sky;
 f Three, they say, are thy bonds in the sky,
 Three in the waters, three within the ocean;
 And like Varuna to me thou appeared, O steed,
 Where, say they, is thy highest birthplace?
 These, O swift one, are thy cleanseings,
 These the placings down of thy hooves in victory;
 Here I have seen thy fair repos,
 Which the guards of holy order guard.
 f The self of thee with my mind I perceived from afar Flying with wings from below through the sky [2], Thy head I saw speeding with wings
 On paths fair and dustless.
 g Hero I saw thy highest form,
 Eager to win food in the footstep of the cow;
 When a mortal man pleaseth thy taste,
 Then most greedily dost thou consume the plants.
 h There follows the chariot, there the liver, O steed,
 There the kine, there the portion of residue;
 Thy friendship the companions have sought;
 The gods have imitated thy strength [3].

V. i 162. 4.

V. i 162. 5. The origin of Aravaj is uncertain: the tradition here of the Pada derives it from ā-vay, but ya or ya have also been seen in the last part; what priest of the later ritual is meant is uncertain; see Oldenberg, i. 154. śrīgṛbha may denote a priest, or more likely is merely an epithet. It has been suggested that he corresponds to the later Brahman. Cf. also i. 8. 38.

V. i 162. 6. It is not certain if the action described in c is merely the collecting of the materials for one vessel, or if pūṣṇa is collective.

V. i 162. 7. Hillebrandt's conjecture (ZDMG. xxxvii. 624) vpa the pryjñā is quite impossible, the parenthesis being natural. K. has matadā.

² RV. i. 162. 9.

³ RV. i. 162. 10. śrīgṛbha is clearly an accus. plur.; for the question of accent and form see Oldenberg, p. 165.

7.13. a Agni ! I yoke with glory, with ghee,
The bird divine mighty in strength :
Therewith may we fly to the expurse of the ruddy one,
Mounting the heaven above the highest vault.
b These are wings unaging of thee, the winged, Wherewith thou dost smite away the Hikṣas, O Agni ;
With these may we fly to the world of good men,
Where are the seers, the first-born, those of yore.
c Thou art piling, born of the ocean, the drop,
The skilled one, the eagle, the righteous,
The golden-winged busy bird, mighty,
That hath sat down firmly in its place [1].

Do thou bear this sacrifice for us !
Awake, O Agni ; be roused for him ;
With this one do thou create another and creation ;

 Praise of the slayer of Vritra hath come to me,
 He who cometh at the call of the generous door of good deeds [1],
 May he relieve us from tribulation.³
- d Him who in might leadeth forth the host for battle,
 Who commandeth the three possessions;
 Indra I praise; I invoke seeking aid,
 May he relieve us from tribulation.⁴
- e Of you, O Mitra and Varuna, I invoke:
 Take heed of him, O ye of true strength, strong ones, whom ye afflict;
 Ye who go in might against the king in his chariot,
 May ye relieve us from sin.⁵
- f You whose chariot with straight reins, of true path, Approacheth to spoil him who asteth falsely,
 Mitra and Varuna I praise [2]; I invoke seeking aid,
 May ye relieve us from sin.⁶

KANDA V

THE EXPLANATION OF THE PILING OF THE FIRE ALTAR

PRAPĀTHAKA I

The Placing of the Fire in the Fire-pan

v. 1. 1. He¹ offers the Savitṛ offerings, for instigation. He offers with (an oblation) ladled up four times, cattle have four feet; verily he wins cattle, the quarters are four; verily he finds support in the quarters. The metres departed from the gods (saying), 'We will not carry your oblation without sharing (in it)'; for them they kept this (oblation) ladled up four times, for the Puronuvākyā, the Yajyā, the deity, the Vasaṭ call; in that he offers what has been ladled up four times, he delights the metres, and they delighted carry to the gods his oblation. If he desire of a man [1], 'May he become worse', he should offer each separately for him; verily he makes him severed from the libations;² he becomes worse. If he desire of a man, 'May he become better', he should offer all for him continuously; verily he makes him master of the libation; he becomes better. This is the mastering of the sacrifice. He abandons prosperity in the beginning of the sacrifice who departs from Agni as the deity; these offerings to Savitṛ number eight, the Gāyatrī has eight syllables, Agni is connected with the Gāyatrī [2]; verily he does not abandon prosperity at the beginning of the sacrifice, nor Agni as the deity. The offerings to Savitṛ number eight, the libation (as a whole) is the ninth; verily he extends the threefold (Stoma) at the beginning of the sacrifice. If he desire, 'May I confer on the metres the glory of the sacrifice', he should make a Re verse last; verily he confers on the metres the glory of the sacrifice. If he desire,

¹ Cf. KS. xviii. 19; xix. 1; KapS. xxix. 7, 8; MS. iii. 1. 1, 2; QB. vi. 3. 1. 1-44. This section explains the offering to Savitṛ and the taking of the spade, the Mantras for which are in TS. iv. 1. 1.

² It is not quite certain whether in this construction the sense is merely that the sacrificer is made weak by means of the severed character of the ahutis, or whether it is to be understood that he is parted from them because of their lack of continuity; the latter sense is perhaps the more probable.

' May I confer on the sacrifice the glory of the sacrifice'; he should make a Yajus formula last; verily he confers on the sacrifice the glory of the sacrifice. 'By the R̄e make the Stoma to flourish'; he says [3], for prosperity. With four strokes he takes up the spade, the strokes are four, verily he takes it up with the metre. 'On the invocation of god Savit̄'; he says, for invocation. Agni went away from the gods, he entered the reed; he resorted to the hole¹ which is created by the perforation of the reed; the spade is perforated to make it his birthplace, wherever he lived, that became black; (the spade) is stained, for perfection of form; it is pointed at both ends, for the warning of light both hence and from yonder world, it is a fathom long. 'as much is the strength in man, verily it is commensurate with his strength. It is unlimited in girth, to win what is unlimited, that tree which has fruit is strong among trees, the reed bears fruit, (the spade) is of reed, to win strength.'

v. 1. 2. That part of the sacrifice is unsuccess-ful which is performed with no Yajus. 'This band of order they grasped', (with these words) he takes up the horse's halter, to make a Yajus, and to make success-ful the sacrifice. 'Swiftly run hither, O steed', (with these words) he halts the horse; verily he proclaims its greatness in this form. 'V. hi v. v. the as', (with these words) (by halting) the as; verily he establishes the as on the non-existent; therefore the as is less real than the horse. 'In each need more strong', he says [1]; verily in each need he yokes him; 'in each contest we invoke', he says; the contest is food; verily he wins food. 'As friends, Indra to aid us', he says; verily he wins power. Agni went away from the gods, him Praj̄apati found; the horse is connected with Praj̄apati, with the horse he collects fire, for the burning (of Agni). Non confusion occurs in that they perform the same thing with a better and worse instrument, for the as is worse than the horse [2], they lead the horse in front to avoid confusion; therefore the worse follows after the better. Many are the foes of the man who was once great, he was once great as it were who piles the fire, the steed has a thunderbolt; 'hastening come hither, trampling the enemy'; he says; verily he tramples with the thunderbolt on the evil foe; 'from the lordship of Rudra', he says; cattle are connected with Rudra; verily having begged from Rudra [3] cattle he acts for his own interest. 'With Pusan as fellow', he says; Pusan is the leader together of roads; (verily it serves) for attainment. The fire has dual

² Cf. KS. xix. 2, 3; Kaps. xxix. 8; xxx. 3; MS. 51. 1. 2, 4; GS. vi. 2. 2. 2. 12. This for its abode ; the Aṅgirases brought it together before the deities ; 'from the abode of earth do thou approach Agni of the dust in the mode of Aṅgiras', he says ; verily he brings it together in one abode with the deities. 'We approach Agni of the dust in the manner of Aṅgiras', he says ; verily he appropriates the strength of him whom he meets [4]. 'The fire should be brought together after announcing it to Prajāpati', they say ; Prajapati is this earth, the ant-heaps are its ear ;¹ 'we will bear Agni of the dust in the manner of Aṅgiras' ; (with these words) he pays reverence to the mound of an ant-heaps ; verily after announcing it to Prajapati face to face, he brings together the fire. 'We bear Agni of the dust in the manner of Aṅgiras', he says, verily he appropriates the strength of him whom he meets. 'Agni hath gazed along the forefront of the dawns' [5], he says, to light up (the heaven). 'The steed coming, from the way', 'Coming to earth, O steed', he says ; verily he wishes for it with the first and obtains it with the second ; with two (verses) he makes it come, for support ; (with two) of the same form, therefore cattle are born of the same form. 'Thy back is the sky, thy abode earth', he says, Prajapati quickened him from these worlds ; verily he proclaims its greatness in this form. The steed is possessed of the thunderbolt, by its incisors it is more puissant than those with one row of incisors, by its hair than those with two rows ; him whom he hates he should conceive as beneath its feet ; verily with the thunderbolt he lays him low.

v. 1. 8. 'The² strong steed hath stepped forth', with these two (verses) he makes it step forth ; (with two) of the same form, therefore cattle are born of the same form. He pours water down ; where there are waters, there plants take root, and where plants take root cattle find support through them, the sacrifice (finds support) in cattle, the sacrificer in the sacrifice, offspring in the sacrificer ; therefore he pours water down, for support. If the Adhvaryu were to pour the libation on that which is without fire, the Adhvaryu would be [1] blind, the Raksases would destroy the sacrifice ; he puts gold down and offers ; verily he pours on what has fire, the Adhvaryu does not become blind, the Raksases do not destroy the sacrifice. 'I touch Agni with mind, with ghee', he says, for with mind man approaches the sacrifice ; 'who lordeth it over all the worlds', he says, for he lords it over all ; 'broad, vast, with pervading vital power', he says, for he born small becomes great [2] ; 'most extensive, impetuous, winning food', he says, verily he makes pleasant food for him ; all is pleasant for him who knows thus. 'I touch thee with speech, with ghee', he says ; therefore what a man cometh with mind he never, with speech — with friendly friend)*, he says, to smite away the Rakṣasas. 'Even mortal glory, with dazzling colour, Agni', he says, 'verily he knoweth beauty upon him, he is possessed of beauty who knoweth thine [2]'. By mortal power he doth, that Rishiing which the Aṅgavṛga offers in that which is without him, he offers with two verses containing the word 'rāṣṭri', to obtain the two objectives, with two (the offering) for support. As the beginning of the sacrifice is performed the Rakṣasas are fain to destroy the sacrifice, now that is the splendour (in) beginning of the sacrificer when the Āṅgavṛga comes upon it he draws a line around, to smite away the Rakṣasas with their arrows. In drawing a line around, Agni is thrice; verily from the whole aspect of Agni he smites away the Rakṣasas [3]; with a Gayatri verse he draws a line around, the Gayatri is brilliance; verily with brilliance he encircles him; with a Trisūḍha verse he draws a line around, the Trisūḍha is power; verily he encircles him with power, with an Aṅgavṛga to draw a line around, the Aṅgavṛga overpasses all the metres, verily it overpasses complete attainment; with the Aṅgavṛga in the middle the drawn, the Aṅgavṛga in speech, therefore from the middle we speak with speech, with the Gayatri first he draws, then with the Aṅgavṛga, then with the Trisūḍha the Gayatri is brilliance, the Aṅgavṛga the sacrificer, the Trisūḍha power, verily he encircles the sacrificer, with brilliance and power, in both sides.

v. 1. 4. 'On' the instigation of the god Savitri three', (with three words) he digs, for instigation. Then with it he produces smoke, 'full of light, then, O Agni, of fair aspect'. he says and thereby he produces light. Agni on birth afflicted creatures with pain, him the gods appeared by the half-verse; 'auspicious and harmless offspring', he says, 'verily he makes him appeared for offspring'. He digs with two (vermuts), for support. 'Then on the back of the waters', (with three words) he takes the lotus leaf [1], the lotus leaf is the back of the waters, verily with its open form he takes it. He gathers with a lotus leaf, the lotus leaf is the birthplace of Agni; verily he gathers Agni with his own birthplace. He gathers with a black antelope skin: the black antelope skin is the sacrifice, verily he gathers the sacrifice with the sacrifice. If he were to gather with the skin of tame animals he would afflict with pain tame animals; he gathers with a black antelope skin, verily he afflicts with pain wild animals [2]. the refuse of animals of even birth the wild animals are the smaller, for they are afflicted with pain. He gathers on the hairy side, for on that side is it pain. He strews the lotus leaf and the black antelope skin together, the black antelope skin is this (earth), the lotus leaf yonder (sky), verily on both sides he encircles him.

with these two. Agni departed from the gods, Atharvan perceived him, 'Atharvan first pressed thee out, O Agni' [3], he says; verily he gathers him with him who perceived him. 'Thee, O Agni, from the lotus', he says, for in the lotus leaf he found him reposing. 'Thee the sage, Dadhyāñc', he says, Dadhyāñc, son of Atharvan, was full of brilliance; verily he bestows brilliance upon him. 'Thee Pāthya Vṛṣan', he says; verily with the latter (verse) he hails him whom he has previously addressed [4].¹ He gathers with four (verses), the metres are four: verily (he gathers) with the metres. (He gathers) with Gayatri verses for a Brahman, for the Brahman is connected with the Gayatri; with Trisṭubh verses for a Rājanya, for the Rājanya is connected with the Trisṭubh; if he desire of a man, 'May he be richer', he should gather for him with both sets; verily upon him he bestows brilliance and power together. With eight (verses) he gathers: the Gayatri has eight syllables, Agni is connected with the Gayatri; verily he gathers all the extent of Agni. 'Sit thou, O Hotṛ', he says; verily he makes the deities sit down for him: 'The Hotṛ down', (with these words he makes) men (sit down); 'Sit thou down', (with these words he makes) birds (sit down); 'Be born noble in the forefront of the days', he says: verily he produces for him the common session of gods and men.

v. 1. 5. In that² he digs he acts as it were harshly to this (earth); he pours water down, the waters are appeased: verily with the waters appeased he calms her pain. May for thee Vayu, Mātariçvan unite', he says; Vāyu is breath; verily with breath he unites her breath: 'may for thee Vāyu', he says, therefore the rain speeds from the sky, made to fall by Vāyu. 'To him, O goddess, be Vasat with thee' [1], he says; the seasons are six; verily upon the seasons he bestows rain; therefore in all the seasons it rains. If he were to utter the Vasat cry, his Vasat cry would be exhausted; if he were not to utter the Vasat cry, the Rakṣasas would destroy the sacrifice: 'Vat', he says, verily, mysteriously he utters the Vasat cry: his Vasat cry is not exhausted, the Rakṣasas do not destroy the sacrifice. 'Well born with light', (with these words) he ties up with an Anuṣṭubh verse; all the metres are the Anuṣṭubh [2], Agni's dear body is the metres; verily he encircles him with his dear body; likely to win a garment is he who knows thus. Agni when tied up is connected with Varuṇa; 'Arise, thou of fair sacrifice'; 'Arise, erect, to aid us', with two (verses) addressed to Savitṛ he rises up, verily, instigated by Savitṛ, he sends aloft the wrath of Varuṇa that is in him; with two (verses) the crevices, for support. 'Hence thou art the child [3] of the two worlds, he says: the two worlds are those two (sky and earth). Agni is the child of the two; therefore he says: thus. 'O Agni, brilliant, distributed among the plants', he says: for when they distribute him, then he becomes more brilliant. 'Thou didst come thundering from thy mothers'; he says: his mothers are the plants verily from them he makes him to fall. 'Be firm, of strong bulk' (with these words) he places (Agni) on the ass [4] verily thencefor yokes it for strength. He gathers with the ass, therefore the ass is the best burden-gatherer of animals. He gathers with the ass, therefore the ass, even when grazing is bad, becomes fat beyond other animals, for by it they gather food and light. He gathers with the ass, therefore the ass being of double seed, is born as the least¹ of animals, for Agni burns his place of birth. Now he is mounted upon offspring [5], and is strong to burn with pain offspring. 'Be auspicious for offspring', he says verily he makes him calm for offspring. '(For offspring) of man, 'O Angiras', he says, for offspring are of men. 'Sewell, not sky and earth, nor the atmosphere, nor the trees', he says: verily he makes him calm for these worlds. 'Let the steed advance, thundering', he says, for he is a steed. 'The maddling, the donkey, the filer' [6], he says, for the ass called him the 'donkey'. 'Bearing Agni of the dust', he says, for he bears Agni. 'May he fall not before his day', he says; verily he bestows life upon him; therefore an ass lives all its days; therefore are men afraid when an ass perishes before its day. 'The strong, bearing the strong Agni', he says, for he is strong, and Agni is strong. 'Germ of the waters [7], him of the ocean', he says, for Agni is the germ of the waters. 'O Agni, come hither for enjoyment', (at these words) the two worlds part apart; in that, he says, 'O Agni, come hither for enjoyment', it is for the separation (vividi) of these worlds. He, having left his place and not having reached a support, then thinks of the Adhvaryu and the sacrificer; 'holy order and truth', he says, holy order is this (earth), truth [8] is yonder (sky). verily in these two he establishes him, and neither the Adhvaryu nor the sacrificer is ruined Agni when tied up, as Varuna, attacks the sacrificer. 'O plants, do ye accept Agni here', he says, for atonement. 'Casting aside all basilities, all evil imaginings', he says, to smite away the Rakshas. 'Sitting down, may he smite away from us misfortune', he says, for support. 'O plants, do ye rejoice [9] in him', he says: Agni's portion is the plants; verily he unites him with them. 'Rich in flowers and having fair leaves', he says, therefore plants produce fruit. 'This germ of yours, of due season, hath sat him in his ancient seat', he says; verily in those he establishes them from whom he makes him to fall. With two verses he deposits (it), for support.

v. 1. 6. Agni¹ when tied up is connected with Varuna; 'With extending blaze', (with these words) he unloosens (him); verily, instigated by Savitr, he lets loose on all sides the wrath of Varuna that is in him. He pours water down; the waters are appeased, verily by the waters appeased he calms his pain: with three (verses) he pours (it) down, Agni is three-fold; verily he calms Agni's pain throughout his whole extent. 'Mitra having united the earth', he says; Mitra is the auspicious one of the gods, verily [1] with him he unites him, for atonement. If he were to unite him with sherds of domestic pots, he would afflict domestic pots with pain he unites (him) with fragments of broken pots; these are not used for life; verily he afflicts them with pain. He unites (him) with sand, for support, and for healing. He unites (him) with goat-hair; the female goat is Agni's dear form; verily he unites him with his dear form, and thus with brilliance. He unites him with the hairs of a black antelope skin [2]; the black antelope skin is the sacrifice; verily he unites the sacrifice with the sacrifice. 'The Rudras, having gathered together the earth', he says, these deities first gathered him together; verily with them he gathers him together. 'Thou art the head of Makha', he says; Makha is the sacrifice, the firepan is his head; therefore he says thus. 'Ye are the two feet of the sacrifice', he says, for these are the two, feet of the sacrifice [3]; and also (it serves) for support. He hands (the pan) over with one set (of verses), and addresses it with another,² to make a pairing. He makes it with a triple stand; these worlds are three; (verily it serves) to obtain these worlds. He makes (it) with the metres; the metres are strength; verily he makes it with strength. He makes a hole with a Yajus, for discrimination. He makes it so great, of equal girth with Prajapati, the beginning of the sacrifice. He makes it with two breasts, for the milking of sky and earth; he makes it of four breasts, for the milking of cattle; he makes it of eight breasts, for the milking of the metres. For him who practises witchcraft he should make it nine-cornered; verily gathering together the threefold thunderbolt he hurls it at his foe, to lay him low. 'Having made the great pan', (with these words) he deposits (it); verily he establishes it among the deities.

v. 1. 7. With³ seven (verses) he fumigates; the breaths in the head are seven, the pan is the head of the sacrifice; verily he places the breaths in the head of the sacrifice: therefore seven are the breaths in the head. II. fumigates with horse-dung: the horse is connected with Prajapati, (verily it serves) to connect it with its place of birth.¹ 'May Aditi thine', he says. Aditi is this (earth); verily with Aditi in Aditi he dug, to avoid injury to it, for one hurts not oneself. 'May the wives of the gods thine', he says, the wives of the gods made it first [1], verily with them he places it. 'May the Dhiseanas then', he says; the Dhiseanas are the sciences, verily he enkindles it with the sciences. 'May the wives thine' he says, the wives are the metres: verily with the wives he makes it cooked. 'May the protectors', he says; the protectors are the Hota's offices; verily with the Hota's offices he cooks it. 'May the women thine', he says, the women are the wives of the gods [2] verily with them he cooks it. With six (verses) he cooks; the seasons are six; verily with the seasons he cooks it. 'May they cook', he says twice, therefore twice in the year does the earth ripen. The pan when enkindled is connected with Varuna; he approaches it with (a verse) addressed to Mitra, for stonement. 'May the god Savitri dig thee out', he says; verily, instigated by Savitri, he digs it out with holy power and with the deities. 'Breaking not, O earth, fill the regions, the quarters' [3], he says, therefore Agni shines along all the quarters. 'Arise, become great, stand upright, be thou firm', he says, for support. A bowl that is not poured upon is connected with the Andras; he pours upon it; verily he makes it to be with the gods: with goats' milk he pours upon it, the milk of the goat is the highest form of draught, verily he pours upon it with the highest draught; (he pours) with a Yajus, for discrimination. He pours with the metres; with the metres it is made; verily with the metres he pours upon the metres.

v 1. 8. With^{*} twenty-one beans he approaches the head of the man; beans are impure, the man's head is impure; verily by the impure he redeems its impurity and making it pure takes it. There are twenty-one; man is composed of twenty-one parts; (verily they serve) to obtain man. The man's head is impure as bereft of the breaths; he deposits (it near) an ant-heap pierced in seven places; the breaths in the head are seven: verily he unites it with the breaths, to make it pure. Of all those [1] that were comrades of death Yama holds the overlordship, he sings the verses of Yama; verily from Yama he redeems it; with three he sings, three are these worlds; verily from these worlds he redeems it; therefore one should not give to one who sings, for the Gāthā appropriates it. To the fires he offers animals; the fires are desires; verily he wins his desires. If he were not to offer the animals, then he would not obtain animals [2]; if he were to let them go after circumambulation with fire, he would disturb the sacrifice; if he were to keep them until the conclusion,¹ the heads would be exhausted; in that he offers the animals, he wins thereby animals: in that he lets them go after circumambulation with fire, (it serves) to prevent the exhaustion of the heads; he concludes (the rite) with (an animal) for Prajāpati; Prajāpati is the sacrifice; verily he concludes the sacrifice in the sacrifice. Prajāpati created offspring, he thought himself empty, he saw these Āpri (verses), with them from the head [3] he satisfied himself. In that there are these Āpri verses, and Prajāpati is the sacrifice, he satisfies the sacrifice from the beginning with them. They are of unlimited metres; Prajāpati is unlimited; (verily they serve) to obtain Prajāpati. The pairs are deficient and redundant, for propagation; hairy by name is that metre of Prajāpati, animals are hairy; verily he wins animals. There are all forms in these; all forms are made when Agni has to be piled up, therefore these appertain to Agni, to be piled [4]. Twenty-one kindling-(verses) he repeats; the twenty-onefold (Stoma) is light; verily he attains light, and a support besides, for the twenty-onefold (Stoma) is support. Twenty-four (verses) he recites; the year has twenty-four half-months, Agni Vaiçvānara is the year; verily straightway he wins Vaiçvānara. He recites them straight on, for the world of heaven is as it were going straight away. 'Let the half-years, the seasons, increase thee, O Agni', he says; verily with the half-years he causes Agni to increase [5], with the seasons the year. 'Illuminate all the quarters of the earth', he says: therefore Agni illuminates all the quarters. 'The Aeqins removed death from him', he says; verily from him he repels death. 'We from the darkness', he says; the darkness is the evil one; verily from him he smites away the evil one. 'We have come to the highest light', he says; the highest light is yonder sun; verily he attains unity with the sun. The year lags not, his future fails not, for whom these are performed. The last he recites with the word 'light' in it; verily he bestows on him light above, to reveal the world of heaven.

v. 1. 9. With² six (verses) he consecrates; the seasons are six; verily he consecrates him with the seasons. With seven he consecrates; the metres are seven; verily he consecrates him with the metres. 'Let every man of the god that leads, with the final Anuyuddha he offers. The Anuyuddha is speech; therefore speech is the highest of the breaths. The first quarter foot is deficient by one syllable, therefore men live upon the incomplete part of speech.¹ He offers with a full foot for Prajāpati; if full were it were, (verily it serves) to obtain Prajāpati [1]; he offers with one that is deficient, for from the deficient Prajāpati created offspring. Verily it serves for the creation of offspring. If he were to heat it on the flames he would win what has been, if on the embers, what is to be; he heats it on the embers; verily he wins what is to be, for what is to be is greater than what has been. With two verses he heats (it), the sacrifice has two feet; (verily it serves) for support. The pan is gathered together with holy power and the Yajus; if it should break, the sacrificer would be ruined [2], and his sacrifice destroyed. 'O Mitra, do thou heat this pan', he says, Mitra is holy power; verily on holy power he establishes it; the sacrificer is not ruined, nor is his sacrifice destroyed. If it should break, he should unite it with the selfsame potsherds; that is the atonement for it. If a man has attained prosperity, he should for him deposit (the fire) after producing it by friction; this is one that has merit; verily he approaches his own deity [3]. For him who desires prosperity should be used (the fire) which comes to life from the pan, for from it is it produced, it is self-produced by name; verily he becomes prosperous. It is desire of a man. 'May I produce a son for him'; he should take for him (fire) from elsewhere, and deposit it; verily straightway he produces a son for him. From a frying-pan he should (take fire) and deposit (it) for one who desires food; in a frying pan food is kept, verily he wins food with its birthplace [4]. He deposits Muñja grass; Muñja is strength, verily he bestows upon him strength. Agni departed from the gods, he entered the Krumuka wood; he deposits Krumuka; verily he wins what of Agni is there imbibed. With butter he joins (it); butter is the dear home of Agni; verily he unites him with his dear abode, and with brilliance also [5]. He puts on (a stick) of Vikañkuta wood; verily he wins radiance, he puts on one of Cami, for atonement. 'Do thou sit down in the lap of this mother'; with three (verses) he adores (the fire) when born, three are these worlds; verily he attains reputation in these worlds; verily also he bestows breath on himself. v. 1. 10. Formerly² Agni would not burn what was not cut by the axe, but Prayoga, the seer, made that acceptable to him. 'Whatever logs are placed on thee', (with these words) he puts on a kindling-stick; verily he makes what is not cut by the axe acceptable to him; all is acceptable to him who knows thus. He puts on one of Udumbara wood; the Udumbara is strength; verily he confers strength upon him. Prajāpati created Agni; him on creation the Rakṣases [1] were fain to destroy; he saw that (hymn) of the Rakṣas-slaying (one); therewith he smote away the Rakṣases, in that it is (the hymn) of the Rakṣas-slaying one, thereby he drives away the Rakṣases from Agni when born. He puts on one of Aṣvattha wood; of trees the Aṣvattha is the overcomer of foes; (verily it serves) for victory. He puts on one of Vikañkata; verily he wins light. He puts on one of Čami wood, for atonement. 'Sharpened is my holy power', 'Their arms have I uplifted', (with these words) he makes him speak over the last two Udumbara (sticks) [2]; verily by means of the holy power he quickens the kingly power, and by the kingly power the holy power; therefore a Brahman who has a princely person is superior to another Brahman; therefore a prince who has a Brahman is superior to another prince. Now Agni is death, gold is immortality; he puts a gold plate within; verily he severs immortality from death; it has twenty-one projections, the worlds of the gods are twenty-one, the twelve months, the four seasons, these three worlds, and as twenty-first yonder sun [3]; so many are the worlds of the gods; verily from them he severs his foe. By means of the projections the gods reduced the Asuras to straits (nirbādhē); that is the reason why projections (nībhādhāḥ) have their names; it is covered with projections; verily he reduces his foes to straits. He puts (it) on with a verse addressed to Savitr, for instigation. 'Night and the dawn', with (this as) second; verily he raises him with day and night. 'The gods, granters of wealth, support Agni', he says; the gods, granters of wealth, are the breaths; verily having raised him with day and night [4] he supports him with the breaths. Sitting he puts (it) on; therefore offspring are born sitting; the black antelope skin is above; gold is brilliance, the black antelope skin is holy power; verily on both sides he encircles him, with brilliance and with holy power. The sling is of six fathoms in extent; the seasons are six; verily he raises him with the seasons; if it is of twelve fathoms, (he raises him) with the year. It is of Muñja grass; the Muñja is strength; verily he unites him with strength. 'Thou art the bird of fair feathers', (with these words) he gazes, verily he declares his greatness in that form. 'Go to the sky, fly to the heaven', he says; verily he makes him to go to the world of heaven.

The Horse Sacrifice

The Apri Hymn for the Horse Sacrifice

Enkindled,¹ decking the storeroom of prayers,
Swelling with sweet butter, O Agni,
Steed bearing the strong drink, O all-knower,
Carry it to the dear place of the gods.
With ghee adorning the paths leading to the gods,
Let the strong one, wise, go to the gods;
May thee, O courser, the religious attend,
Bestow strength on this sacrificer.²
To be praised thou art, and to be celebrated, O steed!
Swift and pure art thou, O coursing!—
May Agni in unison with the gods, the Varuna, Bear then,³ a glad messenger, he the all-knower.
Rejoicing in the strown grass, well strewed,
That doth extend wide and broad on the earth,
Joined with the gods, may Aditi in unison,
Bestowing pleasantness, cause it to prosper.
These happy (doors), all formed,
Opening with their sides, with the centre,
Lofty and sounding, adorning themselves.
The doors divine, may they be of pleasant entrance.⁴

PRAPĀTHAKA II

The Preparation of the Ground for the Fire

v. 2. 1. Headed⁵ by Viṣṇu the gods won finally these worlds by the metres ; in that he strides the strides of Viṣṇu, the sacrificer becoming Viṣṇu wins finally these worlds. ‘Thou art the step of Viṣṇu, overcoming hostility’, he says ; the earth is connected with the Gāyatrī, the atmosphere with the Triṣṭubh, the sky with the Jagatī, the quarters with the Anuṣṭubh ; verily he wins in order these worlds with the metres. Prajapati created Agni ; he being created went away from him [1] ; he followed him with this (verse), ‘He hath cried’ ; with it he won the home dear to Agni ; in that he repeats this (verse), he wins thereby the home dear to Agni. Now he who steps the strides of Viṣṇu is apt as he goes away to be burnt up ; he turns with four (verses) ; the metres are four, Agni’s dear body is the metres, verily he turns round on his dear body [2] ; he turns round from left to right ; verily he turns round on his own strength ; therefore the right side of the body is the stronger : verily also does he turn with the turning of the sun. Varuna seized Çunahçepa Ajigarti, he saw this verse addressed to Varuna, by it he freed himself from the noose of Varuna : Varuna seizes him who takes the fire-pan; 'From us the highest knot, O Varuna', he says; verily thereby he frees himself from Varuna's noose [3]. 'I have drawn thee', he says, for he draws him. 'Be thou firm and motionless', he says, for support. 'Let all the folk desire thee', he says; verily with the folk he unites him. 'In him establish the kingdom', he says; verily in him he makes the kingdom to abide. If he desire of a man, 'May he be a ruler', he should think of him with his mind; verily he becomes a ruler [4]. - In greatness he hath risen erect in the van of the dawns', he says; verily he makes him the first of his peers. 'Emerging from the darkness', he says; verily he suites away darkness from him. 'He hath come with the light', he says; verily he bestows light upon him. He places him with four (verses), the metres are four; verily with the metres (he places him); with an Atichandas as the last; the Atichandas is the highest of metres; verily he makes him the highest of his peers; it contains [5] the word 'sit' (sit);¹ verily he makes him attain reality (sat-trām).² With (the hymn) of Vatsapri he reverences (him); by that did Vatsapri Bhalandana win the home dear to Agni; verily by it he wins the home dear to Agni. It has eleven (verses); verily in eleven places he bestows strength on the sacrificer. By the Stoma the gods prospered in this world, by the metres in yonder world; the hymn of Vatsapri is the type of the Stoma; in that he pays reverence with (the hymn) of Vatsapri [6], he wins with it this world; in that he strides the steps of Viṣṇu, he wins by them yonder world. On the first day he strides forth, on the next day he pays reverence; therefore the minds of some creatures are set on energy, those of others on rest; therefore the active lords it over him who takes his ease,³ therefore the active fixes upon a man who takes his ease. He clenches his fist, he restrains his speech, for support.

v. 2.2. 'O⁴ lord of food, accord us food', he says; the lord of food is Agni; verily he grants him food. 'Uninjurious, impetuous', he says, he means in fact 'free from disease'. 'Do thou further the donor, bestow doning any desire to supply new utensils, determines to tend with reverence, &c., the existing means, the fire in the pan, &c.! Presumably the real parallel is A.B. vii. 16. 8: des bhāg pātīmāga... carat carat bhāg.

strength on our bipeds, our quadrupeds', he says; verily he invokes this blessing. 'May the All-gods bear thee up', he says; the All-gods are the breaths [1]; verily with the breaths he raises him. 'O Agni, with their thoughts', he says; with the purpose¹ for which he raises him, he verily unites him. He places (him) with four (verses); the metres are four; verily with the metres (he places him); with an Atichandas as the last; the Atichandas is the highest of the metres; verily he makes him the highest of his peers; it contains the word 'sit' (sat); verily he makes him attain reality (sat-trám).² 'Come forward, O Agni, rich in light' [2], he says; verily he bestows light upon him. With his body he injures him whom he injures; 'Harm not our offspring with thy body', he says; verily for his offspring he makes him gentle. The Rakṣases infest that sacrifice where the axle creaks; 'He hath cried', he repeats,³ to smite away the Rakṣases. They bear (him) with a cart; verily he confers honour upon him; therefore he that has a cart and he that has a chariot are of guests [3] the most honoured; honour is his who knows thus. 'With kindling-wood serve Agni'. (with these words) he puts a kindling-stick, made wet with ghee, upon him when put in place; that is as when hospitality with melted butter is offered to a guest on arrival; (he puts it on) with a Gāyatri for a Brahman, for the Brahman is connected with the Gāyatri, with a Trisṭubh for a Rājanya, for the Rājanya is connected with the Trisṭubh. He casts the ash into the waters: Agni's place of birth is in the waters; verily he makes him attain his own place of birth; with three (verses) he casts (it); Agni is threefold [4]; verily he makes Agni attain support through all his extent. Now he casts away Agni who puts the ash into the waters; he places it (in the pan) with (verses) containing the word 'light'; verily he bestows light upon him; with two (he places it), for support. He throws away offspring and cattle who puts the ash in the waters; 'Return with strength', 'With wealth', (with these words) he comes back;⁴ verily he bestows upon himself offspring and cattle. 'May the Ādityas [5], the Rudras, the Vasus kindle thee again', he says; these deities first kindled him; verily by them he kindles him. 'Hearken', 'Be thou', (with these words) he pays reverence, verily he awakens him; therefore after sleeping creatures awake. In his place he pays reverence, and therefore cattle returning go to their place.

⁴ The sense must be as indicated in the comm. and in the Sūtras, that after the replacing of the ash, with the water pressed out, the fire is placed again in the pan; probably Agni is the subject of udasti, from ud + a + sti.

v. 2.3. Yama¹ holds the overlordship of the whole extent of earth; he who without asking from Yama a place of it for divine sacrifice piles up the fire is piling it for Yama. 'Go hence', (with these words) he makes him fix (on the place); verily having asked from Yama a place of it for divine sacrifice, he piles the fire for himself. Seeking they could not find so much as an arrow point of it which was not covered with death; the gods saw this Yajus. 'Go hence': in that he makes him fix with this [1], he piles the fire on a place freed from death. He throws up (the earth), verily he smites away any impurity in it; he sprinkles water on, for atonement. He puts down sand; that is the form of Agni Vaicvānara; verily by his form he wins Vaicvānara. He puts down salt; salt is the nourishment and the propagating; verily he piles the fire in nourishment, in propagation, and also in concord;² for the salt is the concord [2] of cattle. Sky and earth were together; separating they said, 'Let us share together what is worthy of sacrifice'. What of yonder (sky) was worthy of sacrifice, it placed in this (earth), that became salt; what of this (earth) was worthy of sacrifice, it placed in yonder (sky) and that is yonder black in the moon, when he puts down the salt he should think of yonder (black); verily he piles the fire in that of sky and earth which is worthy of sacrifice. 'This is that Agni' is Viçvāmitra's [3] hymn: by that Viçvāmitra won the abode dear to Agni; verily by it he wins the abode dear to Agni. By the metres the gods went to the world of heaven, he places four (bricks) pointing east,³ the metres are four; verily by the metres the sacrificer goes to the world of heaven. As they went to the world of heaven, the quarters were confused, they put down two in front, facing the same way, and two [4] behind, facing the same way: by them they made firm the quarters. In that he places two in front, facing the same way, and two behind, facing the same way, (it serves) to make firm the quarters; again, the metres are cattle; verily he makes cattle available⁴ for him. He places eight (bricks); the Gāyatrī has eight syllables, Agni is connected with the Gāyatrī; verily he piles Agni in his full extent. He places eight; the Gāyatrī has eight syllables: the

QB. vii. 1. 1. 2-38. This motion explains the Mantras in TS. xv. 2. 4, which deal with the piling of the Garhapatya altar.

² QB. vii. 1. 1. 7, 8 takes samīkṣa in its usual sense of concord; Skāya on this passage thinks 'recognition' by the cattle of the saline earth.

³ On the view of Ap. (see p. 477, n. 1) the bricks are placed in a row to the east, and in that case samsīkṣa necessarily means that the two are placed at the end also pointing east. If the reference on the other hand is to the position of the lines, then the sense is with the lines on the bricks running west to east, as in the figure in Eggeling, HBE. xii. 802; which is not quite certain in sense, but probably it means that the bricks in this case also run from west to east, since in ApS. xvi. 14. 6 samsīkṣa is opposed to śānti.

Gāyatri knows in truth the world of heaven; (verily it serves) to reveal the world of heaven [5]. He places thirteen world-filers; they make twenty-one, the twenty-onfold Stoma is a support, the Gārhapatya is a support; verily he finds support in the support of the twenty-onfold (Stoma), the Gārhapatya; he who knows thus finds support in the fire which he has piled. He who first piles (the fire) should pile in five layers; the sacrifice is fivefold, cattle are fivefold; verily he wins the sacrifice and cattle. He who piles for a second time should pile in three layers; these worlds are three; verily he finds support [6] in these worlds. He who piles for a third time should pile in one layer; the world of heaven is in one place; verily he goes to the world of heaven by the single (layer). He makes (them) firm with mortar;¹ therefore the bone is covered with meat. he who knows thus does not become diseased of skin. There are five layers, he makes firm with five (sets of) dust; they make up ten, the Virāj has ten syllables, the Virāj is food; verily he finds support in the Virāj, in proper food.

v 2. 4. The² Agni that was before and the one in the fire-pan are at variance. 'Be united', with four (verses) he unites them together; the metres are four, Agni's dear body is the metres; verily with his dear body he puts them in order. 'Be united', he says; therefore the kingly power unites with the holy power; in that after uniting (them) he separates (them), therefore the holy power separates from the kingly power. With the seasons [1] they consecrate him; with the seasons likewise he must be set free; 'As a mother her son, the earth Agni of the dust', he says; verily having consecrated him with the seasons, with the season he sets him free. With (a verse) addressed to Vaiçvānara, he takes the sling; verily he makes it ready. For Nirṛti there are three (bricks) black, dried by a chaff fire; chaff is the portion of Nirṛti, black is the form of Nirṛti; verily by her own form he propitiates Nirṛti. They go to this³ quarter; this [2] is the quarter of Nirṛti; verily in her own quarter he propitiates Nirṛti. He places (it) in a self-made hole or a cleft; that is the abode of Nirṛti; verily he propitiates Nirṛti in her own abode. He places (them) over against⁴ the sling, the noose is connected with Nirṛti; verily he frees him straightway from the noose of Nirṛti. He places three, man is threefold in arrangement; verily he removes by sacrifice Nirṛti from the whole extent of man. He places them going away (from the place of sacrifice); verily he drives away Nirṛti from him [3]. They return without looking round, to conceal Nirṛti. Having purified, they pay reverence for purity. To the Gārhapatya they pay reverence, verily having wandered in the world of Nirṛti, they return, purified, to the world of the gods. They pay reverence with one (verse); verily in one place they bestow strength on the sacrificer. 'Abode and collector of riches', he says; rich are offspring and cattle; verily he unites him with offspring and cattle.

⁴ Probably abhi governs prīgīm and upā dadhāt; is the verb, abhi the comm. evidently takes it.

v. 2. 5. With¹ man's measure he metes out; man is commensurate with the sacrifice. verily he metes him with² member of the sacrifice, so great is he as a man with arms extended; so much strength is there in man, verily with strength he metes him. Winged is he, for wingless he could not fly: these wings are longer by an ell; therefore birds have strength by their wings.² The wings and the tail are a fathom in breadth, so much is the strength in man [1], he is commensurate in strength. He metes with a bamboo, ³the bamboo is connected with Agni, (verily it serves) to unite him with his birthplace. With a Yajus he yokes (the team), with a Yajus he ploughs, for discrimination. He ploughs with a (team) of six oxen, the seasons are six: verily with the seasons he ploughs him. In that (he ploughs) with (a team) of twelve oxen, the ploughs with the year. This (earth) was afraid of excessive burning by Agni, she saw this of two sorts, ploughed and unploughed [2], then indeed he did not burn her excessively, in that there is ploughed and unploughed, (it serves to prevent) her being excessively burned. 'He should restrain Agni when twofold', they say³, in that there is ploughed and unploughed (it serves) to restrain Agni. So many are animals, bipeds and quadrupeds; if he were to let them loose to the east, he would give them over to Rudra; if to the south, he would deliver them to the Piṛis; if to the west, the Rakṣasas would destroy them: to the north he let them loose; this is the auspicious quarter⁴ of gods and men (3); verily he lets them loose in that direction. Again he lets them loose to this quarter, the breath is yonder sun: verily he lets them loose following the breath. From left to right they turn around

² The sense is probably as given; possibly the intention is that the wings are greater than (the body of) the birds, for in any case the compound is a curious

their own strength they turn ; therefore the right side of the body is the stronger ; verily they turn with the turning of the sun.¹ Therefore cattle depart from (us), and come back towards (us). Three by three he ploughs the furrows [4] ; verily he extends the threefold (Stoma) in the beginning of the sacrifice. He scatters plants, by holy power he wins food, in the Arka the Arka is piled.² With fourteen verses he scatters ; the domesticated plants are seven, the wild are seven ; (verily they serve) to win both sets.³ He scatters (seeds) of diverse kinds of food, to win diverse foods. He scatters on the ploughed (ground), for in the ploughed plants find support. He scatters along the furrows, for propagation. In twelve⁴ furrows he scatters ; the year has twelve months : verily with the year he cooks food for him. If he who piles the fire [5] should eat of what has not been obtained,⁵ he would be separated from what has been obtained. Those trees which bear fruit he should sprinkle in the kindling-wood, to obtain what has not been obtained. From the quarters he gathers clods ; verily winning the strength of the quarters, he piles the fire in the strength of the quarters ; he should take a clod from the quarter where is he whom he hates, (saying), 'Food and strength do I take hence' ; verily he wins from that quarter food and strength, and hungry is he who is in that quarter. He scatters over the high altar, for on the high altar is the fire piled : the high altar is cattle ; verily he wins cattle ; (verily it serves) for the avoidance of passing over a limb of the sacrifice.

v. 2. 6. 'O' Agni, strength and fame are thine', (with these words) he scatters sand, that is the hymn of Agni Vaiçvānara ; verily with the hymn he wins (Agni) Vaiçvānara. With six (verses) he scatters ; the year has six seasons, Agni Vaiçvānara is the year ; verily straightway he wins Vaiçvānara. This metre is called the ocean ; offspring are born like the ocean ;

² Very possibly the plant arka is referred to here, though it is not certain, and the sense may merely be, as in Nāyanā, caranya shava rāmanya upati. For arka as bright, cf. Bṛagagnā, Iti. Vetus. i. 279, with Bloomfield, 211 M. 1, viii. 570, and for the Arka and A-yamadīva as sacrifices, below v. 3. 4. 6 ; 4. 3. 3.

⁷ The metres of the hymn are given as follows by the comm. : a is a Vistūrapāṅkti, as 8+11+11+8, and not 8+12+12+1 as in Chandas, iii. 42 ; as a matter of fact both 11's are really 12's ; b is a Padapāṅkti as being 12+8+8+12 (the metre is in that he scatters sand with this (shyam), it is) for the propagation of offspring? Indra [1] hurled his bolt at Vṛtra; it parted into three, one-third the wooden sword, one-third the chariot, one-third the sacrificial post; the interior reeds which were crushed became gravel; this is the explanation of gravel; gravel is a thunderbolt, the fire is an animal in that he supports the fire with gravel, he encircles with the bolt cattle for him; therefore cattle are encircled with the bolt; therefore the stronger does not receive the weaker.¹ He should support (the fire) with twenty-one (pieces of gravel) for one who desires cattle [2]; there are seven breaths in the head, cattle are the breaths, verily he wins cattle for him by the breaths. With twenty-seven (should he support it) for one who has foes; thus making the threefold bolt he hurls it at his foe, to lay him low. He should support (it) with unnumbered ones, to win what is unnumbered. If he desire of a man, 'May he be without cattle', then without piling the gravel in support, he should separate the sand; verily he pours forth for him the seed on all sides in (a place) not encircled; verily he becomes without cattle [3]. If he desire of a man, 'May he be rich in cattle,' he should separate the sand, after piling the gravel, verily he pours forth for him the seed in one direction in an encircled (place) and he becomes rich in cattle. With (a verse) addressed to Soma he separates (the sand). Soma is impregnator of seed; verily he impregnates seed; with a Gāyatri for a Brahman, for the Brahman is connected with the Gāyatri, with a Trisṭubh for a Rājanya, for the Rājanya is connected with the Trisṭubh. To Āṇavī, son of Bhṛaspati, the sacrifice did not resort; it entered the fire [4]; it departed from the fire in the form of a black antelope; it entered the horse. It became the intermediate hoof² of the horse; in that he makes the horse advance, he wins the sacrifice which has entered the horse. 'By Prajapati must the fire be piled', they say, the horse is connected with Prajapati in that he makes the horse advance. By Prajapati he piles the fire. He puts down a lotus leaf: the lotus leaf is the birthplace of the fire, verily he piles the fire with its own birthplace. 'Thou art the back of the waters, (with these words) he puts (it) down; the lotus leaf is the back of the waters, verily with its form he puts it down.

disk. Prajāpati created creatures with the Brahman class as first; verily the sacrificer creates offspring with the Brahman as first; 'the holy power born', he says; therefore the Brahman is the first; the first he becomes who knows thus. The theologians say, 'Nor on earth, nor in the atmosphere, nor on sky should the fire be piled'; if he were to pile (it) on earth, he would afflict the earth with pain; nor trees, nor plants would [1] be born; if he should pile (it) in the atmosphere, he would afflict the atmosphere with pain, the birds would not be born; if he should pile (it) in the sky, he would afflict the sky with pain, Parjanya would not rain. He puts down a gold disk: gold is immortality; verily in immortality he piles the fire, for propagation. He puts down a golden man, to support the world of the sacrificer; if he were to put it over the perforation in the brick, he would obstruct the breath of cattle and of the sacrificer; he puts it down on the south side [2] with head to the east: he supports the world of the sacrificer; he does not obstruct the breath of cattle and the sacrificer. Or rather he does place it over the perforation of the brick, to allow the breath to pass out.¹ 'The drop hath fallen'; (with these words) he touches it; verily he establishes it in the Hotr's offices. He puts down two ladles, one made of Kārymarya and full of butter, one of Udumbara and full of curds; that made of Karsmarya is this (earth), that of Udumbara is yonder (sky); verily he deposits these two (earth and sky) [3]. In silence he puts (them) down, for he should not obtain them with a Yajus; the Kārymarya on the south, the Udumbara on the north; therefore is yonder (sky) higher than this (earth); the Kārymarya filled with butter, the butter is a thunderbolt, the Karsmarya is a thunderbolt; verily by the thunderbolt he smites away the Rakṣases from the south of the sacrifice; the Udumbara filled with curds, curds are cattle, the Udumbara is strength; verily he confers strength upon cattle. He puts (them) down filled; verily filled they wait on him [4] in yonder world. 'In the Virāj should the fire be piled', they say; the Virāj is the ladle; in that he puts down two ladles, he piles Agni in the Virāj. As each beginning of the sacrifice is being performed, the Rakṣases seek to destroy the sacrifice; the golden disk is a beginning of the sacrifice; in that he pours butter over the gold disk, he smites away the Rakṣases from the beginning of the sacrifice. With five (verses) he pours butter; the sacrifice is fivefold; verily he smites away the Rakṣases from the whole extent of the sacrifice; he pours butter transversely; therefore animals move their limbs transversely, for support.

perforated brick is this (earth); verily he puts down the (earth). He makes the horse sniff it, verily he bestows breath upon it; now the horse is connected with Prajāpati; verily he piles the fire with Prajāpati. The first brick that is put down obstructs the breath of cattle and of the sacrificer; it is a naturally perforated one, to permit the breath to pass, and also to reveal the world of heaven. 'In the fire must the fire be piled', they say; the Brahman [1] is Agni Vaiçvānara, and to him should he hand over the first brick over which a Yajus has been recited; with the Brahman he should deposit it;¹ verily in the fire he piles the fire. Now he who ignorantly puts down a brick is liable to experience misfortune. Three boons should he give, the breaths are three; (verily they serve) to guard the breaths; two only should be given, for the breaths are two; one only should be given, for the breath is one. The fire is an animal here [2], animals do not find pleasure in want of grass: a brick of Dūrvā grass he puts down, to support animals; with two (verses), for support. 'Arising from every stem', he says, for it finds support with every stem: 'do thou, O Dūrvā, extend us with a thousand, a hundred', he says: Prajāpati is connected with a thousand; (verily it serves) to obtain Prajāpati. The fact that it has three lines on it is a mark of the gods; the gods put it down with the mark uppermost, the Asuras with the mark undermost [3] if he desire of a man, 'May he become richer', he should put it down for him mark uppermost; verily he becomes richer; if he desire of a man, 'May he become worse off', he should put his down mark undermost, verily he makes him depressed in accordance with its birthplace among the Asuras, and he becomes worse off. (The brick) has three lines on it;² that with three lines is these worlds; verily he excludes its foe from these worlds.
 When the Angirases went to the world of heaven, the sacrificial cake becoming a tortoise crawled after them [4]; in that he puts down a tortoise, just as one who knows a place leads straight (to it), so the tortoise leads him straight to the world of heaven. The tortoise is the intelligence of animals; in that he puts down the tortoise, animals resort there, seeing their own intelligence; in that the heads of the dead animals are deposited, a burial-ground is made; in that he puts down the living tortoise, he is no maker of a burial-ground, the tortoise is suitable for a dwelling [5]. 'To the pious the winds honey', (with these words) he anoints with curds, mixed with honey: verily he makes him ready, curds is a food of the village, honey of the wild; in that he anoints with curds mixed with honey, (it serves) to win both. 'May the two great ones, heaven and earth', he says; verily with them he encircles him on both sides. He puts it down to the east,¹ to attain the world of heaven; he puts it down to the east facing west; therefore [6] to the east facing west the animals attend the sacrifice. If he² piles the fire without a navel, (the fire) enters the navel of the sacrificer, and is liable to injure him. He puts down the mortar; this is the navel of the fire; verily he piles the fire with its navel, to avoid injury. (The mortar) is of Udumbara wood; the Udumbara is strength; verily he wins strength; in the middle he puts it down; verily in the middle he bestows strength upon him; therefore in the middle men enjoy strength. So large is it, commensurate with Prajapati, the mouth of the sacrifice. He pounds; verily he makes food; he puts (it) down with (a verse) addressed to Viṣṇu; the sacrifice is Viṣṇu, the trees are connected with Viṣṇu; verily in the sacrifice he establishes the sacrifice.

v. 2. 9. The³ pan is the concentrated light of these lights; in that he puts down the pan, verily he wins the light from these worlds; in the middle he puts (it) down: verily he bestows upon it light; therefore in the middle we reverence the light; with sand he fills (it); that is the form of Agni Vaiçvānara, verily by his form he wins Vaiçvānara. If he desire of a man, 'May he become hungry', he should put down for one (a pan) deficient in size [1]; if he desire of a man, 'May he eat food that fails not', he should put it down full; verily he eats food that fails not. The man accords a thousand of cattle, the other animals a thousand; in the middle he puts down the head of the man, to give it strength. In the pan he puts (it) down; verily he makes it attain support; the head of the man is impure as devoid of breaths; the breaths are immortality [2], gold is immortality; on the (organs of the) breaths he hurls chips of gold; verily he makes it attain support, and unites it with the breaths. He fills (it) with curds mixed with honey, (saying) 'May I be fit to drink honey'; (he fills with curds) to be curdled with hot milk, for purity. The curds are the food of the village, honey of the wild; in that he fills (it) with curds mixed with honey, (it serves) to win both. He puts down the heads of the animals; the heads of the animals are cattle; verily he wins cattle. If he desire of a man, 'May

² Here of course yā has no correlation at all, implied or expressed, for it does not refer to gajamānasya but to the Adhvaryu acting for him; cf. Delbrück, Altind. Synt. p. 568.

* Cf. KS. xx. 7, 8; KapS. xxxii. 9, 10; MS. ii. 2, 7; CB. vii. 5. 1. 26-2, 26. This section explains the Mantras in TS. iv. 2. 10 as to the putting down of the pan, &c.

he have no cattle [3], he should put them down looking away from him, verily he makes cattle look away from him; he becomes without cattle. If he desire of a man, 'May he be rich in cattle', he should put (them) down looking with (the man's head); verily he makes the cattle look with him, he becomes rich in cattle. He puts (the heads) of the boars in the east looking west, that of the bull in the west looking east, the beasts other than the oxen and the horses are not beasts at all: verily he makes the oxen and the horses look with him. So many are the animals [4], bipeds and quadrupeds; them indeed he puts down in the fire, in that he puts down the heads of the animals. 'I appoint for thee N.N. of the forest', he says; verily from the cattle of the village he sends pain to those of the wild; therefore of animals born at one time the animals of the wild are the smaller, for they are afflicted with pain. He puts down the head of a snake; verily he wins the brilliance that is in the snake [5]. If he were to put it down looking with the heads of the animals, (the snakes) would bite the animals of the village: if turned away, those of the wild; he should speak a Yajus, he wins the brilliance that is in the snake, he injures not the animals of the village, nor those of the wild. Or rather should it be put down, in that he puts down, thereby he wins the brilliance that is in the serpent; in that he utters a Yajus, thereby is it appeased.

The First Layer of Bricks

v. 2. 10. The ¹ fire is an animal, now the birthplace of the animal is changed in that before the putting up of the bricks the Yajus is performed. The water bricks are seed; he puts down the water bricks; verily he places seed in the womb. Five he puts down (on the east),² cattle are fivefold; verily he produces cattle for him; five on the south, the water bricks are the thunderbolt; verily with the thunderbolt he drives away the Rakshases from the south of the sacrifice; five he puts down on the west [1], pointing east;³ seed is impregnated in front from behind; verily from behind

² S; QB. vii. 5. 2. 40+vi. 1. 4. 2. This section explains the Mantras of TS. iv. 8. 1. 1-8 of the Apasyā, Prapathīt, and Apānabhr̥t (here Samyat) bricks.

⁴ Two explanations are possible, of which the latter is probably superior. (1) The brick has three lines on it, and the lines run east to west, or north to south; that might be the reference of pratiA, as of course there is no sense in which a square brick can be said to face east rather than west, according to Eddering (ABE. xliii. 18. n. 4) the rule is that the lines run parallel to the adjacent spines of the altar, and therefore that the bricks to the east and west have their lines lengthwise and the bricks to the south and north have

he deposits seed for him in front. Five he puts down on the east, pointing west; five on the west pointing east; therefore seed is impregnated in front, offspring are born at the back. On the north he puts down five metre bricks: the metre bricks are cattle; verily he brings cattle on birth to his own dwelling. This (earth) was afraid of excessive burning by the fire; she saw these [2] water bricks she put them down, then (the fire) did not burn her excessively: in that he puts down the water bricks, (it is) to avoid excessive burning. She said 'He shall eat food with holy power,¹ for whom these shall be put down, and he who shall know them thus.' He puts down the breath-supporting (bricks); verily he places the breaths in the seed; therefore an animal is born with speech, breath, sight, and hearing. 'This one in front [3], the existent'; (with these words) he puts down on the east; verily with these he supports breath. 'This one on the right, the all-worker', (with these words he puts down) on the south; verily with these he supports mind. 'This one behind, the all-extending', (with these words he puts down) on the west; verily with these he supports sight. 'This one on the left, the light', (with these words he puts down) on the north; verily with these he supports hearing. 'This one above, thought'; (with these words he puts down) above: verily with these he supports speech. Ten by ten he puts (them) down, to give strength. Transversely² [4] he puts (them) down; therefore transversely do animals move their limbs, for support. With those (put down) on the east Vasiṣṭha prospered, with those on the south³ Bharadvāja, with those on the west Viçvāmitra, with those on the north Jamadagni, with those above Viçvakarman. He who knows thus the prosperity in these (bricks) prospers; he who knows thus their relationship becomes rich in relations; he who knows thus their ordering, (things) go them across. But it seems more natural to assume that the bricks had all their lines marked in the same way (with square bricks it is not possible to distinguish between length and crosswise as they are identical), and when non-square bricks were used, the lines would be on the long side, and the use of east or west and north or south as descriptions would show which way the head of the brick turned; in the case of square bricks the words would merely show which way the base turned. For cases of non-square bricks in the GB, cf. Eggeling, p. 21, n. 1, according to whom these bricks are laid with their long sides east and west and the lines crosswise. '2' As in Ap. (see p. 477, n. 1) pratī means facing east, and the bricks are put down on the west running to the east and vice versa.

¹ brhmaṇī here and in v. 4. 2. 2 is according to Weber (Ind. Stud. ix. 351, and in his note here) perhaps = 'reichlich'. This is, however, not necessary, though the schol. has mukhyāya yātā. The same phrase is used in KS. but not in MS., which has merely annāda bhārati. MS. and KS. have upadādhātai and upadāhyante respectively, but the subj. in TS. is obviously better than the indic. of KS. The text of MS. should obviously be corrected to read dad for yād, which is nonsense.

* The point is that the work begins in the east, then south, &c., diagonally. This is compared with the gait of cattle.

² For the frequent use of dakṣinā see vi. 1. 1. 1; 5. 2; Weber, Ind. Stud. xiii. 111.

orderly [5] for him; he who knows thus their abode becomes possessed of an abode; he who knows thus their support becomes possessed of support. Having put down the breath-supporters he puts down the unifying (bricks), verily having deposited in him the breaths he unites them with the unifying (bricks); that is why the unifying have their name. Then too he puts inspiration upon expiration; therefore expiration and inspiration move together. He puts (them) down pointing in different directions, therefore expiration and inspiration go in different directions. The un-unified part of the fire [6] is not worthy of heaven, the fire is worthy of heaven; in that he puts down the unifying (bricks), he unifies it; verily he makes it worthy of heaven. 'The eighteen-month-old calf the strength, the Kṛta of throws at dice', he says; verily by the strengths he wins the throws, and by the throws the strengths. On all sides (these verses) have the word 'wind', and therefore the (wind) blows on all sides.

PRAPĀTHAKA III

The Second and Later Layers of Bricks

v. 3. 1. Now¹ this fire (ritual) is an extensive² sacrifice; what part of it is performed or what not? The part of the sacrifice which is performed that is omitted becomes rotten; he puts down the Agvins (bricks), the Agvins are the physicians of the gods, verily by them he produces medicine for it. Five he puts down; the sacrifice is fivefold; verily it produces medicine for the whole extent of the sacrificer. He puts down the seasonal (bricks), to arrange the seasons [1]. Five he puts down—the seasons are five, verily he arranges the seasons in their whole number. They begin and end alike;³ therefore the seasons are alike—they differ in one fact—therefore the seasons differ likewise. He puts down the breath-supporters; verily he places the breaths in the months; therefore being alike the seasons do not grow old; moreover he generates them. The breath is the wind; in that having put down the seasonal (bricks) he puts down the breath-supporters [2], therefore the wind accompanies all the seasons. He puts down the rain-winners; verily he wins rain. If he were to put them down in one place, then would fall rain in one season only; he puts them down after carrying them round in order;⁴ therefore it rains in all the seasons. Since

² The sense is not certain; in ĀB. ii. 5. 2. 48 it is applied with an it to the four monthly sacrifices, and Eggeling there (SBE. xlii. 407) renders it 'detached'; in ĀB. xlii. 3. 3. 8, which is parallel with v. 4. 12. 3 below, it is said of the Agvamedha, and Eggeling (SBE. xlii. 384) thinks that it means 'dissolved', but suggests that it may mean 'decayed', and (ibid. 591) corrects to 'detached', as in ii. 5. 2. 48. Śkyāna here takes the view that because of the number of portions of the rite by error some part is regularly overlooked. But the sense seems possibly to be that it is an obsolescent rite, one which is not necessarily now known in its fullness; this sense is supported by the note in CGS. xlii. 6. 2 of an rite in the Mahāvratā as ted ṣaṇḍaṇa uttarām na kṛityam, where the additional member renders the sense reasonable. So with the Caturmāsyam; they are not part of everyday life, and the Brahmapurushas would seem to represent for us the period of the efforts to preserve in its fullness an obsolescent ritual tradition. More probable, however, is the sense 'extincted', 'obsolete', which suits all the passages sufficiently well; see Kielh, ZD. 2. 1. xvi. 729.

³ This is a reference to the Mantra, iv. 3. 4/5, where the bricks have each the whole in common, except the specific deity aparavṛtta, &c. The seasons differ by name as do the bricks. Though rather far-fetched, the sense might clearly meant.

having put down the breath-supporters he puts down the rain-winners, therefore the rain starts from the sky, impelled downwards by the wind. The strengthening (bricks) are cattle; cattle have various purposes and various customs, but only as regards water are they of one purpose [3], if he desire of a man, 'May he be without cattle', he should put down for him the strengthening (bricks) and then put down the water (bricks); verily he makes discord for him with cattle; verily he becomes without cattle. If he desire of a man, 'May he possess cattle', he should put down for him the water (bricks) and then put down the strengthening (bricks); verily he makes concord for him with cattle and he becomes possessed of cattle. He puts down four in front; therefore the eye has four forms, two white, two black [4]. The (verses) contain the word 'head'; therefore the head (of the fire) is in front. Five he puts down in the right hip, five in the left; therefore the animal is broader behind and receding in front; 'The goat in strength', (with these words he puts down) on the right shoulder; (with) 'The ram in strength', on the left; verily he puts together the shoulders (of the fire). 'The tiger in strength', (with these words) he puts down in the right wing, (with) 'The lion in strength' on the left, verily he gives strength to the wings. (With) 'The man in strength' (he puts down) in the middle; therefore man is overlord of animals.

v. 3.2. 'O¹ Indra and Agni, (the brick) that quaketh not', (with these words) he puts down the naturally perforated (brick); these worlds are separated by Indra and Agni; (verily it serves) to separate these worlds. Now the middle layer is, as it were, insecure, it is as it were the atmosphere; 'Indra and Agni', he says; Indra and Agni are the supporters of force among the gods; verily he piles it with force in the atmosphere, for support. He puts down the naturally perforated (brick); the naturally perforated (brick) is the atmosphere; verily he puts down the atmosphere [1]. He makes the horse sniff it; verily he puts breath in it; now the horse is connected with Prajāpati; verily by Prajāpati he piles the fire. It is a naturally perforated (brick), to allow the passage of the breaths, and also for the lighting up of the world of heaven. When the gods went to the world of heaven, the quarters were in confusion; they saw these regional (bricks), they put them down, and by them they made firm the quarters; in that he put down the regional bricks, (it is) to support the quarters. Ten breath-supporters he places in the east [2]; the breaths in man are nine, the navel is the tenth; verily he places the breaths in front; therefore the breaths are in front. He puts down the as w t w r t light therefore speech, which is the last, i.e. the light of the metres. He puts down ten, the Viraj has ten syllables, the light of the metres is the Viraj, verily he puts the light in the east; therefore we cover the light in the east. The metres run a race for the cattle, the Brhati wins them, therefore cattle are called connected with the Brhati (3). 'Ma in tra' (with these words) he puts down on the south; therefore the metres turn southwards; (with) 'Earth metre' (he puts down) on the west, for support (with) 'Agri, the deity' (he puts down) on the north. Agri is might, verily on the north he places might, therefore he that advances to the north is victorious. They make up thirty-six: the Brhati has thirty-six syllables, cattle are connected with the Brhati; verily by the Brhati he wins cattle for him. The Brhati holds the sovereignty of the metres; he for whom these [4] are put down attains sovereignty. He puts down seven Vah khilya (bricks) in the east, seven in the west, in the head there are seven breaths, two below: (verily they serve) to give the breaths strength. 'The head thou art, ruling' (with these words) he puts down on the east, 'Thou art the prop ruling' (with these words) he puts down on the west, verily he makes the breaths accordant for him.

v 8. 3. Whatever¹ the gods did at the sacrifice the Asuras did. The gods saw these Akṣayāstomiyā (bricks), they put them down on one place after reciting in another; the Asuras could not follow it; then the gods prospered, the Asuras were defeated. In that he puts down the Akṣayāstomiyas in one place after reciting in another, (it is) to overcome foes: he prospers himself, his foe is defeated. 'The swift, the triple' (with these words) he puts down on the east; the triple is the beginning of the sacrifice [1]; verily in the east he establishes the beginning of the sacrifice. 'The sky, the seventeenfold', (with these words he puts down) on the south, the sky is food, the seventeenfold is food; verily on the south he places food, therefore with the right (hand) is food eaten. 'Support, the twenty-onefold', (with these words he puts down) on the west; the twenty-onefold is support, (verily it serves) for support. 'The shining, the fifteenfold', (with these words he puts down) on the north; the shining is fire; verily he places force on the north; therefore he that advances to the north is victorious. 'Speed, the eighteenfold', (with these words) he puts down on the east [2], two threefold ones he establishes in the beginning of the sacrifice in order. 'Attack, the twentyfold', (with these words he puts down) on the south, Attack is food, the twentyfold is food; verily he places food on the south.

those accompanying the Akṣayāstomiyā bricks of the fourth layer of the altar.

therefore with the right is food eaten. 'Radiance, the twenty-twofold', (with these words he puts down) on the west, in that there are twenty, thereby there are two Virāj verses, in that there are two there is support, verily in order he finds support in the Virāj verses and in the eating of food. 'Fervour, the nineteenfold', (with these words he puts down) on the north; therefore the left hand [3] has the greater fervour.¹ 'The womb, the twenty-fourfold', (with these words) he puts down on the east; the Gāyatri has twenty-four syllables, the beginning of the sacrifice is the Gāyatri; verily on the east he establishes the beginning of the sacrifice 'The embryo, the twenty-fivefold', (with these words he puts down) on the south; embryos are food, the twenty-fivefold is food; verily he places food on the south, therefore with the right is food eaten. 'Force the twenty-sevenfold', (with these words he puts down) on the west, the twenty-sevenfold is these worlds; verily he finds support in these worlds. 'Maintenance, the twenty-fourfold', (with these words he puts down) on the north [4], therefore the left hand is most to be maintained.² 'Inspiration, the thirty-onefold', (with these words) he puts down on the east, inspiration is speech, speech is the beginning of the sacrifice; verily he establishes the beginning of the sacrifice on the east. 'The surface of the tawny one, the thirty-fourfold', (with these words he puts down) on the south; the surface of the tawny one is yonder sun; verily he places splendour on the south, therefore the right side is the more resplendent. 'Support, the thirty-threefold', (with these words he puts down) on the west, for support. 'The vault, the thirty-sixfold', (with these words he puts down) on the north', the vault is the world of heaven; (verily it serves) to attain the world of heaven.

v. 3. 4. 'Thou³ art the portion of Agni', (with these words he puts down) on the east; Agni is the beginning of the sacrifice, consecration is the beginning of the sacrifice, holy power is the beginning of the sacrifice, the threefold is the beginning of the sacrifice; verily on the east he establishes the beginning of the sacrifice. 'Thou art the portion of them that gaze on men', (with these words he puts down) on the south; those

² The sense here again is uncertain: Sayana thinks it means that it is the best for bearing weights; PW. has 'durch Uebung tūchtig zu machen', which is possible, and is followed by MW.; it is also possible that the sense may be 'more dependent', which is not necessarily inconsistent with tapasitaraḥ above. Bhāsk has no explanation, but for tapasitaraḥ has prabhīlatārṇapakdrālin.

³ Cf. KS. xx. 12; xxx. 2; KapS. xxxii. 10, 16; MS. iii. 2. 10; QB. viii. 4. 2. 1-3. 20. This section explains the Mantras of T² iv. 3. 9-11 accompanying the placing of the Srsti and Vyuṣṭi bricks of the fourth layer, including the last two (17 and 18) of iv. 3. 8.

that gaze on men are the learned, Dhātṛ is food; verily on birth he gives him food; therefore on birth he eats food. 'The birthplace saved, the seventeenfold Stoma', he says; the birthplace is food [1], the seventeen-fold is food; verily he places food on the south; therefore with the right food is eaten. 'Thou art the portion of Mitra', (with these words he puts down) on the west; Mitra is expiration, Varuṇa inspiration, verily he confers on him expiration and inspiration. 'The rain from the sky, the winds saved, the twenty-onefold Stoma', he says; the twenty-onefold is support, (verily it serves) for support. 'Thou art the portion of Indra', (with these words he puts down) on the north: Indra is force, Viṣṇu is force, the lordly power is fire, the fifteenfold is force [2]: verily on the north he places force; therefore he that advances to the north is victorious. 'Thou art the portion of the Vasus', (with these words) he put down on the east; the Vasus are the beginning of the sacrifice, the Rudras are the beginning of the sacrifice, the twenty-fourfold is the beginning of the sacrifice; verily on the east he establishes the beginning of the sacrifice. 'Thou art the portion of the Ādityas', (with these words he puts down) on the south; the Ādityas are food, the Maruts are food, embryos are food, the twenty-fivesfold is food; verily he places food on the south; therefore with the right food is eaten. 'Thou art the portion of Aditi' [3], (with these words he puts down) on the west: Aditi is support, Pūṣan is support, the twenty-sevensfold is support; (verily it serves) for support. 'Thou art the portion of the god Savitṛ', (with these words he puts down) on the north; the god Savitṛ is holy power, Brhaspati is holy power, the fourfold Stoma is holy power; verily he places splendour on the north; therefore the northern half is more resplendent. (The verse) contains a word connected with Savitṛ: (verily it serves) for instigation; therefore is their gain produced in the north for Brahmins.¹ 'The support, the fourfold Stoma', (with these words) he puts down on the east; the support is the beginning of the sacrifice [4], the fourfold Stoma is the beginning of the sacrifice; verily he establishes on the east the beginning of the sacrifice. 'Thou art the portion of the Yāvas', (with these words he puts down) on the south; the Yāvas² are the months, the Ayāvas are the half-months: therefore the months turn

¹ KS. has brahmaṇyāyah, but the sense is much the same. The comm. explains the north as the north of the Vindhyan, this accords with his view of astrologer Mīgarajya in T.R. v. 2, 2, 2, which he refers to Brahmanical generality; but the references are merely to the north of the country as the place of good things just as in the case of speech in K.B. viii. 4, and in the Uttram Kuru legend. Cf. T.B. v. 2, 5, 3.

² The same account of the Yāvas and Ayāvas is taken in KR. In VII. and T.B. viii. 4, 2, 11 the sense is that of the two halves of the month; see Mad's Index, ii. 162. The months as takṣaṇyāt are so called no doubt because of the sun's to the south ; the Yāvas are food, offspring is food ; verily he places food on the south ; therefore with the right food is eaten. 'Thou art the portion of the Rbhūs', (with these words he puts down) on the west, for support. 'The revolving, the forty-eightfold', (with these words he puts down) on the north, to confer strength on these two worlds ; therefore these two worlds are of even strength [5]. He becomes first for whom these are placed on the east as the beginning (of the sacrifice), and his son is born to be first ; he eats food for whom on the south these (are placed) rich in food, and a son is born to him to eat food, he finds support for whom these (are placed) on the west, full of support ; he becomes forcible for whom these (are placed) on the north, full of force, and a forcible son is born to him. The fire is a hymn,¹ verily in that this arrangement [6] is made are its Stotra and Castra produced ; verily in the hymn the Arkyā (Sāman and Castra) is produced ; he eats food, and his son is born to eat food, for whom this arrangement is made, and he too who knows it thus. He puts down the creating (bricks) ; verily he wins things as created. Now there was neither day nor night in the world, but it was undiscriminated ; the gods saw these dawn (bricks), they put them down ; then did this shine forth ; for him for whom these are put down the dawn breaks ; verily he smites away the dark.

v. 3. 5. 'O² Agni, drive away those foes of ours that are born', (with these words) he puts down on the east, verily he drives away his foes on birth. 'That are born with force', (with these words he puts down) on the west ; verily he repels those that are to be born. 'The forty-fourfold Stoma', (with these words he puts down) on the south ; the forty-fourfold is splendour ; verily he places splendour on the south ; therefore the right side is the more resplendent. 'The sixteenfold Stoma', (with these words he puts down) on the north ; the sixteenfold is force ; verily he places force on the north ; therefore [1] he that advances to the north is victorious. The forty-fourfold is a thunderbolt, the sixteenfold is a thunderbolt ; in that he puts down these two bricks, he hurls the bolt after the foe born and to be born whom he has repelled, to lay them low. He puts down in the middle (a brick) full of dust, the middle of the body is faeces (pūrīṣa) ; verily he piles the fire with its own body, and with his

¹ The play here on words is not translatable ; the identification of Agni and the Arka is hardly of Agni with light or flame (cf. QB x. 4. 1. 9; Eggingen, SBE, xliv, 342, 402), but rather with arka as hymn of praise. The simple Arka is made into an Arkyā Sāman and Stotra by the arrangement (idhi) of the Mantras of TS. iv. 3. 8 and 9, the first Anuvāka the Stotra, the second the Castra, according to the comm. For the constant play on Arka cf. also v. 2. 5. 5; 4. 3. 2.

² Cf. KS. xxi. 2; Kaps. xxxii. 17; MS. iii. 2 10; 3. 1; QB. viii. 5. 1. 8 3. 2. This section explains the Mantras of TS. iv. 3. 12 of the Asapatna and Virāy bricks, and those of iv. 4. 1, the Stomabhāgas, the treatment of which runs on in v. 3. 6, all in the fifth layer.

own body he is in joy for w^r I look^s at them. The bricks are called the unrivalled; no rival is his for where they are put down, [1]. The fire is an animal; he puts down the Viraj (bricks) in the highest region; verily he confers upon cattle the highest Viraj; therefore he that is possessed of cattle speaks the highest speech. Ten by ten he puts (them) down, to confer power on them. Transversely he puts (them) down; therefore cattle move their limbs transversely, for support. By those metres which were heavenly, the gods went to the world of heaven; for that the sows toiled [3]; they practised fervour, these they saw by fervour, and from them they fashioned these bricks. 'The course metre; the space metre'; (with these words) they put them down; with these they went to the world of heaven; in that he puts down these bricks, the sacrifice goes to the world of heaven with the metres that are heavenly. By the sacrificer Prajāpati created creatures; he created them by the Stomabhāgas; in that [4] he puts down the Stomabhāgas, the sacrificer creates offspring. In the Stomabhāgas Brhaspati collected the brilliance of the sacrifice, in that he puts down the Stomabhāga (bricks) he piles the fire with its brilliance. In the Stomabhāgas Brhaspati saw the support of the sacrifice; in that he puts down the Stomabhāgas, (it is) for the support of the sacrifice. Seven by seven he puts down, to confer strength, three in the middle, for support.

v. 3. 6. (With¹ the words) 'ray', he created Aditya; with 'advance', right, with 'following', the sky; with 'union', the atmosphere; with 'propping', the earth; with 'prop', the rain; with 'blowing forward', the day, with 'blowing after', the night; with 'eager', the Varus; with 'intelligence', the Rudras; with 'brilliant', the Adityas; with 'fire', the Pīrs; with 'thread', offspring; with 'enduring the battle', cattle; with 'wealthy', plants. 'Thou art the victorious, with ready stone [1], for Indra thou Quicken Indra', (with these words) he fastened the thunderbolt on his right side, for victory. He created offspring without expiration, on them he bestowed expiration (with the words) 'Thou art the overlord', inspiration (with the word) 'Restrainer'; the eye (with) 'the gliding', the ear (with) 'the bestower of strength'. Now these offspring, though having expiration and inspiration, hearing and seeing, did not couple; upon them he bestowed copulation (with the words) 'Thou art the Trivrt'. These offspring though coupling [2] were not propagated; he made them propagate (with the words) 'Thou art the mounter, thou art the descender'. These offspring being propagated did not find support; he made them find support in these worlds (with the words) 'Thou art the wealthy, thou art the brilliant, thou art the gainer of good . verily he makes offspring when propagated find support in these worlds. he with his body mounts the atmosphere, with his expiration he finds support in yonder world, of expiration and inspiration he is not liable to be deprived who knows thus.

v 3.7. By¹ the 'sitters on the vault' the gods went to the world of heaven , that is why the 'sitters on the vault' have their name. In that he puts down the 'sitters on the vault', the sacrificer thus goes by the 'sitters on the vault' to the world of heaven; the vault is the world of heaven: for him for whom these are put down there is no misfortune (nā-ākram); the 'sitters on the vault' are the home of the sacrificer, in that he puts down the 'sitters on the vault'; the sacrificer thus makes himself a home. The 'sitters on the vault' are the collected brilliance of the Pr̄ṣṭha (Stotras): in that he puts down the 'sitters on the vault' [1], verily he wins the brilliance of the Piṣṭhas. He puts down the five crested; verily becoming Apsarases they wait on him in yonder world; verily also they are the bodyguards of the sacrificer. He should think of whomever he hates as he puts (them) down; verily he cuts him off for these deities, swiftly he goes to ruin. He puts (them) above the 'sitters on the vault'; that is as when having taken a wife one seats her in the house [2]; he puts the highest on the west, pointing east; therefore the wife attends on the west, facing east. He puts as the highest the naturally perforated and the earless (bricks); the naturally perforated is breath, the earless is life · verily he places breath and life as the highest of the breaths, therefore are breath and life the highest of the breaths. No brick higher (than these) should he put down: if he were to put another brick higher, he would obstruct the breath and life of cattle [3] and of the sacrificer; therefore no other brick should be put down higher. He puts down the naturally perforated brick, the naturally perforated brick is yonder (sky); verily he puts down yonder (sky). He makes the horse sniff it; verily he places breath in it; again the horse is connected with Prajāpati; verily by Prajāpati he piles the fire. It is naturally perforated, to let out the breaths, and also to light up the world of heaven. The earless is the triumph of the gods, in that he puts down the earless, he triumphs with the triumph of the gods; to the north he puts it down; therefore to the north of the fire is action carried² on; (the verse) has the word 'wind', for kindling.

¹ Cf. KS. xxi. 2, 3; KapS. xxxi. 18; MS. iii. 8. 1; CR. viii. 6. 1. 8-20; 7. 8. 9-20. This section explains the Mantras in TS. iv. 4. 2 and 3, accompanying the Nākasad, Coda, Swayamatruṇa, and Vikarṇi bricks of the fifth layer.

² The comm. explains that, whenever not specifically described, the action is to be to the north (e.g. the choice of the Brahmins, &c.). Probably the sense is merely 'on the north the fire is paid attention'.

v 3. 8. He¹ puts down the metre bricks; the metres are cattle; verily he wins cattle; the good thing of the gods, cattle, are the metres; verily he wins the good thing, cattle. Yajusseṇa Cāitrīnyanya taught this layer; by this he won cattle; in that he puts it down, he wins cattle. He puts down the Gāyatris on the east; the Gāyatri is brilliance; verily at the beginning he places brilliance [1]; they contain the word 'head'; verily he makes him the head of his equals. He puts down the Trisṭubhs; the Trisṭubh is power; verily he places power in the middle. He puts down the Jagatis; cattle are connected with the Jagati; verily he wins cattle. He puts down the Anusṭubhs; the Anusṭubh is breath; (verily it serves) to let the breaths out. Br̥hatiś, Uṣpiś, Pañktiś, Aksarapañktiś, these various metres he puts down; cattle are various, the metres are cattle [2]; verily he wins various cattle; variety is seen in his house for whom these are put down, and who knows them thus. He puts down an Atichandas; all the metres are the Atichandas; verily he piles it with all the metres. The Atichandas is the highest of the metres; in that he puts down an Atichandas, he makes him the highest of his equals. He puts down two-footed (bricks); the sacrificer has two feet; (verily they serve) for support.

v 3. 9. For² all the gods is the fire piled up; if he were not to put (them) down in unison, the gods would divert his fire; in that he puts (them) down in unison, verily he piles them in unison with himself; he is not deprived of his fire; moreover, just as man is held together by his sinews, so is the fire held together by these (bricks). By the fire the gods went to the world of heaven; they became yonder Kṛtikās; he for whom these are put down goes to the world of heaven, attains brilliance, and becomes a resplendent thing. He puts down the circular bricks; the circular bricks are these worlds; the citadels of the gods are these worlds; verily he enters the citadels of the gods; he is not ruined who has piled up the fire. He puts down the all-light (bricks); verily by them he makes these worlds full of light; verily also they support the breaths of the sacrificer; they are the deities of heaven; verily grasping them he goes to the world of heaven.

v. 3. 10. He² puts down the rain-winning (bricks); verily he wins the rain. If he were to put (them) down in one place, it would rain for one season, he puts down after carrying them round in order; therefore it rains all the seasons. 'Thou art the bringer of the east wind', he says; that is the form of rain; verily by its form he wins rain. With the Samyānis the gods went (sām ayus) to these worlds; that is why the Samyānis have their name; in that he puts down the Samyānis, just as one goes in the waters with a ship, so [1] the sacrificer with them goes to these worlds. The Samyānis are the ship of the fire; in that he puts down the Samyānis, verily he puts down a boat for the fire; moreover, when these have been put down, if the waters strive to drag away his fire, verily it remains unmoved. He puts down the Āditya bricks; it is the Ādityas who repel from prosperity him who being fit for prosperity does not obtain prosperity; verily the Ādityas [2] make him attain prosperity. It is yonder Āditya who takes away the brilliance of him who having piled up a fire does not display splendour; in that he puts down the Āditya bricks, yonder sun confers radiance upon him; just as yonder sun is radiant, so he is radiant among men. He puts down ghee bricks; the ghee is the home dear to Agni; verily he unites him with his dear home [3], and also with brilliance. He places (them) after carrying (them) round; verily he confers upon him brilliance not to be removed. Prajāpati piled up the fire, he lost his glory, he saw these bestowers of glory, he put them down; verily with them he conferred glory upon himself; five he puts down; man is fivefold; verily he confers glory on the whole extent of man.

v. 3. 11. The¹ gods and the Asuras were in conflict; the gods were the fewer, the Asuras the more; the gods saw these bricks, they put them down; 'Thou art the furtherer', (with these words) they became multiplied with the trees, the plants; (with) 'Thou art the maker of wide room', they conquered this (earth); (with) 'Thou art the eastern', they conquered the eastern quarter; (with) 'Thou art the zenith', they conquered yonder (sky); (with) 'Thou art the sitter on the atmosphere; sit on the atmosphere', they conquered the atmosphere; then the gods prospered [1], the Asuras were defeated. He for whom those are put down becomes greater, conquers these worlds, and prospers himself; his foe is defeated. 'Thou art the sitter on the waters; thou art the sitter on the hawk', he says; that is the form of Agni; verily by his form he wins Agni. 'In the wealth of earth I place thee', he says; verily with these (bricks) he makes these worlds wealthy. He puts down the life-giving (bricks); verily he bestows life upon him [2]. 'O Agni, thy highest name, the heart', he says; that is the home dear to Agni; verily he obtains his dear home. 'Come, let us join together', he says; verily with him to aid he encircles him. 'Be thou, O Agni, among them that a fifth animal is added to the five animals. The fifth animal is the horse. The seasonal shrubs are the fifth addition to the animals, so that he who wins the abode dear to the seasons. 'The time and' is says, the first one is the year; verily he obtains the abode dear to the year.

v. 3. 12. The left eye of Prajapati swelled, that fell away, that became a horse; because it swelled away it that is the reason why the horse gets after its name. By the horse sacrifice the gods replaced it. He who sacrifices with the horse sacrifice makes Prajapati whole again. In the horse whole this is the atonement for everything and the cure for everything. All evil by it the gods overcome. By it was the god of men, the six of Brahman slaying all evil; the overcomer is the seven of Brahman slaying who sacrifices with the horse sacrifice and he who knows it thus. It was the left eye of Prajapati that went off. It got lost, and got from the horse on the left side, on the right from other quarters. The mother it bears, the horse has its birthplace in the waters, the root is born in the waters, verily he establishes it in its own birthplace. The Stoma is the fourfold one; the bee too the third of the bees, the gods make it whole with the fourfold Stoma, in that there is the fourfold Stoma, (in) is to make whole the horse.

PRAPĀTHAKA IV

v. 4. 1. The gods and the Asuras were in conflict, they could not decide the issue; Indra saw these bodies, he put them down, with them he conferred upon himself power, strength, and body; then the gods prospered, the Asuras were defeated. In that he puts down in Indra's teeth, the sacrificer with them bestows on himself power, strength, and body, verily also he piles up the fire with Indra and with a body; he prospers himself, his foe is [1] defeated. The sacrifice departed from the gods; they could not recover it; they saw these bodies of the sacrifice, they pile them down, and by them they record be sacrifice. In that he puts down the bodies of the sacrifice the sacrificer by them wins the sacrifice. There-and thirty he puts down, the gods are three and thirty; verily he wins the gods; verily also he piles up the fire with itself and with a body; he becomes with his body in yonder world [2] who knows thus. He puts down the lighted (bricks); verily he confers light upon it; the fire blazes piled up with these (bricks), verily with them he kindles it; in both worlds is there light for him. He puts down the constellation bricks: these are the lights of the sky; verily he wins them; the Nakṣatras are the lights of the doers of good deeds;¹ verily he wins them; verily also he makes these lights into a reflection [3] to light up the world of heaven. If he were to place them in contact, he would obstruct the world of rain, Parjanya would not rain; he puts them down without touching; verily he produces the world of rain, Parjanya is likely to rain, on the east he puts down some pointing west, on the west some pointing east: therefore the constellations move both west and east.

v. 4.2. He² puts down the seasonal (bricks), to arrange the seasons. He puts down a pair; therefore the seasons are in pairs. This middle layer is as it were unsupported; it is as it were the atmosphere; he puts down a pair on the other layers, but four in the middle one, for support. The seasonal (bricks) are the internal cement of the layers; in that he puts down the seasonal (bricks), (it is) to keep apart the layers. He puts down next an Avakā plant, this is the birthplace of Agni, verily he piles up the fire with its birthplace [1]. Viśvāmitra³ says, 'He shall eat food with holy power, for whom these shall be put down, and he who shall know them thus'. It is the year which repels from support him who having piled up the fire does not find support; there are five layers preceding, and then he piles up the sixth, the year has six seasons; verily in the seasons the year finds support. These are the bricks [2], called the over-ladies; he for whom they are put down becomes the overlord of his equals; he should think of him whom he hates as he puts (them down); verily he cuts him off for those deities; swiftly he goes to ruin. The Āṅgirases, going to the world of heaven, made over to the seers the accomplishment of the sacrifice, it became gold; in that he anoints with fragments of gold, (it is) for the completion of the sacrifice; verily also he makes healing for it [3]; moreover he unites it with its form, and with golden light he goes to the world of heaven. He anoints with that which contains the word 'of a thousand';

Prajāpati is of a thousand: (verily it serves) to win Prajāpati. 'May these bricks, O Agni, be for me milch cows' he says; verily he makes them milch cows; they, milking desires, wait upon him yonder in yonder world.

v. 4. 3. The¹ fire is Rudra. He is born then when he is completely piled up, just as a calf on birth desires the teat, so he here seeks his portion; if he were not to offer a libation to him, he would sick the Aḥhvaryu and the sacrificer. He offers the Gatarndriya (libation), verily he appeases him with his own portion; neither Aḥhvaryu nor sacrificer goes to ruin. If he were to offer with the milk of domesticated animals [1], he would afflict domestic animals with pain: if (with that) of wild (animals), wild (animals); he should offer with goats of wild (seasame) or with goats of Gavīdhuka grass; he harms neither domesticated nor wild animals. Then they say, 'Wild sesame and Gavīdhuka grass are not a proper offering'; he offers with goat's milk, the female goat is connected with Agni; verily he offers with a proper offering. He harms neither domesticated nor wild animals. The Angirases going to the world of heaven [2] spalled the cauldron on the goat; she in pain dropped a feather like hair, it became the Arka (plant);² that is why the Arka has its name. He offers with a leaf of the Arka, to unite it with its birthplace. He offers standing facing north; this is the quarter of Rudra; verily he propitiates him in his own quarter. He offers on the last brick, verily at the end he propitiates Rudra. He offers dividing it into three; these worlds are three; verily he makes these worlds of even strength; at this height he offers [3], then at this, then at this; these worlds are three; verily he appeases him for these worlds. Three further libations he offers; they make up six, the seasons are six; verily with the seasons he appeases him. If he were to offer while wandering round, he would make Rudra come within (the sacrificer). Or rather they say, 'In what quarter is Rudra or in what?' He should offer them while wandering round; verily he appeases him completely [4]. The highest (bricks) are the heavenly deities; over them he makes the sacrificer speak; verily by them he makes him attain the world of heaven; he should throw (the leaf) down in the path of the cattle of him whom he hates; the first beast that steps upon it goes to ruin.

v. 4. 4. 'The³ strength on the stone', (with these words) he moistens (the fire), and so purifies it ; verily also he delights it ; it delighted attends him, causing him neither hunger nor pain in yonder world ; he rejoices in offspring, in cattle who knows thus. ‘That food and strength, do ye, O Maruts, bounteously bestow on us’, he says ; strength is food, the Maruts are food ; verily he wins food. ‘In the stone is thy hunger ; let thy pain reach N.N. [1], whom we hate’, he says ; verily he afflicts him whom he hates with its hunger and pain. He goes round thrice, moistening ; the fire is threefold ; verily he calms the pain of the whole extent of the fire. Thrice again he goes round ; they make up six, the seasons are six ; verily with the seasons he calms its pain. The reed is the flower of the waters, the Avakā is the cream¹ of the waters [2] ; he draws over (it) with a branch of reeds and with Avakā plants ; the waters are appeased ; verily with them appeased he calms his pain. The beast that first steps over the fire when piled, it is liable to burn it up with its heat. He draws over (it) with a frog ; this of animals is the one on which one does not subsist, for neither among the domesticated nor the wild beasts has it a place ; verily he afflicts it with pain. With eight (verses) he draws across [3] ; the Gāyatri has eight syllables, the fire is connected with the Gāyatri ; verily he calms the pain of the whole extent of the fire. (He draws) with (verses) containing (the word) ‘purifying’, the purifying (one) is food ; verily by food he calms its pain. The fire is death ; the black antelope skin is the form of holy power ; he puts on a pair of black sandals ; verily by the holy power he shuts himself away from death. ‘He shuts himself away from death, and away from eating food’, they say ; one he puts on, the other not ; verily he shuts himself away [4] from death and wins the eating of food. ‘Honour to thy heat, thy blaze’, he says, for paying honour they wait on a richer man ; ‘may thy bolts afflict another than us’, he says ; verily him whom he hates he afflicts with its pain ; ‘be thou purifying and auspicious to us’, he says ; the purifying (one) is food ; verily he wins food. With two (verses) he strides over (it), for support ; (with two) containing (the word) ‘water’, for soothing.

v. 4. 5. ‘To² him that sits in man hail !’ (with these words) he pours butter on ; verily with the Pañkti and the offering he takes hold of the beginning of the sacrifice. He pours on butter transversely ; therefore animals move their limbs transversely, for support. If he were to utter the Vasat cry, his Vasat cry would be exhausted ; if he were not to utter

th Yea! it is wondrous that the Vedic ways verily, my Guru says he does not burn his offerings, & Agni is not delighted, the Rishies do not destroy the gods. Some of the gods eat the offerings [1]; others do not; verily he delights in them by putting up the fire. Those gods who do not eat those offerings are armed with curls mixed with honey. Verily the other deities are without curl and those who do not at the offering; they delight in sacrifices. He delights those who eat the offering with curl, & those who eat with honey; curls in a foot of the offering, but if he puts up that he eats with curls mixed with honey, or only so to speak and the like puts up a large handful¹ of grass, the fire is delighted; moreover with Trivapati [2], (Verily it serves) to unite it with its burning, with two (verses) he amounts, for support. He goes round round in circles, verily he delights them completely. Now he is deprived of the breath, of offspring, of cattle who piling the fire steps upon it. 'Flower of aspiration all thou of inspiration', he says; verily he is born of, knows the breath, 'giver of splen-dour, giver of wide room', he says; spiritual it is offspring, wide room is cattle; verily he is born on himself offspring and cattle. Indra shows Vrtra; him Vrtra [3] skin grasped with sixteen hands, he gave this libation to Agni of the front; he offered it, and Agni of the front, being delighted with his own portion, burnt in sixteen parts, the sons of Vrtra, by the offspring to Vigrakshemā he was set free from evil, in that he offers a libation to Agni of the front, Agni of the front, delighted with his own portion, burns away his evil, and he is set free from his evil by the offering to Vigrakshemā. If he desire of a man, 'May he be set free slowly from evil' [4], he should offer one by one for him, verily, slowly he is set free from evil; if he desire of a man, 'Swiftly may he be set free from evil', he should run over all of them for him and make one offering; swiftly is he set free from evil. Sir rather let sacrifices separately with each hymn; verily severally he places strength in the two hymns, (verily they serve) for support.

v. 4. 6. 'Do² thou lead him forward', (with these words) he puts on the kindling-sticks, that is as when one provides hospitality for one who has come on a visit. He puts down three; the fire is threefold; verily he provides his portion for the whole extent of the fire. They are of Udu-

I. 6. 22. This section explains the Mantras of TS. iv. 6. 3. 1 8; 4. 1 4; 2. 3. 4, including the putting on of the kindling-sticks, the taking forward of the fire, and the Aparitirtha hymn.

bara wood, the Udumbara is strength ; verily he gives him strength. ' May the All-gods thee ', he says ; the All-gods are the breaths ; verily with the breaths [1] he raises him up ; ' bear up with their thoughts, O Agni ', he says ; verily he unites him with the thought for which he lifts him up. ' May the five regions divine aid the sacrifice, the goddesses ', he says, for he moves forward along the quarters. ' Driving away poverty and hostility ', he says, for smiting away the Rakṣases. ' Giving to the lord of the sacrifice increase of wealth,' he says ; increase of wealth is cattle [2] ; verily he wins cattle. He takes (him) with six (verses) ; the seasons are six, verily with the seasons he takes him ; two have (the word) 'embracing', for the smiting away of the Rakṣases. ' With the rays of the sun, with tawny hair, before us ', he says, for instigation. ' Then let our pure invocations be accepted ', he says ; the pure (one) is food ; verily he wins food. The gods and the Asuras were in conflict ; the gods saw the unassailable (hymn) and with it they conquered the Asuras [3] : that is why the unassailable (hymn) has its name. In that the second Hotṛ¹ recites the unassailable (hymn) the sacrificer conquers his foes therewith unassailably ; verily also he conquers what has not been conquered. (The hymn) has ten verses ;² the Virāj has ten syllables, by the Virāj are kept apart these two worlds ; (verily it serves) to keep apart these two worlds. Again the Virāj has ten syllables, the Virāj is food ; verily he finds support in the Virāj, in eating food. The atmosphere is as it were unreal ; the Agnidh's altar is as it were the atmosphere ; on the Agnidh's altar [4] he puts down a stone, for reality ; with two (verses), for support. ' As measurer, he standeth in the midst of the sky ', he says ; verily with this he measures ; ' in the middle of the sky is the dappled stone set down ', he says ; the dappled is food ; verily he wins food. With four (verses) he goes up to the tail ; the metres are four ; verily (he goes) with the metres. ' All have caused Indra to wax ', he says ; verily he attains increase. ' True lord and lord of strength ' [5], he says ; strength is food ; verily he wins food. ' Let the sacrifice invoke favour, and bring the gods ', he says ; favour is offspring and cattle ; verily he bestows on himself offspring and cattle. ' Let the god, Agni, offer and bring to us the gods ', he says, to make the cry, Godspeed ! ' He hath seized me with the impulse of strength, with elevation ', he says ; elevation is yonder sun in rising ; depression is it when setting ; verily with holy power he elevates himself, with holy power he depresses his foe.

¹ The term is a curious one, and is repeated in Baudh. ; presumably it means the first assistant of the Hotṛ.

² e. the Brāhmaṇa does not recognize the last five of the hymn, which are clearly an illegitimate addition, unknown to any of the authorities, K.S. or M.S., but recognized in V.S. The matter is further discussed in the Introduction, pp. xliv, xv.

v. 4. 7. - Along¹ the eastern path we find Agni, West one, he says; verily with this verse he moves to the world of heaven. 'Meet ye, with Agni, to the vault', he says; verily with this he accepts these words. 'From earth have I mounted to the atmosphere', he says; verily with it he mounts these worlds. 'Going to the heaven they look not away', he says; verily he goes to the world of heaven. 'O Agni, advance [1] first of worshippers', he says; verily with it he bestows eye-sight upon both gods and men. He steps upon (the altar) with five (verses), the sacrifice is five-fold; verily he goes to the world of heaven with the full extent of the sacrifice. 'Night and dawn', he recites as the Puranavakyā, for preparation.² 'O Agni, of a thousand eyes', he says; Prajapati is of a thousand; (verily it serves) to obtain Prajapati. 'To them as such let us pay homage; to strength hail!', he says; strength is food; verily he wins food [2]. He offers on the naturally perforated brick (a ladle of Uḍumbara wood) filled with curds; curds are strength the Uḍumbara is strength, the naturally perforated is yonder (sky); verily he places strength in yonder (sky); therefore we live on strength coming hitherward from yonder. He puts it in place with three (verses); the fire is three-fold, verily he makes the whole extent of the fire attain support. 'Enkindled, O Agni, shine before us', (with these words) he takes (the kindling-stick) of Uḍumbara wood: this is a pipe with projections;³ by it [3] the gods made piercings of hundreds of the Asuras; in that he takes up the kindling-stick with this (verse), the sacrificer hurls the hundred-slaying (verse) as a bolt at his enemy, to lay him low without fail. 'Let us pay homage to thee in thy highest birth, O Agni', (with these words) he takes up (the kindling-stick) of Vikaṅkata wood; verily he wins radiance. 'That various of Savitṛ, the adorable', (with these words) he takes up (the kindling-stick) of Qamī wood, for soothing. The fire milks the piler-up of the fire; the piler-up milks the fire; 'that [4] various of Savitṛ, the adorable', he says; this is the milking of the fire. This of it Kapya Čākyasa knew, and with it he was wont to milk it; in that he takes up the kindling-stick with the verse, the piler-up of the fire milks the fire. 'Seven are thy kindling-sticks, O Agni, seven tongues'; verily he delights seven sevens of his. With a full (ladle) he offers, for Prajapati is as it were full, to obtain Prajapati [5]. He offers with a half filled⁴ (ladle), for from

The same variation of pran and pradh is found in JUB. i. 68. 6; iii. 6. 1, 3.

the half-filled Prajāpati created creatures, for the creation of offspring Agni departed from the gods; he entered the quarters; he who sacrifices should think in his mind of the quarters; verily from the quarters he wins him; with curds he offers at first, with butter afterwards; verily he bestows upon him brilliance and power in accord. There is (an offering) to Vaiçvānara on twelve pot-herds; the year has twelve months, Agni Vaiçvānara is the year; verily straightway [6] he wins Vaiçvānara. If he were to offer the fore- and after-sacrifices, there would be a bursting of the sacrifice; he offers an oblation with a ladle, for the support of the sacrifice. Vaiçvānara is the kingly power, the Maruts the people; having offered the offering to Vaiçvānara, he offers those to the Maruts; verily he attaches the people to the kingly power. He utters aloud (the direction to the Agnidh) for Vaiçvānara, he offers the offerings of the Maruts muttering; therefore the kingly power speaks above the people. (The offerings) are for the Maruts; the people of the gods are the Maruts; verily he wins for him by the people of the gods the people among men. There are seven; the Maruts are in seven troops; verily in troops he wins the people for him; running over troop by troop he offers; verily he makes the people obedient to him.

v. 4. 8. He¹ offers the stream of wealth; 'May a stream of wealth be mine', (with this hope) is the offering made; this stream of ghee waits upon him in yonder world, swelling up. He offers with butter; butter is brilliance, the stream of wealth is brilliance; verily by brilliance he wins brilliance for him. Again the stream of wealth is desires; verily he wins desires. If he desire of a man, 'May I separate his breaths and his eating of food' [1], he should offer separately for him; verily he separates his breaths and his eating of food; if he desire of a man, 'May I continue his breaths and his eating of food', he should offer for him in a continuous stream; verily he continues his breaths and his eating of food. Twelve sets of twelve he offers; the year has twelve months; verily by the year he wins food for him. 'May for me food, for me freedom from hunger'; he says; that [2] is the form of food; verily he wins food. 'May for me fire, for me the waters', he says; this is the birthplace of food; verily he wins food with its birthplace. He offers those where Indra is half; verily he wins the deities; since Indra is half of all and a match, therefore Indra is the most appropriating of gods; he says Indra later; verily he places strength in him at the top. He offers the weapons of the sacrifice; the weapons of the sacrifice are the sacrifice [3]; verily he wins the sacrifice. Again this is the form of the sacrifice; verily he wins the sacrifice by its form. May for me the final bath and the cry of Gāyatri! he says, to utter Godspeed! 'May the fire for me, the emulsion', he says, that is the form of splendour; verily by the form he wins splendour. 'May the Re for me, the Sāman', he says [1], that is the form of the metres; verily by the form he wins the metres. 'May the embryo for me, the calves', he says; that is the form of cattle; verily by the form he wins cattle. He offers the orderers, to order the disordered. He offers the even and the odd, for pairing; they are in ascending ratio, for ascent 'May one for me, three', he says; one and three are the metres of the gods [5], four and eight the metres of men; verily he wins both the metres of gods and men. Up to thirty-three he offers; the gods are three and thirty; verily he wins the gods; up to forty-eight he offers, the Jagati has forty-eight syllables, cattle are connected with the Jagati; verily by the Jagati he wins cattle for him. 'Strength, instigation', (with these words) he offers a set of twelve; the year has twelve months, verily he finds support in the year.

v. 4. 9. Agni¹ departed from the gods, desiring a portion; the gods said to him, 'come back to us, carry the oblation for us.' He said, 'Let me choose a born; let them offer to me the Vajaprasavīya'; therefore to Agni they offer the Vajaprasavīya. In that he offers the Vajaprasavīya, he unites Agni with his own portion; verily also this is his consecration. He offers with fourteen (verses); there are seven domesticated, seven wild [1] animals; (verily it serves) to win both sets. He offers of every kind of food, to win every kind of food. He offers with an offering-spoon of Uḍumbara wood; the Uḍumbara is strength, food is strength; verily by strength he wins for him strength and food. Agni is the consecrated of gods, the piler of the fire of men; therefore when it rains a piler of the fire should not run, for he has thus obtained food; rain is as it were food; if he were to run he would be running from food. He should go up to it; verily he goes up to food [2]. 'Night and dawn', (with these words) he offers with the milk of a black cow with a white calf; verily by the day he bestows night upon him, by night day; verily day and night being bestowed upon him milk his desire and the eating of food. He offers the supporters of the kingly power; verily he wins the kingdom. He offers with six (verses); the seasons are six; verily he finds support in the seasons. 'O lord of the world', (with these words) he offers five libations at the chariot mouth;² the chariot is a thunderbolt; verily with the thunderbolt he conquers the quarters [3]. In yonder world the wind blows over the piler of the fire ; he offers the names of the winds ; verily over him in yonder world the wind blows ; three he offers, these worlds are three ; verily from these worlds he wins the wind. ‘Thou art the ocean, full of mist’, he says ; that is the form of the wind ; verily by the form he wins the wind. He offers with his clasped hands, for not otherwise can the oblation of these be accomplished.

v 4. 10. The¹ chariot of the gods is yoked for the world of heaven, the chariot of man for wherever his intention is fixed ; the fire is the chariot of the gods. ‘Agni I yoke with glory, with ghee’, he says ; verily he yokes him ; he, yoked, carries him to the world of heaven. If he were to yoke with all five together, his fire yoked would fall away, the libations would be without support, the Stomas without support, the hymns without support. He strokes (the fire) with three (verses) at the morning pressing ; the fire is threefold [1], verily he yokes the full extent of the fire ; that is as when something is placed on a yoked cart ; the oblations find support, the Stomas find support, the hymns find support. He strokes with two (verses) in the Stotra of the Yajñayajñiya ; the sacrifice is as great as is the Agnistoma ; a further extension is performed over and above it ; verily he mounts at the end the whole extent of the sacrifice. (He strokes) with two (verses), for support : when it is not completed by one (verse), then [2] does he stroke ; the rest of the sacrifice resorts to him ; (verily it serves) for continuity. He who piles up the fire falls away from this world ; his libation cannot be performed in a place without bricks ; whatever libation he offers in a place without bricks, it runs away, and with its running away the sacrifice is ruined, with the sacrifice the sacrificer ; in that he piles up a second piling, (it is) to support the libations ; the libations find support [3], the sacrifice is not ruined, nor the sacrificer. He puts down eight ; the Gāyatrī has eight syllables ; verily he piles it with the Gāyatrī metre ; if eleven, with the Trisṭubh, if twelve with the Jagatī ; verily he piles it with the metres. The fire that is re-piled is called the descendant ; he who knowing thus re-piles the fire eats food up to the third generation. The re-piling is like the re-establishment of the fire ; he who does not succeed through the establishment of the fire [4] re-establishes it. he who does not succeed by the piling up of the fire re-piles it. In that he piles up the fire, (it is) for prosperity. Or rather they say, ‘one should not pile it up.’ The fire is Rudra, and it is as if one stirs up a sleeping lion.²

¹ Of KS. xxii. 1, 2; MS. III. 4. 4, 5; CB. ix. 4. 4. 1-7; viii. 6. 3 & 17. This section explains the Mantras of TS. iv. 7. 13, the yoking of the fire and the re-piling.

² This interesting phrase is not in KS. or MS., which agree closely here and have only

‘who can (or shall) awaken a richer man when in sleep’; The awakening is to remembrance of the petitioner who duly gives his present in hope of a generous return.

But again they say, One should pile it up. It is as if one awakens a richer man with his due portion. Manu piled the fire: with it he did not prosper; he saw this re-piling, he piled it, with it he prospered; in that he piles the re-piling, (it is) for prosperity.

v. 4. 11. He¹ who desires cattle should pile a piling with the metres; the metres are cattle; verily he becomes rich in cattle. He should pile in hawk shape who desires the sky; the hawk is the best flier among birds; verily becoming a hawk he flies to the world of heaven. He should pile in heron form who desires, 'May I be possessed of a head in yonder world'; verily he becomes possessed of a head in yonder world. He should pile in the form of an Alaja² bird, with four furrows, who desires support; there are four quarters; verily he finds support in the quarters. He should pile in the form of a triangle, who has foes [1]; verily he repels his foes. He should pile in triangle form on both sides, who desires, 'May I repel the foes I have and those I shall have'; verily he repels the foes he has and those he will have. He should pile in the form of a chariot-wheel, who has foes; the chariot is a thunderbolt; verily he hurls the thunderbolt at his foes. He should pile in the form of a wooden trough who desires food; in a wooden trough food is kept; verily he wins food together with its place of birth. He should pile one that has to be collected together, who desires cattle; verily he becomes rich in cattle [2]. He should pile one in a circle, who desires a village; verily he becomes possessed of a village. He should pile in the form of a cemetery, who desires, 'May I be successful in the world of the fathers'; verily he is successful in the world of the fathers. Viçyamitra and Jamadagni had a feud with Vasistha; Jamadagni saw these Vihavya (bricks); he put them down, and with them he appropriated the power and strength of Vasistha; in that he puts down the Vihavyas, the sacrificer with them appropriates the power and strength of his foe. He puts down on the altar of the Hoty; the Hoty is the abode of the sacrificer [3]; verily in his abode he wins for him power and strength. Twelve he puts down; the Jagati has twelve syllables, cattle are connected with the Jagati; verily with the Jagati he wins cattle for him. Eight each he puts down in the other altars; cattle have eight half-hooves; verily he wins cattle. (He puts down) six on the Mārjaliya : the seasons are six, the gods, the fathers, are the seasons ; verily he delights the seasons, the gods, the fathers.

v. 4. 12. 'Be¹ pure for the winning of strength', this is the Anuṣṭubh strophe ;² three Anuṣṭubhs make four Gāyatrīs ; in that there are three Anuṣṭubhs, therefore the horse when standing stands on three feet ; in that there are four Gāyatrīs, therefore he goes putting down all four feet. The Anuṣṭubh is the highest of metres, the fourfold Stoma is the highest of Stomas, the three-night sacrifice the highest of sacrifices, the horse the highest of animals ; verily by the highest he makes him go to the highest state. It is the twenty-onefold³ day [1], on which the horse is slain, there are twelve months, five seasons : these worlds are three ; the twenty-onefold (Stoma) is yonder sun ; this is Prajāpati, the horse is connected with Prajāpati ; verily he wins it straightway. The Pr̥ṣṭha (Stotra) is of Ākṣarī verses,⁴ to make the horse complete, there are various metres, different sets of animals are offered, both domesticated and wild ; in that the Pr̥ṣṭha is of Ākṣarī verses, (it is) to complete the horse. The Sāman of the Brahman is that of Pṛthuraçmi ;⁵ by the rein the horse is restrained [2], a horse unrestrained and unsupported is liable to go to the furthest distance ; (verily it serves) to restrain and support the horse. The Achāvāka's Sāman is the Saṅkṛti ;⁶ the horse sacrifice is an extensive⁷

It is important to note that this passage (not used by Eggeling) shows the real sense of catusṭoma as a fourfold Stoma, i.e. one chanted in four turns of verses, not as usual three, a fact recognized also by LGS. vi. 8. 1; this is proved by the reference here to three Anuṣṭubhs becoming four Gāyatrīs, and the same reference is found in PB., though not in

CB. See also Oldenberg, Prolegomena, p. 344, who shows that this passage recognizes the text of the SV.

⁴ For the Mahānāmnīs see S⁷ ed. BI. n. 371, and cf. AA. iv. The metres are decidedly various; cf. Eggeling, SBE. xlii, xxx, n. 2; Oldenberg, Prolegomena, pp. 38, 509 seq.

⁵ This Sāman is either SV. ii. 352-354, or ii. 356-357, the latter being intended, according to Eggeling, xliv. 338, n. 2. For the usual Sāmans see SBE. xxvi. 234, n. 1.

sacrifice; 'who knows', they say, 'if all of it is done or not?' In that the Achāvāka's Saman is the Saṅkṛti, (it serves) to make the horse whole, to win it entirely, to prevent interference. The last day is an Atirātra with all the Stomas, to obtain all, to conquer all; verily he obtains all, he conquers all with it.

v. 3. 1. In¹ that he completes (the sacrificer) with one animal, (it is) for the continuity of the sacrifice and to avoid cutting it in two. The male animals belong to Indra; in that being Indra's they are offered to the fires; he causes strife among the deities. He should use Trisūbh verses, appertaining to Agni, for the Yājyās and Anuvākyās; in that they appertain to Agni, (the verses) are Agni's, in that they are Trisūbhis (they are) Indra's; (verily they serve) for prosperity; he does not cause strife among the deities. To Vāyu of the team he offers a hornless (animal); Vayu is the brilliance of Agni; it is offered to brilliance; therefore wherever the wind [1] blows, the fire burns; verily it follows its own brilliance. If he were not to offer to him of the team, the sacrificer would go mad: (an offering) is made to him of the team, to prevent the sacrificer going mad. The Yājyā and the Anuvākyā contain² (the words) 'wind' and 'white', to secure brilliance. 'The golden germ first arose';³ (with these words) he pours out the butter portion; the golden germ is Prajāpati; (verily it serves) for likeness to Prajāpati. This (animal) is slain to make up all forms of animals; its hairs are [2] the form of man, its lack of horns that of horses, the possession of one set of incisors only⁴ that of cows, the sheep-like hooves that of sheep, that it is a goat, that is the form of goats. The wind is the abode dear to cattle; in that it is offered to Vāyu, in accord cattle wait upon him.

This section returns to the fire ritual, and deals briefly with the offering to Prajāpati, mentioned in TB. v. 1. 8. 3, that to Vāyu Niyutvānt which is employed in place of the offering of the other animals when desired, and three offerings, to Agni and Viṣṇu, to Aditi, and to Vaishvanara, which are made on the day of consecration, the last of which offered first serves to atone for the failure of the maker to keep the fire in the pan for a whole year, the normal period; see ApGS. xvi. 7. 1, 8, 10, 8. 1-12; BG. x. 10. 12.

² See above, TB. v. 1. 8. 3.

³ The verses are RV. vii. 69. 3; vi. 49. 4, which contain the desired words; they are also used in another rite for Vayu; so TB. ii. 8. 1. 1.

'Should an animal be offered to Vāyu, or to Prajāpati?' they say; if he were to offer it to Vāyu, he would depart from Prajāpati; if he were to offer it to Prajāpati, he would depart from Vāyu [3]; in that the animal is offered to Vayu, therefore he does not depart; in that a cake is offered to Prajāpati, therefore he does not depart from Prajāpati; in that it is offered on twelve potsherds, therefore he does not depart from Vaiçvānara. When about to consecrate himself, he offers to Agni and Visnu on eleven potsherds; all the deities are Agni; the sacrifice is Visnu; verily he lays hold of the deities¹ and the sacrifice; Agni is the lowest of the deities, Visnu the highest; in that he offers to Agni and Visnu on eleven potsherds, the sacrificer envelops the gods [4] on both sides and wins them. By the cake the gods prospered in yonder world, by the oblation in this, he who desires, 'May I prosper in yonder world', should offer a cake; verily he prospers in yonder world. In that it is offered on eight potsherds, it is connected with Agni, in that it is offered on three potsherds, it is connected with Visnu; (verily it serves) for prosperity. He who desires, 'May I prosper in the world', should offer an oblation; the ghee belongs to Agni, the rice grains to Visnu, therefore [5] an oblation should be offered, verily he prospers in this world. It is (an offering) to Aditi; Aditi is this (earth); verily he finds support in this (earth); verily also he extends the sacrifice over this. He who piles the fire without keeping it in the pan for a year—(it is with him) as when an embryo is dropped prematurely—would go to ruin; he should offer before (the others) on twelve potsherds to Vaiçvānara; Agni Vaiçvānara is the year; even as (an embryo) attaining a year's growth [6] is born when the due season is come, so he having obtained the year when the due season is come, piles the fire; he goes not to ruin. Vaiçvānara is the form dear to Agni; verily he wins the form dear to him. These offerings are three; these worlds are three; (verily they serve) for the mounting of these worlds.

v. 5. 2. Prajāpati² after creating creatures in affliction entered into them; from them he could not emerge; he said, 'He shall prosper who shall pile me again hence.' The gods piled him; then they prospered; in that they piled him, that is why the piling has its name. He who knowing thus piles the fire is prosperous. 'For what good is the fire piled?' they say. 'May I be possessed of the fire' [1]. (with this aim) is the fire piled; verily he becomes possessed of the fire. 'For what good is the fire piled?' they say. 'May the gods know me', (with this hope) is the fire piled, the gods know him. 'For what good is the fire piled?' they say. 'May I have a house', (with this hope) is the fire piled: verily he becomes possessed of a house. 'For what good is the fire piled?' they say. 'May I be rich in cattle', (with this hope) is the fire [2] piled: verily he becomes rich in cattle. 'For what good is the fire piled?' they say. 'May the seven men live upon me', (with this hope) is the fire piled; three before, three behind, the self the seventh; so many live upon him in yonder world. Prajapati desired to pile the fire; to him spake earth; 'Thou shalt not pile the fire on me: thou wilt burn me excessively, and I being burned excessively will shake you apart [3]; thou wilt fall into a sorry state.' He replied, 'So shall I act that it will not burn thee excessively.' He stroked it, (saying). 'May Prajapati seat thee; with that deity, in the manner of Angiras, do thou sit firm'; verily making this a brick he put it down, to prevent excessive burning. That on which he is to pile the fire he should stroke, (saying), 'May Prajapati seat thee; with that deity in the manner of Angiras, do thou sit firm' [4]; verily making this a brick he sets it down to prevent excessive burning. Prajapati desired, 'Let me be propagated', he saw this (fire) in the pan, he bore it for a year, then was he propagated. Therefore for a year must it be borne, then is he propagated. To him the Vasus said, 'Thou hast been propagated; let us be propagated.' He gave it to the Vasus, they bore it for three days, thereby [5] they created three hundred, three and thirty, therefore should it be borne for three days; verily is he propagated. To them the Rudras said, 'Ye have been propagated, let us be propagated.' They gave it to the Rudras; they bore it for six days, thereby they created three hundred, three and thirty: therefore should it be borne for six days; verily is he propagated. To them the Adityas said, 'Ye have been propagated; let us [6] be propagated'. They gave it to the Adityas, they bore it for twelve days, thereby they created three hundred, three and thirty: therefore should it be borne for twelve days; verily is he propagated. Thereby they created a thousand, the pan being the thousandth; he who knows thus the pan as the thousandth obtains a thousand cattle.

v. 5. 3. 'With¹ a Yajus it is made, with a Yajus it is cooked, with a Yajus it is set loose, this pan; it is therefore exhausted, it cannot be used again'; they say. 'O Agni, yoke thy (steeds)', 'Yoke them that best invoke the gods', (with these words) he offers in the pan; verily he yokes it again place after the treatment of the Dūrva brick in TS. v. 2. 8. 3, and the rest could be placed in TS. v. 2. 9.

and thereby is it not exhausted. He, who yokes Agni where the yoking is to be performed, yokes him (best) among those who are yoking. 'O Agni [1], yoke thy (steeds)', 'Yoke them that best invoke the gods', he says,¹ this is the yoking of Agni; verily he yokes him, and yokes him (best) among those who are yoking. The theologians say, 'Should the fire be piled up with face down, or face upwards?' Now the fire is piled in the likeness of birds, if he were to pile it face downward, the libations would reach it behind; if upwards, it could not fly, it would not be heavenly for him; he puts down the human head towards the east, face upwards [2], verily the libations reach it in the mouth; he does not pile it face upwards; verily it is heavenly for him. He offers with (a verse) addressed to Sūrya;² verily he bestows sight upon it; twice he offers, for there are two eyes; he offers with the same verse, for sight is the same, for prosperity. The gods and the Asuras were in conflict, they deposited their desirable wealth; the gods appropriated it by means of the Vāmabhṛt (brick); that is why the Vāmabhṛt (supporting the desirable) has its name. In that he puts down the Vāmabhṛt, the sacrificer by it appropriates the desirable wealth of his foe. It has a head of gold; gold is light, the desirable is light; verily by light he appropriates the desirable which is light; there are two Yajuses,³ for support.

v. 5. 4. The⁴ waters were the wives of Varuna; Agni longed for them, he had union with them; his seed fell away, it became this (earth); what second fell away became yonder (sky); this is the Virāj, yonder the Svarāj; in that he puts down two Virāj (bricks)⁵ he puts down these two (worlds). Now the seed which yonder (sky) impregnates, finds support in this (earth), it is propagated, it becomes plants [1] and shoots; them the fire eats. He who knows thus is propagated, and becomes an eater of food. If a man be full of seed, one should put both down in the first layer for him; verily these in accord pour seed for him; if a man have poured his seed, he should put one in the first layer for him and one in the last; verily he encloses by the two (worlds) the seed he has impregnated. For a year to no man [2] should he descend in honour; for these two (worlds) descend in honour for no man; that is their rule. He who piles the fire without a head, becomes headless in yonder world, he who piles it with a head becomes possessed would be expected in TS. v. 2. 10. There is a Brahmana on § 8 in TS. v. 7. 4. 1 of a head in yonder world. To the fire I shall now mount with ghee that the gods may come hither, delighting in the offerings, increasing holy order; on the path of the moving ocean I offer all the days to Viyakarman the unslaying oblation!'' (with these words) he puts down the naturally perforated brick and offers [3]. that is the head of the fire; verily he piles the fire with its head. He becomes possessed of a head in yonder world who know thus. The fire is piled for the world of heaven; whatever is done out of order, that is not heavenly; the fire is heavenly; having put down the layer he should strike it, (saying), 'May the wise discern wisdom and folly, like backs straight and crooked like men, for wealth and good offspring. O god, grant us freedom and keep bondage from us.'* Verily he puts it down in order. He piles (the fire) facing east: it becomes heavenly for him.

⁴ In this section are dealt with the Octahsic bricks, an oblation for the Svayamārṣapada brick, and the stroking of the layer of bricks. The Octahsic brick should have come in after TS. v. 6. 3, and the rest

v. 5. 5. Viyakarman, lord of the quarters, may he protect our cattle, may he protect us, to him homage! Prajapati; Rudra; Varuna; Agni; lord of the quarters; may he protect our cattle, may he protect us, to him homage!*

These are the deities, overlords of these animals; to them he is cut off who puts down the heads of the animals. He puts down the gold bricks; verily he pays honour to these deities. The theologians [1] say, 'In the fire he places the domesticated animals, with pain he afflicts the wild animals; what then does he leave?' In that he puts down the golden bricks, and gold is immortality, by immortality he makes healing for the domesticated animals, he hurts them not. The first naturally perforated brick is expiration, the second cross-breathing, the third inspiration. Having put down the first naturally perforated brick he should breathe out along it; verily he unites expiration with expiration; having put down the second [2] he should breathe across; verily he unites cross-breathing with cross-breathing; having put down the third, he should breathe in; verily he

MS. adds nah after samskṛaya; VS. has paryā śāmanah. For the use of this verse see ĀpG. xvi. 22, 2, xvi. 1, 17; 8, 9; MCS. vi. 1, 7; EGS. x. 36. Another use is seen in TS. v. 7, 4 a.

² This is EV. iv. 2, 11; Ks. xl. 5, where von Schröder rightly replaces cittam devīm for the single t of the MS. The sense is not easy: Sayana supplies 'horses' for prāṇād, and Oldenberg (Ṛgveda-Notes, i. 265) avoids the need of reading mātṛād by supplying (good and bad). Dhruva and śāmanah are uncertain in sense; Max Müller refers them to the life that is and that to come, Roth to wealth and penury, cf. Oldenberg, SBE xlii. 321. For the use of the verse see ĀpG. xvi. 24, 2, 4; EGS. x. 40, 43, 46.

³ This section deals with the gold bricks and the naturally perforated bricks; they are placed down five and four in number respectively after the Nakṣatra bricks (TS. iv. 4, 19), and so should have been dealt with in TS. v. 4, 1, 3; see ĀpG. xvi. 7, 2, 8, and cf. MCS. x. 40, which agrees as to the Seayamatrapīḍi; 2d as to the gold bricks.

unites inspiration with inspiration ; verily he kindles him with the breaths. 'Bhūḥ, Bhāvah, Suvar', (with these words) he puts down the naturally perforated bricks ; the naturally perforated bricks are these worlds ; with these exclamations Prajāpati was propagated ; in that he puts down the naturally perforated bricks with these exclamations, he puts down these worlds. and over these [3] worlds he is propagated.

By Agni the gods sought to go to the world of heaven, with him they could not fly : they saw these four naturally perforated bricks, they put them down in the quarters, with him with eyes on all sides they went to the world of heaven. In that he puts down four naturally perforated bricks in the quarters, the sacrificer with Agni with eyes on all sides goes to the world of heaven.

v. 5. 6. a 'O² Agni, come to enjoy'³ he says ; verily he summons him.

b 'Agni we choose as envoy',⁴ he says ; verily having called he chooses him.

c 'By Agni Agni is kindled',⁵ he says ; verily he kindles him.

d 'May Agni lay the foes',⁶ he says ; verily he confers power on him when kindled.

e 'O Agni, we exalt the praise',⁷ he says ; verily he exalts him. These are the forms of the days [1] : verily each day he piles him, and wins the forms of the days. The theologians say, 'For what reason are other bricks exhausted, the space-filler not ?' 'Because it is connected with Indra and Agni and with Bṛhaspati', he should say, for Indra and Agni and Bṛhaspati are those among the gods who are not exhausted. It has a follower,⁸ to avoid monotony. He follows it with an Anusṭubh ; the space-filler is the body: the Anusṭubh the breath ; therefore breath comes through all the limbs. 'Thy of him, streaming with milk'[2], he says ; therefore there is sap in every joint : 'the dappled mix the Nona', he says : the dappled (cow) is food ; verily he wins food ; Agni is praise, food is praise ; verily he wins food ; 'the clans in the birthplace of the gods, in the three realms of sky', he says ; verily he makes these worlds full of light for him. He who knows the support of the bricks finds support. 'With that deity, in the manner

v. 5.7. The fire is piled up for the world of heaven; the set of eleven stakes is a thunderbolt; if he were to set up eleven stakes in the fire, he would shut it off from the world of heaven with the thunderbolt; if he were not to set it up, he would sever the journals from the chips; one stake he sets up; verily he does not shut it off from the world of heaven, nor sever the animals from the chips. He who piling the fire steps down on it is deprived of power and strength: he should, with a verse addressed to Indra² [1], put down a brick opposite his step; verily he is not deprived of power and strength. The fire is Rudra, his are three missiles, one that comes straight on, one that strikes transversely, and one that follows up. To them he is cut off who piles the fire: having piled the fire he should give (a bow) with three arrows to a Brahman, unasked; verily to them he pays homage, and also he ransoms himself from them.

The bow of thine, O Rudra, in the east [2], may the wind blow after it for thee, to thee, O Rudra, with the year I pay homage.³

The bow of thine, O Rudra, on the south, may the wind blow after it for thee, to thee, O Rudra, with the full year I pay homage.

The bow of thine, O Rudra, on the west, may the wind blow after it for thee, to thee, O Rudra, with the Idā year I pay homage.

The bow of thine, O Rudra, on the north, may the wind blow after it for thee [3], to thee, O Rudra, with the Idū year I pay homage.

The bow of thine, O Rudra, above, may the wind blow after it for thee, to thee, O Rudra, with the year I pay homage.

Agni is Rudra; just as a tiger stands in anger, so he also (stands): when piled with these he reverences him; verily with homage he soothes him.

² Cf. KS. xxii. 8; KapS. xxxv. 2; MS. (II. 4. 8. This section contains (1) a rule in favour of the use of one stake only in place of eleven, which is an optional number; then (2) it prescribes the use of a brick to cover the step of the priest on the altar, and (3) then gives the Mantras for the gift of a bow unasked to a Brahman, which follows the Catarndriya litany, and finally (4) the Mantras for one who is about to go on a journey. The step episode belongs logically with

TS. v. 2. 6, the Catarndriya with TS. v. 4. 3: the last has no special place as it is a pure addition, while the first contradicts the text.

(He reverences) the tail with the seasonal Yujñayajñiva;³ verily he finds support in the seasons. He pays reverence with the Pṛṣṭha (Slutras); the Pṛṣṭhas are brilliance; verily he confers brilliance upon him. Prajapati created Agni; he, created, went away from him; him he checked (usāruyata) by the Vāravantiya, and that is why the Vāravantiya⁴ has its name. By the Cyaita⁵ he congealed him, and that is why the Cyaita has its name [1]. In that he reverences with the Vāravantiya, he restrains him, and by the Cyaita he congeals him. At the joining of the wings he reverences with the heart of Prajapati;⁶ verily he attains his affection.

v. 5. 9. a O¹ Agni, the ocean, thy arrow called the young, with it be gentle to us; homage to this of thine; may we prosper, living on this of thine

b O Agni, the boisterous, o the abyssal; o the strong; o the desirable; thy arrow called young with it be gentle to us; homage to this of thine, may we prosper, living on this of thine.²

f These³ layers are the five Agnis, the first is the ocean by name, the second the boisterous [1], the third the abyssal, the fourth the strong, the fifth the desirable; if he were not to offer libations to them they would burn the Adhvaryu and the sacrificer, in that he offers these libations, verily he soothes them with their proper portion; neither Adhvaryu nor sacrificer goes to ruin.

k Some Rudras have shares in the libations (āhuti), others have shares in the oblations (havis) [3]: having offered the Catarudriya, he should lay down on the last brick the oblation of Gavidhuka; verily he soothes him with his portion. 'For him indeed is the Caturudriya offered in truth', they say, 'for whom this (oblation) is made on the fire.'

l May the Vasus, with the Rudras, protect thee on the east; may the Pitrs whose lord is Iana, with the Pitrs, protect thee on the south; may the Adityas, with the All-gods, protect thee on the west; may Dyutana Maruta, with the Maruts, protect thee on the north [4]; may the gods, whose chief is Indra, protect thee from below and from above.

between the two offerings for the Rudras is not a great one, but the second is laid down on the brick (as dravida) as a morsel, and not offered as an ordinary offering. So in the other texts. It is a polemic against the use of TS. iv. 4. 17 a for anointing with golden chips, see ApGS. xvii. 11. 1, though the uttara allow of the use of both in the different places. f. MS. ii. 13. 21. This section contains the Mantras and the Brahmanas for (1) the fire serpent offerings (a); (2) the six great offerings (c), and (3) the freeing of the yoked Agni (e); the first two are placed naturally by the comm. after TS. v. 4. 9, the last has no special place as not being any part of the rite as contemplated above. d Some gods eat the offerings, others do not: verily the piler of the fire delights both sets. He offers these libations with curds mixed with honey, verily he delights them with their proper portion. Or rather they say, 'The gods who eat not the oblations are the bricks' [5]. He offers going round in order: verily he delights them completely.

e Suck this mighty breast of the waters,
Filled in the midst of the flood, O Agni;
Rejoice in the spring of sweetness, O ocean,

f If one having yoked the fire does not set it free, then just as a horse yoked and not set free in hunger is overcome, so his fire is overcome, and with it being overcome the sacrificer is overcome; he having piled the fire becomes aheat [6]; 'Suck this mighty breast of the waters', (with these words) he offers a ladle full of butter; this is the freeing of the fire; verily setting it free he gives it food. Therefore they say, both he who knows

The use of these verses is clearly supplementary to the verses given in TS. iv. 6. 1 n and treated of in TS. v. 4. 5, and the comm.'s attempt to reconcile them as really complementary is wasted. The use of a Stoma as well as an asprtinga is an addition with no obvious point.

v. 5. 11. To³ Indra, the king, a boa; to Varuna, the king, a black (antelope); to Yama, the king, a deer; to the bull, the king, a Gayal, to the tiger, the king, a Bos Gavæus; to the king of men a monkey, for the swift falcon⁴ a quail; for the Nilaṅgu (snake) a worn; for Soma, the king, a gazelle; for the ocean a crocodile; for the snowy mountain an elephant.

v. 5. 12. The⁵ ape is for Prajāpati; the owl, the Halikṣpa, the cat, are for Dhātr; to Sarasvati the white starling, of human speech; the wild goat, the ichneumon, the Čukkā, these are for Pūṣan; the curlew to speech.⁶

v. 5. 13. To⁷ the offspring of waters a fish; the crocodile, the dolphin, the Kulikaya are for the ocean; to speech the Paingarija; to Bhaga the sea-crow; the swan, the Vāhana, the woodpecker, these are for Vāyu; to the quarters the Cakravaka.⁸

v. 5. 14. To⁹ night, a lion-constrictor, the mole, the Srjaya, the lizard, ³ Cf. KSAyamedha, vii. 1; MS. iii. 14. 11; VS. xxiv. 30. This section begins the list of victims, insects for the eleven sacrificial parts; 11-21 contain the wild animals; 22-34 domesticated animals. In the whole 11-34 KS. agrees save for misreadings with the TB. MS. and VN. are less in accord. Cf. Apṭa, iii. 14. 4; BCS. x. 28, 26; MCS. ix. 3. 4. The beasts here enumerated are all treated of in the Vedic India, and the little known is given there. The comm., both Bhāskara and Śayāṇa, merely quote like Mahidhara on VS., and Śayāṇa falsely asserts that each alternate Aranyakha has eleven animals in it. Bhāskara says there are eighty-one animals in eleven sections, and they can be in some people's view drawn merely, as being hard to catch.

⁵ Cf. KSAyamedha, vii. 2; MS. iii. 14. 12, 13; VS. xxiv. 31, 33. Cf. BCS. xv. 22, which prescribes five animals worth and five north on the stakes for the ten sections 12-21.

⁷ Cf. KSAyamedha, vii. 3; MS. iii. 14. 2, 3, 15, 16; VS. xxiv. 34, 35.

⁹ Cf. KSAyamedha, vii. 4; MS. iii. 14. 14 VS. xxiv. 33. The comm. explains Srjaya as a black fly, a white serpent or dark buffalo. The pot nosed is a kānd these are for Mitra to leath th dark serpent to wril the v per the pot-nosed, the lotus-sitter, the copper snak., these are for Frasîr, to the echo the Vâhava.

v. 5. 15. The¹ human beast to the roost the lizard, the Kâlakâ, the woodpecker, these are for the trees; the dappled (deer) to day; the black (antelope) to night; the cuckoo, the Ksvînka, the black-headed, these are (to be offered) to Aryaman; the crab for Dhâtî.

v. 5. 16. For² the sun the crane; the deer, the peacock, the hawk, these are for the Gandharvas; for the Vasus the flame-lin partridge; for the Rudras the partridge; the red doe, the Kudârpañca, the Golattikâ, these are for the Apsarases; to the wood the Spmarâ.³

v. 5. 17. The⁴ dappled (deer) is for the All-gods; the Pitva, Nyañku, the Kaça, these are (to be offered) to Arumati; the cuckoo is for the half-months; the tortoise for the months, the Krayi, the Kujara, the gallinule, these are (to be offered) to Siniyali, to Bhîspati the cat.⁵

v. 5. 18. The⁶ Çakâ is for earth, the field-mt, the Kaça the flying fox, these are for the fathers; the pole-cat for the seasons; the quail to the year; the pigeon, the owl, the hare, these are for Nirrti; the cock for Savitî.⁷

v. 5. 19. The⁸ deer for Rudra; the chameleon, the bird, the Pippakâ, these are (to be offered) to the arrow shot; the gazelle for the Maruts; the Çarga to the Brahman; the hyena, the black (deer), the dog of four eyes, the ass, these are for other men; to Agni the crow.⁹

of serpent; the lotus-sitter is a boas serpent or a bœ; the Vahasa is a halpa-pramandarupa, while in 18 it is a gryphus. Akruti Janush

¹ Cf. KSAçvamedha, vii. 5; MS. iii. 14, 16, 17; VS. xxiv. 35, 36.

³ Cf. KSAçvamedha, vii. 6; MS. iii. 14, 18; VS. xxiv. 37.

⁵ Cf. KSAçvamedha, vii. 7; MS. iii. 14, 20; VS. xxiv. 38

⁶ KS. has bideñ, VS. (xxiv. 32) pideñ, and KS. has pmayñ for piyñ. Nyañku, according to the comm., is a deer or a boar; the Dâtyâhu a black-throat or a dweller on the lake; the others are kinds of beasts. Bhaskara gives the Krayi as a water-owl, or a gold-eater; the Kotapî a manticore or a kind of owl, the Dâtyâhu a water-owl or a lake dweller.

⁷ Cf. KSAçvamedha, vii. 8; MS. iii. 14, 19; VS. xxiv. 35, 38.

⁹ Cf. KSAçvamedha, vii. 9; MS. iii. 14, 20, 21; VS. xxiv. 39, 40.

¹⁰ KS. lists by them, with which von Schröder compares AK. ii. 5. 12 sch. kyâkâ: the comm. gives the Çarga as a wild Cataka, the Dhûlikâ as the white crow, following Bhaskara.

v. 5. 20. The¹ Alaja is for the atmosphere; the otter, the diver, the swimmer, these for the waters; to Aditi the Hāssasāci; to Indrāṇi the Kirē; the vulture, the white-breasted, the Vārdhrāṇasa, these are for the sky; the hedgehog is for sky and earth.²

v. 5. 21. The³ eagle for Parjanya; the swan, the wolf, the cat, these are for Indra; the otter for the waters; the jackal is (to be offered) to Aryaman; the lion, the ichneumon, the tiger, these are (to be offered) to great Indra, the rhinoceros to desire.⁴

v. 5. 22. For⁵ Agni the black-necked; for Sarasvati the ewe; the brown one for Soma; the dark for Pūṣan; the white-backed for Br̄haspati; the variegated for the All-gods; the ruddy one for Indra; the speckled one for the Maruts; the mixed one for Indra and Agni; the one spotted below for Savitṛ, the ram for Varuṇa.⁶

v. 5. 23. The⁷ horse, the hornless one, the Gayal, these are for Prajāpati; for Agni the two with black necks; for Tvaṣṭṛ the two with hairy thighs; the two white-backed for Br̄haspati; to Dhāṭṛ the speckled-bellied one; for the sun the white ram.

v. 5. 24. To⁸ Agni of the front the red-limbed⁹ ox, the two spotted below for Savitṛ; the two red-navelled for Pūṣan; the two hornless tawny ones for the All-gods; the speckled for the Maruts; the black goat for Agni; the ewe for Sarasvati; the black ram with one white foot for Varuṇa.

20; VS. xxiv. 34, 39.

² KS. has Kīrsā; the comm. explains ptikakṣi as a vulture, and vīrdrigasi as a kha-dgāmīga, while Bhāskara gives as a variant kaśkārcadrika.

³ Cf. KSAyvamedha, vii. 11, KS. xxiv. 34-37.

⁴ The comm. gives the Parastant as a buffalo, but cf. Vedic Index, i. 492. Bhāskara gives buffalo or ass as the sense.

⁵ Cf. KSAyvamedha, viii. 1; MS. iii. 18. 2;
VS. xxix. 58.

⁷ Cf. KSAyvamedha, viii. 2; MS. iii. 18. 2; VS. xxiv. 1. BCS. xv. 33 prescribes their binding to the central post.

⁸ Cf. KSAyvamedha, viii. 3; VS. xxvi. 59;
BCS. xv. 23, which prescribes their binding to the central post. In the MSS. AC. the number is given as 19, 15-18 being called 14. 2-5 and 20 and 21 being made 20. 1 and 20. 2. This is interesting, for in ĀpCS. xvii. 14. 4 the number is given as ten, which corresponds with the omission of 15-18, but not with that of 21.

⁹ rohitallāga or raktā is the version of Bhāskara.

v. 6. 2. He⁵ draws cups of water ; the cups are the royal consecration ; the fire is the consecration ; the royal consecration is the consecration of Varuna ; (the fire) to be piled is Agni's consecration ; verily by them is he consecrated ; verily also he conquers both the worlds, that of him who has offered the royal consecration and that of the piler of the fire. There are waters ; the waters are foes of Agni ; in that he puts the waters down below the fire, ¹ This is AV. iii. 18. 4 ; AV. and MS. insert a needless sah, but not KS. The sense is uncertain ; the comm. here takes it that made great by Indra they showed energetic action (cashtavatyah) ; that on AV. that they breathed freely or heaved a sigh of relief ; Weber (Ind. Stud. xvii. 240) that they sighed under his weight (āpi = adhi according to comm. on AV.) ; Roth (in Whitney's trans. of AV.) thinks Indra politely inquires, 'their worships have given themselves an airing'. Bhāskara renders 'they breathed out (ucchrasitavatyah) "we have become great through him"', and points out that yathāvṛṣṇam may apply to Indra or the waters.

² Here KS. ends ; this is AV. iii. 18. 5, which, however, has dean, as has MS. MS. inverts the order, putting a and b of k in place of a and b of i, and has āpo devīr gṛhṇāmīn u āpah.

(they serve) to overcome his foe, he prospers himself, his foe is defeated. The waters are ambrosia [1]; therefore they sprinkle with water him who is faint; he does not go to ruin, he lives all his life, for whom these are put down, and who knows them thus. The waters are food, the waters are cattle, cattle are food; an eater of food and rich in cattle he becomes, for whom these are put down, and who knows them thus. They are twelve; the year has twelve months; verily by the year he wins food for him [2]; there are vessels used; in a vessel is food eaten; verily he wins food with its birthplace; up to the twelfth generation he eats food; moreover, he is not cut off from his vessel for whom these are put down, nor he who knows them thus. The pots and the pans¹ make pairs, for the propagation of pairing; with offspring, with cattle, with pairings is he propagated for whom these are put down and he who [3] knows them thus. Agni is pain; he afflicts the Adhvaryu, the sacrificer, and offspring with pain, in that he puts down water, he soothes his pain; neither Adhvaryu nor sacrificer goes to ruin, offspring are soothed where these are put down. The waters are the hearts of the waters, in that he puts these down, he unites these with (the waters) of the sky; Parjanya becomes likely to rain [4]. He who knows their home and their arrangement becomes possessed of a home, things go in order for him. Along the furrows he puts (them) down; this is their home, their arrangements; he who knows thus becomes possessed of a home and things go in order for him. The others he puts down in pairs, but four in the middle, for support. The bricks are food, this oblation is food in very presence; in that he puts down this oblation, verily straightway [5] he wins food for him; in the middle he puts (them) down; verily he bestows food on him in the middle; therefore in the middle is food eaten. It is offered to Brhaspati; Brhaspati is the holy power of the gods; verily by holy power he wins food for him. 'Thou art splendour; for splendour thou!' he says; brilliant and resplendent does he become, for whom these are put down, and he who knows it thus.

v. 6. 3. He² puts down the bricks of being;³ in every place is death.

The pots are given distinctive marks to ascribe to them male and female characteristics.

* This section gives the Brahmanas and in part the Mantras for (1) twelve Bhûte-galas; (2) eight devasuras, harish, and (3) the pouring over the sacrifice seated on a throne, covered with a skin, on the right wing of the altar; see for (1), ApQs. xvii. 2, 8; BQs. x. 46; for (2) the ApQs. xvii. 22, 9, 10, and cf. BQs. x. 53, 58; for (3) ApQs. xvii. 19, 4-11; BQs. x. 58. The Bhūṣṭakas follow the Valakhilyas and so this Bhūṣṭaka follows on PS. v. 3. 2; the Abhiśvā is also quoted in the Vajapayavṛtya explained in PS. v. 4. 3.

born ; wherever death is born, thence he removes it by sacrifice ; therefore the piler of the fire lives all his life, for all deaths are removed by him ; therefore the piler of the fire is not to be practised against ; his witchcraft turns upon him (who does so) and lays him low. He who piles the fire is consecrated ; these are the offerings of the divine consecrators ;¹ so many are the consecrations of the gods, and they [1] confer consecrations upon him ; they consecrate him, the fire is consecration ; the royal consecration is the consecration of Varuna ; (the fire) to be piled is the consecration of holy power. 'On the instigation of the god Savitṛ, thee', he says, verily instigated by Savitṛ he consecrates him with holy power, with the deities² He pours down every sort of food, to win every sort of food. He pours down over him from the front face to face ; for from the front face to face is food eaten. He pours down from the head, for from the head is food eaten ; he causes (the water) to flow over up to the mouth [2] ; verily on the mouth he bestows food-eating upon him. 'With the lordship of Agni I consecrate thee', he says ; this is the consecration of Agni ; verily he consecrates him with it. 'With the lordship of Bṛhaspati I consecrate thee', he says ; Bṛhaspati is the holy power of the gods ; verily with holy power he consecrates him. 'With the lordship of Indra I consecrate thee', he says ; verily he confers power from above upon him. That [3] is the form of the royal consecration. He who knowing thus piles the fire conquers both the worlds, that of him who has offered the royal consecration and that of the piler of the fire. When Indra had been consecrated, his power and strength fell away in ten places ; the gods brought it together with the Sautrāṇī ;³ he who piles the fire is consecrated, having piled the fire he should sacrifice with the Sautrāṇī ; verily collecting power and strength he places them in himself.

v. 6. 4. The⁴ year in unison with the Ayavans ;⁵ the dawn in unison with the

² This is part of the Vajaprasavaya : these are offerings made of both wild and domesticated plants, in liquid form according to ApCS. xvii. 19. & 11. Ap. differs from TS. in taking the position in that the pouring of the offerings takes place while the priest stands facing east (vii. 19 10); this flatly contradicts the Māñṭukā ; he also evidently accepts the order of the Mantras as given in the Ap., which is the second for a Rājanya and the next for a Vaigya, but he recognizes also this form ; the reverse order is found in the parallel passage TB. i. 8. 8. 2. 8. VS. xviii. 27 has a parallel but only with Agni to this rite.

This section contains the treatment of five offerings on a Darbha stem ; the grass is taken up with root and all, and put down in the middle of the altar and five libations made over it ; see ApCS. xvi. 17. 7; MCS. vi. 2. 5, 6; KGS. xvii. 3. 2; BCS. x. 24. This Brāhmaṇa would naturally be found before TS. v. 2. 5.

⁵ KS. has द्यावाश्च, MS. द्यावाश्च, VS. द्यावाश्च ; the form is strange ; these Saṅruddy (cows) Sūrya in unison with the steed the Agyins in unison with the wondrous works Agni Vaiç in unison with the food offerings; with ghee; hail!

The year is the year the Ayāvas are the months, the red one the dawn, the steed Sūrya, the Agyins these two (worlds), Agni Vaiçvānara the year, the food offerings cattle, ghee cattle. With the year cattle are born; verily with the year he produces cattle for him. He offers on a blade of Darbha grass [1]; the Durlhas are the ambrosia the strength of the (earth); he offers on it, verily he is propagated. An eater of food he becomes for whom they offer thus. These deities are the foremost portions of Agni; verily he delights them; verily too he places the eye of Agni in front; he becomes not blind who knows thus. Waters were the world at first, the moving ocean; Prajāpati, becoming wind, rocked about on a lotus leaf; he [2] could find no support; he saw that nest of the waters, on it he piled the fire, that became this (earth), then indeed did he find support. (The brick) which he put down in front became the head, that is the eastern quarter; (the brick) which he put down on the right became the right side, that is the southern quarter; (the brick) which he put down behind became the tail, that is the western quarter; (the brick) which he put down on the left [3] became the left side, that is the northern quarter; (the brick) which he put down above became the back, that is the zenith. Agni of the five bricks is this (earth); therefore when they dig in it they knock up against the brick, against gravel. Now all this (earth) in the eyes of the birds shines at night, therefore birds do not at night rest upon it. He who knowing this piles a fire finds support, and conquers all the quarters. The Brahman is connected with Agni, therefore the Brahman finds prosperity in all the quarters; verily every quarter he goes to is his own. The fire is the nest of the waters; therefore waters draw the fire; verily they enter their own birthplace.

v. 6. 5. Having¹ kept the fire in the pan for a year in the second year he should offer on eight potsherds to Agni, to Indra on eleven potsherds, to the All-gods on twelve potsherds, to Bṛhaspati an oblation, to Viṣṇu on three potsherds; in the third year he should sacrifice with the Abhijit (offering). In that there is (an offering) on eight potsherds, the Gāyatri has eight syllables, and the morning pressing is connected with Agni and the Gāyatri, verily he supports by it the morning pressing and the ¹ Both agree in śrāv and īdāg. The last two words go with each libation.

² Cf. MS. xxii. 8. This section deals with the case of those who perform a year's consecration, and a year's Upasana; before them these five offerings are required, and after them the Abhijit is offered; see ĀpCS. xvii. 26. 8, 4, 12; BQS. xvii. 23 (tapacīlām ayamam).

Gāyatrī metre. In that there is (an offering) on eleven potsherds, the Trīṣṭubh has eleven syllables, and the midday pressing is connected with Indra and the Trisphu, verily he supports by it the midday pressing and the Trīṣṭubh [1] metre. In that there is (an offering) on twelve potsherds, the Jagatī has twelve syllables, and the third pressing is connected with the All-gods and the Jagatī, verily he supports by it the third pressing and the Jagatī metre. In that there is an oblation to Br̥haspati, and Br̥haspati is the holy power of the gods, verily he supports by it holy power. In that there is (an offering) to Viṣṇu on three potsherds, and Viṣṇu is the sacrifice, verily he supports by it the sacrifice. In that he sacrifices with the Abhijit in the third year, (it serves) for conquest. In that he keeps the fire in the pan for a year, he [2] saves this world by it; in that he piles the fire in the second year, he saves the atmosphere by it; in that he sacrifices in the third year, he saves yonder world by it. This (fire) Para Ātpāra, Kaksivants Aucjja, Vitahavya Crāyasa, and Trasadasasyu Paurukutsya¹ piled, being desirous of offspring, then indeed did they win thousands each of children; he is extended with offspring, with cattle, that measure he attains which they attained, who knowing thus piles the fire.

v 6. 6. a Prajāpati² piled the fire; it kept being razor-edged; the gods in terror did not approach it; they, clothing themselves in the metres, approached it, and that is why the metres have their name. The metres are holy power; the black antelope skin is the form of holy power; he puts on a pair of black antelope skin shoes; verily clothing himself with the metres he approaches the fire, to prevent injury to himself.

b The fire is put down as a treasure of the gods [1]. Now a treasure unguarded others find, or he cannot recollect where it is; he steps on the fire-pan; verily he makes himself its overlord, for guardianship. Or rather they say, 'It should not be stepped on'; the pan is connected with Nirṛti; if he were to step on it, he would hand himself over to Nirṛti; therefore it

² This section elaborates previous Brahmanas passages as follows: (1) It explains the use of black sandals enjoined in TS. v. 4. 4; it is noteworthy that it ignores the decision of that passage to put on one shoe only; (2) it justifies the putting of the man's head on the pan as a way of preserving the treasure of the fire; see TS. v. 2. 2. 2; (3) it adds a meaningless episode to the connexion of Prajāpati and the piling, TS. v. 5. 2. 2 (itself an addition); (4) it explains the offering on twelve potsherds to Vaicvānara mentioned in TS. v. 4. 7. 6; and (5) it specifies the verse for the putting in of dust as mortar, see TS. v. 3. 8. 7.

should not be stepped on. He puts down th. human head for guardianship, and moreover this is just as if one should say 'Guard that for me.' [2].

c Atharvan is Prajāpati; Indhyāne Atharvana is the fire, his bones are the bricks; as to that the seer says, 'Indra with the bones of Daitya'! In that he piles the fire with the bricks, he piles up the fire with itself; he has his own self in yonier world who knows thus.

d (The fire) to be piled is the body of Agni, Vaiçvānara is the self, in that he offers to Vaiçvānara after the piling, he prepares its [3] body and mounts it; the sacrificer thus prepares his body, in that he piles the fire; in that he offers to Vaiçvānara after the piling, verily having prepared his body he mounts it with the self; therefore they do not cut off from it; verily living he goes to the gods.

e He puts on dust with a verse addressed to Vaiçvānara: Agni Vaiçvānara² is this (earth), the dust is its piling, verily he piles Agni Vaiçvānara; Vaiçvānara is the form dear to Agni; verily he wins the form dear to him.

v. 6, 7. The³ girls obtained the brilliance (vinijemi) of Agni by means of the consecration; for three nights should he be consecrated, the Virāj has three feet, he obtains the Virāj. For six nights should he be consecrated; the year consists of six seasons: the Virāj is the year, he obtains the Virāj. For ten nights should he be consecrated: the Virāj has ten syllables; he obtains the Virāj. For twelve nights should he be consecrated; the year has twelve months; the Virāj is the year; he obtains the Virāj. He should be consecrated for thirteen nights; the year has thirteen months [1]; the Virāj is the year; he obtains the Virāj. For fifteen nights should he be consecrated: the nights of the half-month are fifteen; the year is made up by the half-months; the Virāj is the year; he obtains the Virāj. For seventeen nights should he be consecrated; the year has twelve months and seven seasons; the Virāj is the year; he obtains the Virāj. For twenty-four nights should he be consecrated; the year has twenty-four half-months; the Virāj is the year; he obtains the Virāj. For thirty nights should he be consecrated [2]; the Virāj has thirty syllables; he obtains the Virāj. For a month should he be consecrated: the year is the month; the Virāj is the year; he obtains the Virāj. For four months should he be consecrated; for four months the Vasus bore him, they conquered the earth, the Gāyatri metre; for eight the Rudras, they length of the Dikṣā; cf. TS. v. 1. 9. The whole depends on the play of the words virāj as brilliance and the name of a metre.

conquered the atmosphere, the Trisṭubh metre; for twelve the Ādityas, they conquered the sky, the Jagati metre; then they attained distinction, supremacy over the gods. Therefore after keeping the fire for twelve months, should one pile it up; the year has twelve months, the fire to be piled is the year, the bricks are days and nights; he piles him with the bricks obtained; verily also he attains distinction, supremacy over his equals. v. 6. 8. a Agni¹ is piled for the world of heaven; if he were not to mount after him the sacrificer would be excluded from the world of heaven. 'I have mounted on the earth; let not breath forsake me'; 'I have mounted on the atmosphere; let not offspring forsake me'; 'I have mounted on the sky, we have attained the light', he says; this is the mounting after Agni; verily by it he mounts after him, to attain the world of heaven.²

b If he were to set up (the eleven posts) commensurate with the wings [1], he would make the sacrificial rite too small, his offspring would be worse off than himself. He sets (it) up commensurate with the altar; verily he makes the sacrificial rite larger, his offspring does not become worse than himself.

c He should pile (the fire) of a thousand (bricks) when first piling (it); this world is commensurate with a thousand; verily he conquers this world. He should pile (it) of two thousand when piling a second time; the atmosphere is commensurate with two thousand; verily he conquers the atmosphere. He should pile (it) of three thousand when piling for the third time [2]; yonder world is commensurate with three thousand; verily he conquers yonder world.

d Knee deep should he pile (it), when piling for the first time; verily with the Gāyatri he mounts this world; navel deep should he pile (it) when piling for the second time; verily with the Trisṭubh he mounts the atmosphere; neck deep should he pile (it) when piling for the third time; verily with the Jagati he mounts yonder world.

e After piling the fire he should not have intercourse with a woman of pleasure, thinking, 'I shall deposit seed in that which is no womb'; nor after piling for the second time should he have intercourse with the wife of

Rethasic bricks various rules are laid down, supplementing TS. v. 5. 4; it contradicts it as to the use of the Mantras, which it reduces to two by omitting śāradā (TS. iv. 2. 9 n); (5) the Mantras for two of the Samīkṣayajñūśi (tenth and eleventh are given); (6) the Mantra said by the Adhvaryu at the end of the piling is set out, supplementing TS. v. 5. 8.

another [3], nor after piling for a third time should he have intercourse with any woman whatever. In that he piles the fire, he deposits seed, if he were to have intercourse he would be deprived of seed. Or rather they say, 'If he were not to have intercourse, there would be no offspring.' In that he puts down the two Ketahsia (bricks), they support the seed of the sacrificer; therefore he should have intercourse for the non-spilling of seed.¹

f Three seeds are taru, tarlar, taru granum [t]., if he were to put down two Ketahsia (bricks), he would cleave his seed; three he puts down, for the continuity of seed; the first Ketahsia is thus (earth), thus (earth) is speech, therefore they see this (earth), they see speech speaking; the second is the atmosphere, the atmosphere is breath, therefore they see not the atmosphere, nor breath; the third is yonder (sky), yonder (sky) is the eye, therefore they see yonder (sky), they see the eye. With a Yajus he sets down this one [5] and yonder one, but with mind only the middle, to arrange these worlds, and also the breaths.

g 'The sacrifice offered by the Khrigus, the Vasus, accord our desires; of thee thus offered, enjoyed, may I here enjoy wealth,' he says; verily he milks thereby the song and the recitation.²

h 'Father Matarigyan, bestow flawless abodes; the lawless abodes the Ucijis have made; let Soma, all knowing, the leader, be leader; let Vyshpati recite hymns and rejoicing,' he says; that is Agni's hymn, and with it he recites after him.³

¹ The rule is given similarly in RS, where the plural anyāpīdā striyāt is found in place of the singular; the caum explains that rāmā is a rāmāya among his wives, and forbids him to have recourse to her kanakā, but allows it prajāpti; after a second piling he is not to consort with the daughter of a man of a different caste, but can consort with one of his own caste; after a third he cannot resort to any one, of his own or another caste, for pleasure or for a son. The caum, on KPS, xviii. 6, 27 explains rāmā as a Qūdra wife, but this seems not borne out by any probability; in TĀ, v. 5, 18, after the prohibition of intercourse with a rāmā follows the phrase māyā rāma mākṣipām pītā, whence Weber (Ind. Stud. x. 74) suggests that a rāmāpīda is the name of rāmā, as the scholars believe; PW, vi. 224 hesitates between 'dark', i.e. low birth, and delightful, lovely. The sense seems to require that the seed would be wasted, and if so presumably the reference is to o Metatra. The reference to another's wife causes Weber (Ind. Stud. x. 83, 84) to attack Indian morality, and Delbrück has replied: aus Die Einwirkung des Vierwinkelsturzritualen, pp. 545 seqq. He lays stress on the meaning either wife or daughter or other female under a man's protection. Cf. Vedic Index, I, 233, 327.

² For this verse cf. ApGS, xvii. 23-9; it is found in various shapes repeatedly in the other Hanshitas, but not in TĀ; see MN, i. 4, 1; i. 18, 3 (MCh, i. 4, 2, 31; vi. 3, 6); HS, v. 4, xviii. 18; xxii. 1; xl. 3; VH, xviii. 36; KCh, xviii. 6, 19; in ApGS, v. 19. It appears as aryabhar dramedā vāsobhar dylots aharabhrī, in the second part VS, comes nearest, but has not, prāśava, and a gomeś. MCh, x. 42 places this verse after the veda, and both in close proximity to TĀ, v. 5, 5.

v. 6. 9. a That¹ fire which is kept in the pan is consecrated of fires; if he were to put it down their embryos would be liable to abortion, and that would be like descending after consecration. He sets it on a throne,² to support and prevent the falling of embryos, and he makes thus a consecration.

b (The fire) in the pan is an embryo, the sling is the womb; if he were to remove the pan from the sling, he would strike the embryo from the womb; the sling has six ropes; man is sixfold [1], the body, the head, four limbs; verily in himself he bears it.

c The fire is Prajāpati, his breasts are the pan and the mortar; his offspring live on them; in that he puts down the pan and the mortar, with them the sacrificer milks the fire in yonder world.

d The fire is the year, its bricks are arranged threefold, those of Prajāpati, of Viṣṇu [2], of Viçvakarman; the Prajāpati (bricks) are the days and nights; in that he keeps (the fire) in the pan, he puts down the Prajāpati (bricks); in that he takes up the kindling-sticks, and the trees are Viṣṇu's, verily he puts down the Viṣṇu (bricks); in that he piles the fire with bricks, and Viçvakarman is this (earth), verily he puts down the Viçvakarman (bricks). Therefore they say, 'Threefold is Agni.'

e This thus should the sacrificer himself pile; if another pile his fire, if he should not prosper him with sacrificial gifts, he would appropriate his fire; him who piles his fire he should prosper with sacrificial gifts; verily thus he preserves his fire.

v. 6. 10. Prajāpati³ piled the fire as the year by the seasons; by the spring he piled its front half, by the summer its right wing, by the rains its tail, by the autumn its left wing, by the winter its middle. By the Brahman class he piled its front half, by the lordly class its right wing, by cattle its tail, by the people its left wing, by hope its middle. He who knowing thus piles the fire piles it with the seasons; verily he wins all [1]; they hearken to him who has piled the fire, he eats food, he is resplendent. The first layer is this (earth), the mortar the plants and trees; the second is the atmosphere, the mortar the birds; the third is yonder (sky), the mortar the Nakṣatras; the fourth the sacrifice, the mortar the sacrificial fee; the fifth

88. 6, 7; in b K.S. has anutakṣiṣuḥ, as corrected by Caland, AB. has acchidrakthā kavayuḥ pāsan; in c AB. has nīhān neṣṭā.

of the fire is briefly explained; (5) the need of Dakṣinās is insisted on.

² The reading āsundt is certain; K.S. has the obvious āsandyūm, and the only possible explanation is that āsandisdayati was felt as like putikurute as a sort of compound, 'he-puts-on-a-chair.' The word āsandis may have helped the formation.

³ Cf. K.S. xxii. 4; MS. iii. 4. 8. This section contains a general celebration of the fire piling.

the sacrificer, the mortar offspring; if he were to pile it with three layers, he would obstruct the sacrifice, the fee, the self, offspring; therefore should it be piled with five layers; verily he preserves all. In that there [2] are three layers, (it is) since Agni is threefold, in that there are two (more), the sacrificer has two feet, (it is) for support; there are five layers, man is five-fold; verily he preserves himself. There are five layers, he covers (them) with five (sets of) mortar, these make up ten men has ten elements;¹ he preserves man in his full extent. Again the Virāj has ten elements, the Virāj is food; verily he finds support in the Virāj and the eating of food. The sixth layer is the year, mortar is the seasons, there are six layers, six (sets of) mortar, they make up twelve; the year has twelve months; verily he finds support in the year.

v. 6. 11. The² red, the dark red, the jujube red, these are for Prajāpati; the brown, the reddish-brown, the parrot brown, these are for Rudra. The white, the white-eyed, the white-necked, these have the fathers as their deities. Three black barren cows are for Varuṇa, three white barren cows for the Sun; the dusky-spotted³ hornless ones are for Mitra and Bhṛaspati.

v. 6. 12. The⁴ dappled, the one with cross-lines dappled, the one with dappled marks running up, these are for the Maruts, the bright,⁵ the ruddy woolled, the white, are for Sarasvati: the piebald, the grey piebald, the slightly piebald, these are for the All-gods; three dark barren cows are for Pūṣan, three ruddy barren cows for Mitra; the red-spotted hornless ones are for Indra and Bhṛaspati.

v. 6. 13. The⁶ white limbed, the one with white limbs on one side,⁷ the one with white limbs on both sides, these are for Indra and Vāyu; the one with white ear-holes, that with one white ear-hole, the one with both white ear-holes, they are for Mitra and Varuṇa; the one with a pure tail, the one with a completely pure tail, the one with a tail in lumps,⁸ these are for the Aśvins; three barren cows of varied colours are for the All-gods, three white for the supreme lord; the white-spotted hornless ones are for Soma and Pūṣan.

v. 6. 14. The¹ humped, the bull, the dwarf (animal), these are for Indra and Varuṇa ; the one with white hump, the white-backed, the white-rumped, these are for Indra and Brhaspati ; the white-footed, the white-lipped, the white-browed, these are for Indra and Viṣṇu ; the three white-flecked² barren cows are for Viçvakarman ; the three with piebald bellies are (to be offered) to Dhāṭṛ ; the white-spotted hornless ones are for Indra and Pūṣan.

v. 6. 15. Three³ long-eared⁴ ones are for Yama ; three white-footed⁵ for Soma ; three ichneumons are (to be offered) to Agni, the youngest ; three ruddy eighteen-month-old (sheep), these are for the Vasus ; three red gallinules, these are for the Rudras ; the brown-spotted hornless ones are for Soma and Indra.

v. 6. 16. Three⁶ small-eared⁷ are for Viṣṇu ; three with red-tipped ears⁸ are (to be offered) to Viṣṇu, the wide strider ; three with dewlaps⁹ are (to be offered) to Viṣṇu, the wide goer ; three of two and a half years old are for the Ādityas ; three of three years old are for the Aṅgirases ; the yellow-spotted hornless ones are for Indra and Viṣṇu.

v. 6. 17. To¹⁰ Indra, the king, are (to be offered) three white-backed ; to Indra, the overlord, three with white humps ; to Indra, the self-ruler, three with white buttocks ; three four-year-old¹¹ (cows) are for the Sādhyas ; three draught cows are for the All-gods ; the black-spotted hornless ones are for Agni and Indra.

v. 6. 18. To¹² Aditi are (to be offered) three ruddy-spotted ;¹³ to Indrāṇi three black-spotted ; to Kuhū three red-spotted ; three calves to Rākā ; three heifers to Sinivāli ; the red-spotted hornless ones are for Agni and Viṣṇu.

² sikhma denotes a white spotted beast, with patches like those of leprosy ; cf. sikha-mala, 'leprous', Vedic Index, ii. 449.

³ Cf. KSAçvamedha, ix. 5 ; MS. iii. 18. 4.

⁵ petapādāḥ is the version of the comm. The acc. form is illogical and may be compared with pataṅga (for whose origin cf. Wackernagel, Altind. Gramm. II. i. 201, 202), sārāṅga, piśāṅga.

⁶ Cf. KSAçvamedha, ix. 6 ; MS. iii. 18. 5 ; VS. xxiv. 4.

⁷ The use of sunthākārṇā in MS. and VS. shows with the context that ears must be alluded to ; the comm. have āveṣṭitakarṇā alpakāyā ity eke.

⁸ VS. (xxiv. 4) has addhyālakārṇāḥ, MS. adhrūḍhakārṇāḥ, the sense must be uncertain ; the comm. have kārṇopari praru dhakārṇāḥ.

⁹ The comm. has tambamānapuchāḥ, 'with dangling tail', not kīrṇāḥ as Weber suggested and as Bhāsk. has ; the sense is uncertain. The comm. on KGS. xvi. 1. 38 gives lapruda as kīrṇa, and CB. vi. 2. 2. 15 supports this.

¹¹ Explained in the comm. as three and a half years old, pañchauhi denotes 'four years old' ; see Vedic Index, i. 511 ; ii. 515.

¹² Cf. KSAçvamedha, ix. 8.

¹³ The accent is that of Pāṇini. vi. 2. 3.

v. 6. 19. Three reddish-brown ones are for Soma, to Soma, the king, are (to be offered) three dappled ones; the cloud-formed are for Parjanya; three goats with dewlaps² are (to be offered) to Indrāṇi; three ewes are for Aditi: those of auspicious mark and hornless are for sky and earth.

v. 6. 20. There³ are three black-spotted for Varuna; to Varuna, the king, are (to be offered) three red-spotted; to Varuna, destroyer of foes, three ruddy-spotted; three of varied colours are for the All-gods; three dappled for all the deities; the white-spotted hornless ones are for Indra and Surya.⁴

v. 6. 21. To⁵ Soma, self-ruler, there are (to be offered) two oxen which drag the cart; to Indra and Agni, the givers of force, two camels;⁶ to Indra and Agni, givers of might, two sheep⁷ that drag the plough; two heifers are for earth; to the quarters are (to be offered) two mares; two heifers are for earth; two females are for the Virāj;⁸ two heifers are for earth; two oxen that drag the carriage⁹ are (to be offered) to Vāyu; two black, barren cows are for Varuna; two bulls with high horns, destructive,¹⁰ are for the sky.

v. 6. 22. In¹¹ the morning eleven beasts of the ox kind are offered; the goat with spots, the blue jay, the Vidigūya,¹² these are for Tvaṣṭṛ. For

³ Cf. KSAyamedha, ix. 10.

⁴ āndrasmarīk, comm.

⁶ The comm. renders merely as pakateshiknoh schakāriteena purgāmīyugroñihāra; for the camel see Vedic Index, i. 104.

⁸ KS. has parīkṣā for virājī; the comm. explains parīkṣā as man and woman, and so also Bhāskara; but that will not do, unless Skyclan on TS. iii. 9. 8 is right in seeing in the freeing thereof of the parīkṣā a reference to this passage, which is not very likely. Mahābhārata, xii. 25. 42 gives yādhastrīyāḥ as offered, which raises the same point; see Eggeling, SBE. xliv, xxviii, n. 1.

⁹ So the comm. as opposed to a mere wagon (āmas) for goods.

Sūrya there are nine white barren cows to be offered; those for Agni, Indra and Agni, and the Aṣvins are offered at the great stake.

v. 6. 23. There¹ are three reddish-brown ones for spring; three dappled ones for summer; three piebald (deer) for the rains; three dappled for autumn; three with dappled thighs for winter; three smeared over² for the cool season; to the year are (offered) those with hanging bellies.³

v. 7. 1. a 'He⁴ who piles the fire without regard to the deity falls a victim to the deities; he becomes poorer; he who (piles it) according to the deity does not fall a victim to the deities; he becomes richer. With a Gāyatrī (verse)⁵ addressed to Agni should he stroke the first layer; with a Trisṭubh the second; with a Jagatī the third, with an Anuṣṭubh the fourth; with a Pañkti the fifth; verily he piles the fire according to the deity. He falls not a victim to the deities; he becomes richer. This is the dividing of the sacrificial food; the food is cattle, and he piles it with cattle [1].

b He who piles the fire after announcing to Prajāpati does not go to ruin. The horses should stand on either side, on the left the black, on the right the white; having offered them he should put down the bricks, ¹ Cf. KSAṣvamedha, x. 8. These are the beasts for the sacrifices every two months to the seasons and the year; see ApCS. xx. 28. 10-12, who treats of it just before the end of the Aṣvamedha.

³ Perhaps rather 'with hanging dewlaps'.

⁴ In TS. v. 7. 1-10 the fire ritual is resumed from v. 6. 10. This section gives (1) a supplement to TS. v. 2. 10 as to the Mantras for each piling; it is based on TB. iii. 11. 6. 8, where, and not in TS., the Mantras make their appearance; (2) it supplements TS. v. 2. 6 by the description of the part played by the horses in the rite; (3) it describes the giving of a gold vessel to the Brahman, see ApCS. xvii. 28. 5.

⁵ The verses are—

(1) āgne devīn ihā raha jayñāno tyaktabarhiṣe āsi hotā na iṣyāḥ ||

(2) *āgamaṁ mahā mānasā yajñistham yo dīdya

They are again referred to in TS. v. 7. 9. 4.

that is the form of Prajāpati, the horse is connected with Prajāpati; verily having announced to Prajāpati in real presence he piles the fire, he does not go to ruin; the white horse is the form of day, the black of night; the bricks are the form of day [2], the mortar of night: when about to put down the bricks he should stroke the white horse, when about to put down the mortar he should stroke the black; verily with the days and nights he piles it.

c A golden vessel full of honey he gives, (saying), 'May I be possessed of honey'; with (a verse) addressed to Sūrya, containing the word 'brilliant',¹ he should gaze (on it); verily it becomes brilliant in the midday; he causes the horse to sniff it; Indra is yonder sun, Prajāpati is he; the horse is connected with Prajāpati; verily he wins him straightway.

v 7. 2. a To² thee, O Agni, the bull, the wise,
I have come, generating thee ever new;
Be our household rites not halting;
With thy keen holy power sharpen us.³

The bricks are cattle, in each layer he puts down a bull (brick); verily in his sacrifice he makes a pairing for propagation; therefore in every herd there is a bull.

b The image of the year
Which men revere in thee, O night, Making his offspring rich in heroes,
May he obtain all life.

He puts down this Prajāpati (brick) [1]; the sole eighth day is this (earth); in that food is made on the sole eighth day, he wins it thereby; this is the wish cow of Prajāpati; verily by it the sacrificer in yonder world milks the fire.⁴

¹ The verse is given in full at TS. ii. 4, 14 p.

PGS. III. 2, 2; AGS. II. 15, 9; MGS. II. 8, 4; for (3) see ĀpGS. XVI. 11, 1; MCS. VI. 1, 4; for (4) see ĀpGS. XVII. 9, 4; PGS. III. 1, 2; GGS. III. 3, 10; KhGS. III. 3, 7; for (5) see ĀpGS. VI. 30, 8; ĀGS. II. 9, 10; BCs. III. 12; Hillebrandt, Indische Litteratur, pp. 119, 120.

³ Also in KS. XI. 2, which has ya.

⁴ This is as regards a and b identical with AV. I. 10, 3, which however ends with upadma; MF. II. 2, 18 has yajñamaka; PGS. III. 2, 2 pratima yā tām vātrīm upadma; the second half-verse differs, which explains the difficulty of construction; tām must be understood.

c With the light wh th the gods went upward, Wherewith the Adityas, the Vasus, the Rudras, Wherewith the Āṅgirases attained greatness,
With that let the sacrificer go in prosperity.¹

e fire is piled for the world of heaven [2] ; (with the words) 'With light wherewith the gods went upwards', he lights the fire in the pan ; surely he puts down the bricks connected with the trees, to win the world heaven.

d (Homage) to the hundred-weponed, him of a hundred powers,
Him of a hundred aids, the overcomer of hostility,
To Indra who shall lead us over all obstacles
Through autumns without fail.²

e The four paths going to the gods
Which stretch between sky and earth,
To him, O gods, do ye all accord us
Who brought to them unfailing power and untirelessness [3].³

f Summer, winter, and spring for us,
Autumn, the rains be favourable for us ;
May we enjoy the favour and protection
Of these seasons through a hundred autumns.⁴

g To the Idu year, the complete year, the year Pay ye honour great ;
In their lovingkindness that are worthy of sacrifice
May we long be unfailing, unsmitten.⁵

h Better than good have the gods brought together ;
With thee as aid may we win thee ;
Do thou, wonder-working, O drop [4], enter us,
Be propitious and kindly to our children, our descendants.⁶

Also in KS. xxii. 10; MS. ii. 7. 12, the latter having yājāmānāḥ and yantrā. a is found in AV. xi. 1. 37 with dyām for śūdrāḥ. b is found in KS. xiii. 15, but in c that has 'nayat for ajitān and ends rīgasya durvāsyā param. For the want of accent on nayat, Weber (Ind. Stud. xiii. 93) compares TS. i. 5. 10 a; iv. 3. 11 k.

n KS. xiii. 15 a slightly similar line is found. This occurs in SMB. ii. 1. 10, which has aṣṭyim ārāhāḥ; AV. vi. 55. 1 is generally parallel.

Also in QGS. iv. 18. 1 (with ā); SMB. ii. 1. 11: a somewhat similar line occurs in

AV. vi. 55. 2, PGS. iii. 2. 2 has a different b and ends with rasema. KS. xiii. 15 has rasanta grīsmo madhumantī varṣā; parād hemantas surite dādhāta.

⁵ In AV. vi. 55. 3 the first is idā; in SMB. ii. 1. 12 id; PGS. iii. 2. 2 has the five sam, pari, idā, id, and ratasārya; AV. in d has āpi bhadrē saumanass syāma. KS. xiii. 15 has sam, pari, idā, anu, ud. Cf. Vedic Index, ii. 412.

i He puts down these unfailing (bricks), they are the gods unconquered; verily he enters them; he is not conquered.¹

b The theologians say, 'Since the months, the half-months, the seasons, the years cook the plants, then why is the offering of first-fruits made to other deities?' The gods conquered these (plants); if he were to offer to the seasons, he would cause strife with the gods; having offered the offering of first-fruits, he offers these libations; verily he delights the half-months, the months, the seasons, the year; he does not cause strife with the gods. Better than good have the gods brought together'; he says, for the eating of the offering, to prevent the debt of the sacrifice.²

v. 7. 3. a Thou³ art the thunderbolt of Indra, slaying foes;
Guarding our bodies, lying in wait;
He who in east, south, west,
In the north, as a foe plots against us,
May he strike on this rock.⁴

The gods and the Asuras were in conflict; the Asuras sought to force them from the quarters; the gods repelled them with arrow and thunderbolt; in that he puts down the thunderbolt (bricks), he repels his foes with arrow and thunderbolt; in the quarters [1] he puts down; verily he puts round him those citadels of the gods, which guard the body.

b O Agni and Viṣṇu,
May these songs gladden you in unison;
Come ye with radiance and strength.⁵

The theologians say, 'Since they do not offer to any deity, then what deity has the stream of wealth?' Wealth is Agni, this stream is his; wealth is Viṣṇu, this stream is his; with a verse addressed to Agni and Viṣṇu he offers the stream of wealth; verily he unites them with their proper portions; verily also [2] he makes this libation to have an abode; he wins that for desire of which he makes this offering. The fire is Rudra; now two are his bodies the dread the one, the auspicious the other; in that he offers the Catarudriya, he soothes with it his dread form; in that he offers

¹ Jyātā is presumably from jyāt, but the play on the two roots is noteworthy.

² For the Āgrayanya, where the verse is used, see ĀpCS. xi. 30. 8; TR. i. 6. 1. 9. Its presence here is quite out of place.

³ This section (1) prescribes the Mantras for the Vajrī bricks, which naturally follow TS. v. 4. 1; (2) describes at length the Vasor Dhārā, see TS. v. 4. 8; (3) prescribes certain gifts for the priests. See for (1), ĀpCS. xvii. 9. 5, 6; if five are used, which is not done here, upānīda is used for the zenith; BCS. xv. 24, for (2) see ĀpCS. xvii. 17. 8; BCS. x. 54; for (3) see ĀpCS. xvii. 17. 10.

the stream of wealth, he delights with it his auspicious form. He, who knows the support of the stream of wealth [3], finds support. If there is any butter left over, in it he should cook a mess for the Brahmans, four Brahmans should eat it; the Brahman is Agni Vaiçvānara, Vaiçvānara is the form dear to Agni; verily he establishes it in his dear form. He should give four cows; verily with them the sacrificer in yonder world milks the fire.

v. 7. 4. a 'To¹ thought I offer with mind, with ghee';² he says; the oblation to Viçvakarman is called the undeceivable; the foe cannot deceive him who has piled; verily also he wins the gods.

b 'O Agni, to-day', (with these words)³ he offers with a Pañkti verse, and by the Pañkti and the libation he grasps the beginning of the sacrifice.

c 'Seven are thy kindling-sticks, O Agni; seven thy tongues', he says,⁴ verily he wins the Hoty's offices. Agni went away from the gods, desiring a portion [1]; to him they assigned this as a portion; that is the Agnihotra of Agni; then is he born indeed when he is completely piled. Verily to him on birth he gives food; he delighted delights him, he becomes richer.

d The theologians say, 'Since it is as the Gārhapatya that (the fire) is piled, then where is its Āhavaniya?' 'Yonder sun', he should reply, for in it they offer to all the gods [2]. He who knowing thus piles the fire straightway makes pleased the gods.

e O Agni, the glorious, lead him to glory;
 Bring hither the fame that is Indra's;
 May he be head, overlord, resplendent,
 Most famed of his equals.⁵
 With look auspicious first they underwent Fervour and consecration, the seers who found the heavenly light, Thence was born the kingly power, might and force;
 May the gods in unison accord that to us.
 Disposer, ordainer, and highest [3] onlooker,
 Prajapati, supreme lord, the ruler;
 The Stomas, the metres, the Nivids, mine they call;
 To him may we secure the kingdom."

¹ In this section (1) is explained the Mantrai in TS. v. 5. 4. 8; (2) then a Mantra in TS. iv. 4. 7; (3) then one in TS. iv. 6. 5. 5; then (4) the Āhavaniya in the case of the fire rite is said to be the sun, and (5) the Mantras and Brähmana of the Rāstrabhr̥ti bricks; according to ĀpCS. xvii. 15. 7, between TS. iv. 6. 5 m and n, these two verses (a and b) are included with two oblations; for (5) see ibid. xlvi. 10. 2.

² See for another use of the verse and its full text, TS. v. 5. 4. 3.

³ For the full text of this verse see TS. iv. 4. 4 w in another use.

⁴ For the text see TS. iv. 6. 5 n. This verse follows on a and b in this use. See EGS. x. 52.

⁵ Cf. ĀśA. xli. 15-18, an inferior version of these lines.

⁶ The Pāda a is b of TS. iv. 6. 2 b; RV. x. 82

Turn towards me come to me
 May he be your ruler your overlord
 On his discernment do ye depend,
 Upon him henceforth do ye all serve.

He puts down these supporters of the realm; this is the realm-supporting piling of the fire: verily with it he bestows on him the kingly power, he becomes the kingly power, the kingly power does not fall away from him.

v. 7. 5. a Just¹ as a son born dies, so dies he whose fire in the pan is extinguished. If he were to make it by friction, he would divide (the fire), he would produce a foe for him. It must again be kindled (with wood) around; verily he produces it from its own birthplace, he does not produce a foe for him. Darkness seizes on him whose fire in the pan is extinguished, darkness is death; a black garment, a black heifer are the sacrificial fees; verily with darkness [1] he smites away the darkness which is death. Gold he gives, gold is light, verily with the light he smites away the darkness: moreover gold is brilliance; verily he confers brilliance upon himself.

b Like heavenly light, the heat; hail! Like heavenly light, the Arka; hail! Like heavenly light, the bright; hail! Like heavenly light, the light; hail! Like heavenly light, the sun; hail!*

The fire is Arka, the horse sacrifice is yonder sun [2]; in that he offers these libations he unites the lights of the Arka and the horse sacrifice; he indeed is an offerer of the Arka and the horse sacrifice, for whom this is done in the fire.

c The waters were first this world, the moving;² Prajāpati saw this first layer, it he put down, it became this (earth). To him Viçvakarman said, 'Let me come to thee'; 'There is no space here', he answered [3]. He saw this second layer, he put it down, it became the atmosphere. The similarly but goes on to emphasize the creation of the quarters.

* This section contains (1) the rule for the restoration of an extinguished fire by fetching it again from the Garhapatya and making it burn with wood; (2) the celebration of the union of the Arka and Agvamedha, which is paralleled in KS. xi. 12; VS. xviii. 50 (Mantra); CB. ix. 4. 3. 18-26; (3) the five layers of the fire are explained; including also notices of the Digyā bricks (TS. iv. 4. 2; v. 3. 7); this partly covers the ground of TS. v. 10 and v. 6. 4. 2-5, which commences

* Von Schroeder in KS. reads each as śarṇa- clearly wrongly. Arka denotes the fire sacrifice as opposed to the horse sacrifice.

 See BC. x. 52 ad/fn.; and cf., for Arka, TS.
 v. 3. 4. 8; 4. 3.

sacrifice said to Prajāpati, 'Let me come to thee'; 'There is no space here', he answered. He said to Viçvakarman, 'Let me come to thee.' 'In what way wilt thou come to me?' 'By the regional (bricks)', he replied. He came with the regional (bricks), he put them down, they became the regions [4]. The supreme lord said to Prajāpati, 'Let me come to thee'; 'There is no space here', he answered. He said to Viçvakarman and the sacrifice, 'Let me come to you two'; 'There is no space here', they answered. He saw this third layer, he put it down, it became yonder (world). Āditya said to Prajāpati, 'Let me come to thee' [5]; 'There is no space here', he answered. He said to Viçvakarman and the sacrifice, 'Let me come to you two'; 'There is no space here', they answered. He said to the supreme lord, 'Let me come to thee.' 'In what way wilt thou come to me?' 'By the space-filler', he replied. He came to him by the space-filler; therefore the space-filler is unexhausted, for yonder Āditya is unexhausted [6]. To them the seers said, 'Let us come to you.' 'In what way will ye come?' 'By greatness', they replied. To them they came with two (more) layers; (the fire) became one of five layers. He who knowing thus piles the fire becomes greater, he conquers these worlds, the gods know him; moreover he attains community with these deities.

v. 7. 6. a The¹ fire is a bird; if the piler of the fire were to eat of a bird, he would be eating the fire, he would go to ruin. For a year should he observe the vow, for a vow goes not beyond a year.

b The fire is an animal; now an animal destroys him who moves up to it face to face; therefore he should go up to it from behind while it is looking towards the front, to prevent injury to himself.

¹ This section contains further scattered comments: (1) the rule against eating of bird's flesh is laid down; (2) the rule that the fire is to be stepped on from the west, i.e. from behind, is insisted on, in supplement to v. 2. 6. 1. (3) the Mantras for the gold bricks are given; cf. v. 2. 8. 1; KS. xl. 3; MS. ii. 7. 15; iii. 4. 7; (4) the Mantras for the Rue bricks are given; cf. says;¹ by these are these worlds supported ; in that he puts them down, (it is) for the support of these worlds. Having put down the naturally perforated (bricks) he puts down the gold bricks ; the naturally perforated are these worlds, gold is light ; in that having put down the naturally perforated [2] he puts down the gold bricks ; verily he makes these worlds full of light by means of them ; verily also by them these worlds shine forth for him.

d Those flames of thine, O Agni, which rising in the sun,
With rays envelop the sky,
With all of them bring us to brilliance, to man.²
Those flames of yours in the sun, O gods,
Those flames in cattle, in horses,
O Indra and Agni, with all of these Grant us brilliance, O Brhaspati.
Grant us brilliance [3] in our Brahmins,
Place brilliance in our princes,
Brilliance in Vicyas and Cadras ;
With thy flame grant me brilliance.

The glory and power of him who has piled the fire go apart twofold, or to the fire which he has piled or to the man who has sacrificed. In that he offers these libations, he places in himself power and fame:

e He who having piled the fire steps on it is liable to go to ruin. 'To thee I come praising with holy power';³ with this verse addressed to Varuna [4] should he offer ; that is the soothing of the fire and the protection of himself.

f He who piles the fire is made into an offering ; just as an offering spills, so he spills who having piled the fire approaches a woman ;⁴ with clotted curds for Mitra and Varuna he should sacrifice ; verily he approaches unity with Mitra and Varuna, to avoid his spilling.

g He who knows the fire to rest on the seasons, for him the seasons go in order ; he finds support. The fire resting on the seasons is the year [5] ; the head is the spring, the right side summer, the tail the rains, the left side autumn, the middle winter, the layers the first half-months, the mortar the second half-months, the bricks the days and nights ; this is the fire resting on the seasons ; he who knows thus, for him the seasons go in order ; he finds support.

Thy cracklings, thy drops.
With these pile thyself, well knowing.^e

The fire is an extended sacrifice; what of it is performed, what not? What the Adhvaryu in piling the fire omits, that of himself he omits. 'Thy kindling-sticks, O Agni, thine [1] abodes', he says; this is the self-piling of the fire; verily the fire piles the fire, the Adhvaryu omits nothing from himself.

b To the four quarters let the fires advance;
May he bear this sacrifice for us, well knowing;
Making rich the ghee, immortal, full of heroes,
The holy power is the kindling-stick of the libations.^f

^a Found above at iv. 7. 18 i but with a different & (devayno ya utamit); VS. has ekam before utamit, and naya, KS. agrees with TS.

^b KS. has dakshyantam, which is much simpler; gudih the comm. takes as sec., 'those duly paid'. Not in VS.

^c KS. has (yatra dhirdh madhuram) sudh spondi skupti; VS. agrees.

^d This section deals with three separate points: (1) the self-piling of the fire to remedy defects of the sacrificial priest is explained; cf. KS. xl. 5 for the Mantra, and TS. v. 2. 6. 1; (2) there is given a new Mantra for the ceremony of putting down the frog before the naturally perforated brick in place of iv. 2. 9 k; (3) the colours of the bricks are mentioned; in these two cases the material given would naturally find a place in v. 2. 6. For (1) see ApGS. xvi. 21. 6; DGS. x. 23, 28; for (2) see ApGS. xvi. 25. 1, 2; for (3) see ApGS. xvi. 34. 1, 2; 19. 6.

^e KS. has mujayah, but mujayah seems the more probable form.

^f This is a contraction of the longer phrase found above, v. 4. 12. 3, and it is identical with that in v. 2. 1. 1.

^g Also in TB. ii. 8. 8. 10.

The tortoise is put down for the world of heaven; 'To the four quarters let the fires advance', he says [2]; verily by it he recognizes the quarters; 'May he bear this sacrifice for us, well knowing', he says, for guidance to the world of heaven; 'The holy power is the kindling-stick of the libations', he says. By means of the holy power the gods went to the world of heaven; in that he puts down (the tortoise) with (a verse) containing the word 'holy power', by the holy power the sacrificer goes to the world of heaven.

c The fire is Prajāpati here; cattle are the offspring; the form the metres; all colours of bricks should he make; verily by the form he wins offspring, cattle, the metres; verily also he piles it winning it for offspring, cattle, the metres.¹

May we enclose him in ourselves;
May he not abandon us and go afar.⁴

¹ According to Āp. there are bricks with lines dakṣināvṛtī, savayāvṛtī, rūlekhā, and tryālikhātī, and the last kind occurs above, v. 2. 8. 4. The last are put down in the centre; this agrees with v. 2. 8. 4; the tryālikhātīs on the east or west, the dakṣināvṛtīs on the south, the savayāvṛtīs on the north. The bricks are evidently of one shape, i.e. square, though many different sizes are given, *pāda*², *arati*², *uravasti*², anukamātri. According to ĀpCS. xvi. 21. 9, 10 the directions as to prācīh, pratīcīh (and no doubt others, udīcīh, &c.) refer to the direction of the rows of bricks (ganesu rūlēkādah), while prācīm, &c., to the direction reckoned from the face of the performer. This shows that the directions are not in TS. references to the order of the lines of the bricks as taken by Eggeling in CB. (p. 406, n. 2). Bürk (ZDMG. lvi. 359) gives the sense as 'with the long side to the west' (pratyagāyatāh in comm.), but this does not suit square bricks nor the wording of e.g. BCS. x. 85.

² This section contains (1) an account of the preparatory rite of taking the fire to oneself which precedes the actual piling, and also the verse for Agni's self-piling, which is omitted by one who himself piles the fire, the piling being optional to Adhvaryu or sacrificer; cf. KS. vii. 12; MS. i. 6. 1; VS. xii. 1 (Mantra); CB. vii. 4. 1, 1, 2 (Brāhmaṇa); (2) two theological doubts as to the reason why mud and water are used to make a fire; and (3) a final explanation of the gold bricks, including an explanation of the use of the verses mentioned in v. 7. 1. 1. See for (1) ĀpCS. xvi. 21. 6; BCS. x. 23, 28, 40; MCs. vi. 1. 5; KCS. xvii. 8. 27; for (3) ĀpCS. xvii. 10. 2, who puts them after the Rāṣṭrabhr̥ts (v. 7. 4 e).

⁴ This is AV. xii. 2. 83, which ends amītā martyeṣu, and in c and d reads māyyāh aham tām pīrīghāṇī devāni | puṣṭiśi amātā dākṣat

If the Adhvaryu without taking the fire in him... if were to pile it, he would pile his own fire also [1] for the sacrificer. Now cattle depend upon the fire: cattle would be likely to depart from him. 'In me I take first Agni', he says; verily in himself if he supports his own fire, cattle depart not from him.

b The theologians say, 'Since clay and water are not food for Agni, then why is he piled with clay and water?' In that he joins with water [2] and all the deities are the waters, verily he unites him with the waters. In that he piles with clay and Agni Vaiçvānara is this earth, verily he piles Agni with Agni.

c The theologians say, 'Since the fire is piled with clay and water, then why is it called the fire?' In that he piles with the metres and the metres are fires, therefore is it called fire. Moreover Agni Vaiçvānara is this (earth); in that [3] he piles with clay, therefore is it called the fire.

d He puts down golden bricks; gold is light; verily he confers light upon him; again gold is brilliance; verily he confers radiance upon himself. He, who piles (the fire) with faces on all sides, eats food in all his offspring, conquers all the quarters. In the east he puts down a Gāyatri, a Trīṣṭubh on the south, a Jagati on the west, an Anustubh on the north, a Pankti in the middle, this is the fire with faces on all sides: he, who knowing thus piles it, eats food in all his offspring, conquers all the quarters; verily also he weaves quarter in quarter; therefore quarter is woven in quarter.

v. 7. 10. Prajāpati¹ created the fire, it created ran away east from him; he cast the horse at it, it turned to the south; he cast the ram at it, it turned to the west; he cast the bull at it it turned to the north; he cast the goat at it, it ran upwards. He cast the man at it. In that he puts down the heads of animals, he piles it [1], winning it on every side. The heads of animals are bricks, breath supporting, full of sight; in that he puts down the heads of animals, the sacrificer breathes with them in yonder world; verily also those worlds shine forth for him by them. He puts them down after smearing with mud, for purity. The fire is an animal, animals are food, the heads of animals are this fire: if he desire of a man, 'May his food be less' [2], he should put down for him the heads of animals more closely together; his food becomes less; if he desire of a man, 'May his food be similar (to what he has now)', he should put them down for him at a mean distance; verily his food becomes the same; if he desire of a man, 'May his food become more', he should put them down separating them at the ends of the pile; verily at the ends also he wins food for him; his food becomes more.

¹ This section exemplifies the reference to the heads of the victims in v. 2. 9.

v. 7. 11. Flies¹ with the teeth, frogs with the grinders; the eater with the gnawer; strength with the digester; the wild with the knee-cap, clay with the gums; Avakā grass with pieces of gravel; with the Avakās gravel; with the hump the tongue; with the shouter the palate, Sarasvati with the tongue tip.²

v. 7. 12. Strength³ with the jaws; the waters with the mouth; the Ādityas with the hair; support with the lower lip; the existent with the upper, the clearness with what is between, by the gloss the external (radiance); by the knob the thundering; by the eyes Sūrya and Agni, by the two pupils the two lightnings; the lightning-stroke by the brain, might by the marrow parts.⁴

v. 7. 13. Tortoises⁵ with the hooves; with the flesh of the hooves francolin partridges, the Sāman with the dewclaws; speed with the legs; health with the two knees; strength with the two Kuhās; fear with the two movers; the secret with the two sides; the Aṣvins with the two shoulders, Aditi with the head: Nirṛti with the bald head.⁶

¹ Cf. KSAṣvamedha, xiii. 1; MS. iii. 15. 1; VS. xxv. 1. With this and the next thirteen (11-24) Anuvākas the ceremony of offering the diverse members of the horse to the various deities is dealt with; cf. ĀpGS. xx. 21. 9; MGS. ix. 2. 5; BG. xv. 35. KS. agrees generally as in v. 5. 11-24; 6. 11-23. It is perhaps best not to take these as Mantras (for e. g. 17, 21, 22 render this doubtful): they are rather Brāhmaṇa passages. But see 20 ad fin.

² The exact sense of the parts enumerated is not always clear, and the comm. is, as usual, of little use: samsūḍā is sāṁtatakṣarāṇo nāśkādīḥ; jāmbū the place within where the grass is deposited! bāṣṭā the root-flesh of the teeth, pārkarāḥ bones like gravel, āvakāḥ flesh like gāvāla; avakrandā the place of pronunciation of ka, &c. (kādhika as read in the MSS. known to Weber and BI. alike). Bhāskara, whom the comm. generally agrees with, has antahkālyikāḥ. In each case we must supply a verb of offering, either in the first person if they are to be regarded as Mantras, or third if Brāhmaṇa. In the latter case the text doubtless closely follows the Mantra.

³ Cf. KSAṣvamedha, xiii. 2; MS. iii. 15. 1, 2; VS. xxv. 1, 2

⁵ Cf. KSAṣvamedha, xiii. 3; MS. iii. 15. 3, VS. xxv. 3.

⁶ KS. has acharābhīḥ, unknown also; paphā-māśāṇī (capitulum?, Bhāskara) is the commentator's version; it has guhābhīyam for kuhābhīyam (hasdayor madhyasāṁdhī, comm.), nirjilmākāśīṣṇā, while MS. has nirjalpākena; to the comm. kusūlikā is prakusūhārogajānū jaṅghābhīyam adhak pradeśāḥ; gulū is very strange; the

v. 7. 14. The¹ yoke-thong with the pits of the legs, the yoke with the bent part; thought with the neck; sounds with the breaths; with the gloss skin; with the Parākāga the interior; with hair the flies; Indra with the hard-working bearing part; Br̥haspati with the seat of the birds, the chariot with the cervical vertebrae.²

v. 7. 15. Indra³ and Varuṇa with the two buttocks; Indra and Agni with the flesh below the buttocks; Indra and Br̥haspati with the two thighs; Indra and Viṣṇu with the knees; Savitṛ with the tail; the Gāndharvas with the penis; the Apsarases with the testicles; the purifying with the anus; the strainer with the two Potras;⁴ the going with the two Sthūrīs; the going to with the two centres of the loins.

v. 7. 16. For⁵ Indra the breast, for Aditi the flanks, for the quarters the cervical cartilages; the clouds with the heart and its covering; atmosphere with the pericardium; the mist with the flesh of the stomach; Indrāṇi with the lungs; ants with the liver; the hills with the intestines; the ocean with the stomach; Vaīcavānara with the fundament.⁶

v. 7. 17. For⁷ Pūṣan the rectum; for the blind serpent the large entrails, serpents with the entrails; seasons with the transverse processes;⁸ sky with the back; for the Vāstus the first vertebra; for the Rudras the second; for the Ādityas the third; for the Aṅgirases the fourth; for the Sādhyas the fifth; for the All-gods the sixth.

comm. has guhanī (gokarṇa, Bhāskara); VS. has airjajapena and ghāshabdhī ('heat ropes', Griffith); MS. asorāshī, of which KS. is a Prākritized variant.

³ Cf. KSAyamedha, xiii. 5; VS. xxv. 7.

⁴ The comm. gives potra, sthāra, and kgūḍha (gugḍha in KS.) as parts of the flesh near the anus; the sense of pikāga rests on him also; in vii. 3. 16 pikāgyādhyam is glossed by māmāñkā 'name', but the sense here is more probable. Bhāskara, however, has keparīdī, and for putrābhīm the sense ghāśatīlī, for sthāra and kgūḍha, pātī and hastiparivṛthumanī.

⁵ Cf. KSAyamedha, xiii. 6; MS. iii. 15. 7; VS. xxv. 6.

⁸ For the Kikāś and the Prāṇis see Vedic Index, ii. 388 seq.

v. 7. 18. Force¹ with the neck, Nirūti with the bones, Indra with the hard-working bearing part; for Rudra the moving shoulder;² for day and night the second (part); for the half-months the third; for the months the fourth; for the seasons the fifth; for the year the sixth.

v. 7. 19. Joy³ with the delighter; love with the two Pratyāsas⁴ fear with the two Çitimans⁵ command with the two Praçāsas: sun and moon with the two kidney parts; the dark and the light with the two kidneys; the dawning with the form, the setting with the formless.

v. 7. 20. Day⁶ with the flesh; night with the fat; the waters with the juice; ghee with the sap: ice⁶ with the fat (vāsā), hail with the rheum of the eyes; with tears hoar-frost; sky with the form; the Nakṣatras with the shadow; earth with the hide; the skin with the skin; to it brought up hail! To it slaughtered hail! To it offered hail!

v. 7. 21. For⁷ Agni the first rib; for Sarasvatī the second; for Soma the third; for the waters the fourth; for the plants the fifth; for the year the sixth; for the Maruts the seventh; for Bṛhaspati the eighth; for Mitra the ninth; for Varuṇa the tenth; for Indra the eleventh; for the All-gods the twelfth, for sky and earth the side; for Yama the side bone.⁸

⁵ Cf. KSAçvamedha, xiii. 10; VS. xxv. 9. The end at least is Mantra.

⁷ Cf. KSAçvamedha, xiii. 11; MS. iii. 15 4, VS. xxv. 4.

⁸ The right side ribs seem to be the meant, the other two texts, MS. and VS., have thirteen a side, and omit the pātura, which is described as the bone in which the ribs are bound; perhaps the backbone regarded on one side, and supplemented by the other side in v. 7. 22. KS has pāthorāḥ. Bhāskara renders it as sarpa-paṭu-idhāraṇo 'sthitīṣṭay.

b Thine eye the sun ; thy breath the wind ; thine ear the moon ; thy joints the months and the half-months ; thy limbs the seasons ; thy greatness the year.³

Vayu was the animal : with it they sacrificed ; it won this world where Vayu is ; this is thy world, therefrom will I obstruct thee if thou dost not snuff (it).

Āditya was the animal ; with it they sacrificed ; it won this world where Āditya is ; this is thy world, thou wilt win it if thou dost snuff it.⁶

According to the comm. yakṣin means here a colour ! kṛṣṇān appears also in KS. and VS. xxv. 6, and neither Śivāya nor Mahīdhara explains. Bhāskara also omits an explanation, though he knows the sense of yakṣin.

1. KSAyvamedha, v. 16. It may be noted that ApGS. xx. 21. 10 has a use for this section as a thirty-sixth Agrayastomiya, the rest being provided by yad akramanāḥ, &c. (already used in xx. 12. 10); for BG. xv. 24 see the next note. This section is so manifestly out of place as one of the fourteen which are rubricated (see p. 479, n. 1) that it is very difficult to resist the conclusion that the fourteen are really v. 7. 11-23 and i. 4. 36, and then i. 4. 36, and that this section is not part of the preceding thirteen. This is strongly supported by Bhāskara who (ix. 271) expressly states that i. 4. 36 is the fourteenth, i. 4. 35 the fifteenth (cf. TB. iii. 9. 11), and that this is said over the heart of the horse. Cf. p. 62, n. 1.

2. KSAyvamedha, v. 5. These Mantras are explained in TB. iii. 9. 4. 8 as said over the horse with others; in ApGS. xx. 21. 6 they accompany an oblation, in BG. xv. 24 the priest goes to the lake on the south with this, 21, and vii. 5. 10, cf. xv. 34, where the same sets are used, xv. 5, where they accompany the washing of the horse. Bhāskara says 24 and 25 are said over the heart of the horse.

* This phrase is found above as the first part of iv. 1. 2 &c.

* There is no exact parallel to this except in KS.

* Cf. KSAyvamedha, v. 4; VS. xxiii. 17. According to TB. iii. 9. 4. 8 the horse is expected to smell the food brought up to it, and this verse is used if it fails to do so; cf. KG. xx. 6. 8 BG. xv. 27 prescribes that the sets (each being repeated for Vayu and Āditya) of the Mantras should be used first to invite, then to invite again, and then a third time; here the pravṛṣṭi waters are smelt. Bhāskara totally ignores this section, or the MSS. are defective in it.

³ The worlds are indicated by gestures, though śām simply is used throughout.

THE E ATION OF THE SOMA SACRIFICE

The Exposition of the Soma Sacrifice

vi. 1. 1. He¹ makes a hall with beams pointing east.² The gods and men divided the quarters, the gods (obtained) the eastern, the Pitrs the southern,³ men the western, the Rudras the northern. In that he makes a hall with beams pointing east, the sacrificer approaches the world of the gods. He covers it over, for the world of the gods is hidden from the world of men. 'It is not easy', they say, 'to go from this world; for who knows if he is in yonder world or not.' He makes at the corners⁴ apertures [1], for the winning of both worlds. He shaves his hair and beard, he trims his nails. The hair and the beard are dead and impure skin, and by thus destroying the dead and impure skin he becomes fit for the sacrifice and approaches the sacrifice. The Āngirases going to the world of heaven placed in the waters consecration and penance. He bathes in the waters; verily visibly he secures consecration and penance. He bathes at a ford,⁵ for at a ford did they place (consecration and penance); he bathes at a ford [2]; verily he becomes a ford for his fellows. He sips water; verily he becomes pure within. He consecrates him with a garment; the linen garment has Soma for its deity.⁶ He who consecrates himself approaches Soma as his deity. He says, 'Thou art the body of Soma; guard my body.' He approaches his own deity; verily also he invokes this blessing. (Of the garment) the place where the border is belongs to Agni, the wind-guard to Vayu, the fringe to the Pitrs, the fore-

¹ Cf. KS. xxii. 1; KapS. xxxv. 7; MS. ii. 6. 1, 2, 3; BGS. x. 1; CB. iii. 1. 1. 6-3. 24. This chapter explains the Mantras given in TS. i. 2. 1.

² The vārikas are the beams running horizontally, and forming the roof. The four corner-posts are first connected by cross-beams so as to form the lintels of the eastern and western doors: upon these then are laid beams, which are covered over by mats or something similar. The central beam is the prācīnavaṇī par excellence, and it may be that it was raised so that the roof was not flat, but like that of an ordinary thatched cottage. Cf. Siyana here; BGS. x. 1; MGS. ii. 1; ĀpGS. x. 1 seq.; KGS. vii. 1. 20, Eggeling, SBE. xxvi. 8, n. 2.

³ dakṣinā is certainly correct, for dakṣinām, a very easy correction, is wrongly accented.

⁴ dikṣi, literally 'in the quarters', for the hut or hall is a microcosm.

⁵ This seems to point to the early sanctity of fords, which later developed into the pilgrimages of Hinduism.

⁶ With the double sense that it is propitious through having Soma as its deity.

edge to the plants [3], the warp to the Ad. yas, the woof to the All-gods, the meshes to the Nakṣatras. The garment is thus connected with all the gods, in that he consecrates him with the garment, verily with all the gods he consecrates him. Man has breath without; his eating is his breath, he eats; verily he consecrates himself with breath. He becomes satiated. As great as is his breath, with it he approaches the sacrifice. Ghee² pertains to the gods, sour cream to the Pitrīs, well-seasoned butter to men [4], fresh butter is connected with all the gods; verily in anointing with fresh butter he satisfies all the gods. The man who is consecrated has fallen from this world and yet not gone to the world of the gods; fresh butter is as it were midway; therefore he anoints with fresh butter, along the hair, with a Yajus, for destruction.³ Indra slew Vṛtra: his eyeball fell away; it became collyrium. When he anoints, verily he takes away the eye of his enemy. He anoints his right eye first [5], for men anoint the left first. He does not rub (the ointment) on,⁴ for men rub (the ointment) on. Five times he anoints; the Pañkti has five syllables,⁵ the sacrifice is fivefold; verily he obtains the sacrifice. He anoints a limited number of times, for men anoint an unlimited number of times. He anoints with (a stalk)⁶ which has a tuft, for men anoint with (a stalk)

² KS. and MS. give the list differently; KS. xxiii. 1 as ghṛ̥ta for the gods, nigamita for men, ayuta for the Gaudharvas, and svayambhūta for Āditya, while nigamita is neutral; MS. iii. 6. 2 as ghṛ̥ta for the gods, ayuta for men, nigamita for the Gaudharvas, and svayambhūta for the Pitrīs, and nigamita for all the gods. In QB. iii. 1. 2. 8 the Mādhyandina recension has besides ghṛ̥ta, phāṇja, explained as the first particles of butter that appear in churning: the Kāṇva has ghṛ̥ta nigamita instead. In AB. i. 8 the series is ayuta and the gods, nigamita ghṛ̥ta and men, ayuta and the Pitrīs; and nigamita and svayambhūta (garbhī). Cf. Eggeling, SBE. xxvi. 14, n. 1.

³ anudatta refers to the natural direction of the hair, taṣṭi/tapī, because all human acts must differ from the divine. Cf. QB. iii. 1. 2. 4.

⁴ dhati is thus taken by the comm.: the usual meaning 'wash the teeth' is perhaps less likely. MS. iii. 6. 2 asserts that dhati dhāshī; so also the Nītrās.

⁵ This is rather curious, for the ordinary pañkti as a metre is five sets of eight syllables. So that ākṛ̥ḍa then must be taken rather as 'element'; the pañkti is of five elements. Probably the sense is syllable, the Pañkti being the 5+5 metre usually called Padapañkti. The sacrifice is pañkti as fivefold, and is connected with the pañkti metre, but the sense can hardly be expressed in a translation. In QB. iii. 1. 3. 17 the sacrifice is pañkti as connected with the seasons.

⁶ tsīku as opposed to gāñči, which is used by men, according to KS. and MS. According to QB. iii. 1. 3. 18 a reed-stalk (parekṣī) is used.

which has no tuft ; (verily he anoints them) for discrimination. If he were to anoint with (a stalk) having no tuft, he would be as it were a thunderbolt. He anoints with one which has a tuft, for friendship [6]. Indra slew Vṛtra, he died upon the waters. Of the waters what was fit for sacrifice, pure, and divine, that went out of the waters, and became Darbha grass In that he purifies (the sacrificer) with bunches of Darbha grass, verily he purifies him with the waters which are fit for sacrifice, pure, and divine. He purifies (him) with two (stalks);¹ verily he purifies him by days and nights. He purifies (him) with three (stalks); three are these worlds; verily he purifies him by these worlds. He purifies (him) with five stalks [7]; the Pañkti has five syllables, the sacrifice is fivefold; verily he purifies him by the sacrifice. He purifies (him) with six (stalks), six² are the seasons; verily he purifies him by the seasons. He purifies (him) with seven (stalks); seven are the metres; verily he purifies him by the metres. He purifies (him) with nine (stalks); nine are the breaths in man; verily he purifies him along with his breaths. He purifies (him) with twenty-one (stalks); there are ten fingers and ten toes, and the body is the twenty-first;³ he thus completely purifies the man [8]. He says, 'Let the lord of thought purify thee'; the mind is the lord of thought; verily by the mind he purifies him. He says, 'Let the lord of speech purify thee'; verily by speech he purifies him. He says, 'Let the god Savitṛ purify thee'; verily being instigated by Savitṛ, he purifies him. He says, 'O lord of the purifier, with thy purifier, for whatsoever I purify myself, that may I have strength to accomplish.' Verily does he invoke this blessing.

vi. 1. 2. All⁴ the gods who purified themselves for the sacrifice waxed great. He who knowing thus purifies himself for the sacrifice waxes great. Having purified him without he makes him go within. Verily having purified him in the world of men, he leads him forward purified to the world of the gods. 'He is not consecrated by one oblation', they say; verily he offers four with the dipping-ladle for consecration; the fifth he offers with the offering-ladle; the Pañkti has five syllables, the sacrifice is fivefold; verily he wins the sacrifice. 'To the purpose, to the impulse, to Agni, [1] hail!' he says, for with purpose does a man employ the sacrifice, planning to sacrifice. 'To wisdom, to thought, to Agni, hail!' he says, for

¹ The options vary considerably; in QB. iii. 1. 3. 19 seq. they are one, three (the three breaths), seven (the seven breaths), or twenty-one. KS. gives two (prāṇa and apāṇa); three (prāṇa, vyāna, apāṇa); five (man is pāñkta); seven (the metres); nine (the breaths), or twenty-one. MS. iii. 6. 8 has 'two (two purifiers); three by wisdom and thought man approaches the sacrifice. 'To Sarasvati, to Pusan, to Agni, hail!' he says. Sarasvati is speech, Pusan the earth; verily with speech and the earth he performs the sacrifice. 'O ye divine, vast, all-soothing waters', he says. The waters of the rain [2] are the divine, vast, all-soothing waters; if he said not that praise, the divine waters would descend in anger on this world. He says, 'O ye divine, vast, all-soothing waters.' Verily he makes them soothing for this world; accordingly being soothed they approach this world. 'Heaven and earth', he says, for the sacrifice is in heaven and earth. 'Wide atmosphere', he says, for the sacrifice is in the atmosphere. 'May Brhaspati rejoice in our oblation' [3], he says. Brhaspati is the holy power (Brahman)¹ of the gods; verily by the holy power he wins this sacrifice for him. If he were to say *vidheḥ*² then he would stumble on the sacrificial post; he says upāhītu; verily he avoids the sacrificial post. Prajapati created the sacrifice. Being created it went away. It crushed the Yajus, it crushed the Sāman: the R̥e raised it; in that the R̥e raised (it), hence the 'elevating'³ offering has the name. With a R̥e [4] he sacrifices, to support the sacrifice. 'It was the Anustubh among the metres which supported it', they say. Therefore he sacrifices with an Anustubh, to support the sacrifice. 'It was the twelve "calf-binders" which supported it', they say. Therefore with twelve those who know the 'calf-binders',⁴ consecrate. This R̥e is an Anustubh; the Anustubh is speech; in that he consecrates him with this R̥e, he consecrates him with the whole of speech. 'Let every (man) of the god who leads', he says. By that (the R̥e) is connected with Savitṛ. '(Let every) man choose the companionship' [5], he says. By that (the R̥e) has the Pitṛs for its deity,⁵ 'Every man prayeth for wealth', he says. By that (the R̥e) is connected with the All-gods. 'Let him choose glory that he may prosper', he says. By that (the R̥e) is connected with Pusan. This R̥e indeed is connected with all the gods. In that he consecrates with this R̥e, he consecrates him with all the gods. The first quarter-verse is of seven syllables; the other

¹ The term here must have the sense of 'spiritual power' vaguely conceived.

There is no doubt a play also on the fact that Brhaspati is the Brahman priest of the gods (KB. vi. 18; CB. i. 7.4. 21; CQS. iv. 6. 9); cf. Geldner, Ved. Stud. II. 144; above, p. 99, n. 2.

² This is not either in MS., KS., or VS., and most be the reading of a lost Cakha. The comm. of course renders vidheḥ as vidadhīte; for those who read vidheḥ must have meant by it 'Brhaspati, offer for us with the oblation'. For the nom., cf.

Keith, JRAS. 1902, p. 1124; above, TS. i. 4. 19; p. 58, n. 1.

⁴ The verse contains only twelve words, and apparently the twelve calf-binders are the twelve words used to bind the sacrifice (cf. comm.).

⁵ That is because mātṛ, 'man', recalls Pitṛ.

three are of eight syllables. The three approach the eight; the four the eight.¹ Because it has eight syllables [6] it is a Gāyatri. Because it has eleven syllables it is a Trīṣṭubh. Because it has twelve syllables, it is a Jāgatī. This R̄c indeed is all the metres. In that he consecrates him with this R̄c, he consecrates him with all the metres. The first quarter-verse is of seven syllables; the Çakvarī is of seven syllables, the Çakvari is cattle; verily he wins cattle. The first quarter-verse is defective by one syllable. Therefore men live on what of speech is defective. He offers with a full (verse) to win Prajāpati; full as it were is Prajāpati. He offers with a defective (verse), for the creation of offspring, for from what is defective² Prajāpati created offspring.

vi. 1. 3. The³ R̄c and the Sāman, unwilling to remain with the gods for the sacrifice, taking the form of a black antelope⁴ departed and remained away. The (gods) reflected, 'He whom they shall resort to will become all this world.'⁵ They called to them, and they depositing their might in day and night came up to them. This is the colour of the R̄c, the white of the skin of the black antelope; the black is the colour of the Sāman. 'Ye are images of the R̄c and Sāman', he says; verily he wins the R̄c and the Sāman [1]. The white of the black antelope skin is the colour of the day, the black of the night. Whatever is imbued in those two, he wins. He consecrates (him) with a black antelope skin. The black antelope skin is the form of the holy power; verily he consecrates him with the holy power. 'O god, this prayer of him who imploreh', he says. That is according to the text.⁶ The man who is consecrated is a foetus; the clothing is the caul; he covers. Therefore [2] foetuses are born covered (with the caul). He should not uncover before the purchasing of the Soma. If he were to uncover before the purchasing of the Soma, the foetuses of offspring would be liable to miscarriage. He uncovers when the Soma has been purchased; verily he is born. It is also as when one uncovers to a superior.⁷ The Aṅgirases going to the world of heaven divided their strength. What was left over became Cara grass; Cara grass is strength. In that the girdle is of Cara grass [3].

³ Cf. KS. xxiii. 4; KapS. xxxv. 8; MS. iii. 6. 6, 7; CB. iii. 2. 1. 1-31. This explains TS. i. 2. 2.

⁴ For the construction see Weber, IS. xiiii. 111, who cites v. 2. 6. 5; vi. 1. 5. 6; 2. 4. 2, 4; 7. 1; vii. 1. 6. 2, 3, 4; TB. i. 1. 3 3; AB. vi. 35.

⁵ For the construction cf. Keith, JRAS. 1910, pp. 525, 873.

⁷ Sayana explains by a reference to the removal of the curtains which separate he wins strength. He girds it in the middle; verily he gives him strength in the middle. Therefore in the middle men enjoy strength. The part of man above the navel is pure, that below is impure. In that he girds him in the middle he discriminates between the pure and impure parts Indra hurled his thunderbolt against Vṛtra; it divided into three parts; one-third the wooden sword, one-third the chariot, and one-third the sacrificial post [4]. The internal arrows¹ which were split (avayavata) became Cara grass, and that is why Cara grass is so called. The thunderbolt is Cara grass; hunger indeed is the foe of man. In that the girdle is of Cara grass, he clearly drives away the enemy hunger from the middle (of man's body). It is threefold. The breath is threefold; verily he places the threefold breath in the middle of the sacrificer. It is broad, for the discrimination of the strands. He consecrates the sacrificer with a girdle, with a yoke his wife, for the sake of offspring [5]. The sacrifice reflected on the gift (to the priests).² He had intercourse with her. Indra perceived this and reflected, 'He who will be born from this union will be this world.' He entered her; from her verily was Indra born: he reflected, 'He who hence other than I will be born will be this world'. Stroking her womb he split it, she became barren after birth, and that is the origin of the (cow) which is barren after birth [6].³ He wrapped it (the yoni) in his hand, he deposited it among the wild beasts, it became the horn of the black antelope. 'Thou art the birthplace of Indra; baria me not', (with these words) he hands the horn of the black antelope. Verily he makes the sacrifice united with the womb, the gift with the womb, Indra with the womb, for union with the womb. 'For ploughing thee, for good crops', he says. Therefore plants grow up without ploughing. For those of good fruits thee, for the plants', he says. Therefore plants bear fruit. If he were to scratch himself with his hand [7] his offspring would be liable to the itch; if he were to smile, they would become naked.⁴ He scratches a prince from the people in his palace when he gives an audience. Bhāsk. has pūjyegurūḍikam pratiprāyitam vās' pənute. The practice, however obscure, must rather be to the removal of some garment as a token of respect to a superior, a practice of common occurrence in other parts of the world.

The bolt is conceived, it seems, as containing arrows within it, which become Cara grass or reeds, used for arrows. For the reed arrows of the Indians cf. Vedic Index, ii. 857.

field, Religion of the Veda, pp. 71 seq.; Vedic Index, II, 82, 83.

² taṇḍi seems naturally to mean 'barren, after bearing', in this case Indra. The CB. iii. 2. 1–27, 28 has a form of the legend by which Indra is born as the one and only offspring of Yajña and Vac-

himself with the horn of the black antelope and smiles, holding it for the protection of his offspring. He should not let go the horn of the black antelope before the bringing of the gifts (to the priests). If he were to let go the horn of the black antelope before the bringing of the gifts, the womb of his offspring will be liable to miscarriage. When the gifts have been brought, he casts away the horn of the black antelope in the pit.¹ The pit is the womb of the sacrificer: the horn of the black antelope is the womb, verily he places womb in womb, that the sacrificer may have a womb.

vi 1. 4. Speech² went away from the gods, not being willing to serve for the sacrifice. She entered the trees. It is the voice of the trees, the voice that is heard in the drum, the lute, and the flute.³ In that he offers the staff of the initiated, he wins speech. The (staff) is of Udumbara wood; the Udumbara is strength; verily he wins strength. It is level with his mouth, verily from the mouth (downwards) he wins strength for him. Therefore from the mouth they enjoy strength [1]. After the buying of the Soma he hands the staff to the Maitrāvaruna (priest). For the Maitrāvaruna⁴ first assigns to the priests their utterance, and the priests plant it in the sacrificer. 'Hail! with my mind the sacrifice', he says: for man approaches the sacrifice with his mind. 'Hail! from heaven and earth', he says; for the sacrifice is in heaven and earth. 'Hail! from the broad atmosphere', he says; for the sacrifice is in the atmosphere. 'Hail! from the wind the sacrifice I grasp', he says [2]. The sacrifice is he who blows here;⁵ verily he clearly wins him. He clenches his fist; he restrains his speech for the support of the sacrifice. 'This Brahman⁶ has consecrated himself', he says

On the other hand, Finek (Berl. Philol. Wochenschr. 1901, p. 500) compares the English 'it is me', and suggests that like 'me' the accusative represents a reaction from the nominative or predicative. Cf. Wackernagel, Altind. Gramm. II. i. 203. This suggestion can hardly be deemed acceptable, when the influence of analogy is so obvious and easy an explanation.

⁶ CB. iii. 2. 1. 39, 40, expressly holds that bṛhmaṇa is to be used even of a rājanya or a vaiḍya, as the origin of a man is uncertain, for the Raksases pursue women on earth and implant their seed therein. But a man is born a Bṛhmaṇa by the sacrifice, even if he be a Rājanya or a Vaiḍya. The BGS., in a passage mentioned by Caland and Henry (L'Agnistoma, p. 20, n.), allows the use of the proper terms. For the activity of the Raksases, cf. the discussion of gandharva by Pischel, Ted. Stud. i. 77 seq.; ii. 233, 234, and Oldenberg, Religion des Veda, p. 249, n. 1, and the further treatthrice in a whisper, verily he proclaims him to the gods. Thrice aloud (he says it); verily he proclaims him to both gods and men. He should not utter speech until the Nakṣatras appear. If he were to utter speech before the Nakṣatras appear, he would divide the sacrifice [3]. When the Nakṣatras have arisen, he utters speech, 'Prepare the fast food.' The consecrated is bound by a vow of sacrifice; verily with regard to the sacrifice does he utter speech. Should he utter speech, he should then repeat a Rc addressed to Viṣṇu. Viṣṇu is the sacrifice: verily he unites the sacrifice with the sacrifice. 'The thought divine we meditate', he says. Thus he makes smooth the sacrifice. 'May it guide us safely according as we will', he says. Verily he wins the dawn [4]. The theologians say, 'Should an offering be made in the house of one who is consecrated, or should an offering not be made?' The man who is consecrated is the oblation, and if he were to sacrifice he would offer a part of the sacrificer: if he were not to sacrifice, then he would omit a joint of the sacrifice.² 'The gods, mind born, mind using', he says. The gods, mind born, mind using, are the breaths, verily in them he sacrifices secretly, and the sacrifice is both offered as it were and yet not offered. Now the Rakṣases are fain to hurt him who is consecrated while he sleeps. Agni [5] indeed is the slayer of the Rakṣases. 'O Agni, be thou wakeful. Let us be glad', he says; verily having made Agni his guardian, for the smiting away of the Rakṣases, he sleeps. Now, if a man who is consecrated sleeps, he does something that as it were is contrary to his vow. 'Thou, O Agni, art the guardian of vows', he says. Agni indeed is among the gods the guardian of vows, verily he causes him to take up his vow again. 'Among the gods and men', he says; for he, being a god [6], is (guardian of vows) among men.³ 'Thou art to be invoked at our sacrifices', he says; for him they invoke at the sacrifices. Now power and the gods depart from the man who is consecrated when he is asleep. 'All the gods have surrounded me', he says; verily he unites him with both power and the gods.⁴ If he were not to utter that formula (yujus), so many cattle would be as he might consecrate himself for. 'O Soma, give so much [7] and bear more hither', he says; verily he obtains innumerable cattle. 'Thou art gold: be for my enjoyment', he says,

² The result is that he does not sacrifice in the ordinary way the new and full moon sacrifices, but he sacrifices in the breaths (prāya), an idea not rare; cf. AĀ. iii. 2. 6; QĀ. viii. 1.

⁴ It is clear that this Mantra in the view of the Brāhmaṇa does not apply to the taking of the Dakṣinā, but is said on waking.

verily he takes each according to its deity. He says, To Vayu thee, to Varuna thee! If he did not so specify them, he would put the gifts out of correspondence with the deities, and would be brought low to the deities.¹ Because he thus specifies them, he puts the gifts in correspondence with the deities, and is not brought low to the deities. 'O divine waters, son of the waters', he says. 'That divine part of yours, which is pure and fit for the sacrifice, may I not step upon', that he says in effect. 'The unbroken web of earth may I follow', he says; verily making a bridge he crosses over vi. 1. 5. The² gods, having fixed up a place of sacrifice, could not distinguish the quarters. They ran up to one another, (saying) 'By thee shall we distinguish them, by thee.' They fixed upon Aditi, (saying), 'By thee shall we distinguish them.' She said, 'Let me choose a guerdon. Let the opening oblation in the sacrifice be mine, and the concluding oblation be mine.' Therefore the opening oblation of the sacrifice belongs to Aditi, and the concluding oblation belongs to Aditi.⁴ He offers to five gods; there are five quarters. (and so it serves) for the distinction of the quarters [1] Now the Pañkti is of five elements, the sacrifice is fivefold; verily he wins the sacrifice. They made sacrifice to Pathyā Svasti. The eastern quarter they distinguished by her, by Agni the southern, by Soma the western, by Savitṛ the northern, by Aditi the zenith. He offers to Pathyā Svasti, verily he distinguishes the eastern quarter. Having offered to Pathyā Svasti, he offers to Agni and Soma. Agni and Soma indeed are the eyes of the sacrificer; verily he sees with them [2]. Having offered to Agni and Soma, he offers to Savitṛ; verily on the instigation of Savitṛ he sees. Having offered to Savitṛ, he offers to Aditi; Aditi indeed is this (earth), verily taking his stand on it he sees. Having offered to Aditi, he repeats the verse to the Maruts. The Maruts are the subjects of the gods. As the subjects of the gods are in harmony, so he brings the human subjects into harmony.⁵ In that he repeats the verse to the Maruts,

¹ enah refers to the cattle which serve in the rite. Those which are lost, dead, &c., he devotes to the several gods, the living and whole ones to the several priests. See KS. xxiii. 6; MS. iii. 6. 10, where the sense is made clear.

² For ā-vṛycyate with the dat., Delbrück (Altind. Synt. p. 143) sees an equivalent of an ablative, 'he is removed from the gods'. This is doubtful: the dative seems used rather in the sense 'fall a victim to' the gods. Cf. TS. v. 3. 7. 2; Oldenberg, SBE. xvi. 19 seq.; Agricola-Noten, i. 23, 24, with Charpentier, VOJ.

³ Cf. KS. xxiii. 8; KapS. xxxvi. 5, 6; MS. iii. 7. 1, 2; QB. iii. 2. 3. 1-23.

⁵ For the Maruts as the subjects of the gods, cf. Bloomfield, SBE. xlii. 668, and for mā, see Geldner, Ved. Stud. ii. 808; Vedic Index, it is to bring subjects into harmony. The theologians say, 'The opening oblation should be performed with a fore-offering, but without an after-offering, the concluding oblation should be performed with an after-offering [3], but without a fore-offering.' These are the fore-offerings, and these the after-offerings, and this is the course of the sacrifice.¹ This is not to be followed. The fore-offerings are the self, the after-offerings the offspring. If he were to omit the fore-offerings, he would omit the self; if he were to omit the after-offerings, he would omit offspring. In so far as the whole of the sacrifice² is not performed, in so far does the sacrifice come to ruin, and the sacrificer comes to ruin along with the sacrifice [4]. Verily the opening oblation should be performed with both fore- and after-offerings, and the concluding oblation should be performed both with fore- and after-offerings. He does not omit the self, nor offspring: the sacrifice does not come to ruin, nor the sacrificer. He offers the concluding oblation in the scrapings of the opening oblation:³ this is the course of the sacrifice. Now if he were to make the Yajyā verses of the opening libation the Yajyā verses of the concluding libation, he would mount to the other world away from this, and would be liable to die. The Puronivakya verses of the opening libation should be made the Yajyā verses of the concluding libation; verily he finds support in this world.

vi. 1. 6. Kadru⁴ and Suparni had a dispute (for the stake of) each other's form.⁵ Kadru defeated Suparni. She said, 'In the third heaven from here is the Soma; fetch it, and by it buy your release.' Kadru is this (earth), Suparni yonder (heaven), the descendants of Suparni the metres. She said, 'For this do parents rear children; "in the third heaven from here is the Soma; fetch it, and by it buy your release" [1], so has Kadru said to me.' The Jagati flew up, of fourteen syllables, but returned without obtaining it; it lost two syllables, but returned with the (sacrificial) animals and consecration. Therefore the Jagati is the richest in cattle of the metres, and consecration waits upon a man who is rich in cattle.

ii. 305. The acc. is governed by āśu, but it approximates to the acc. absol. found, e.g. by Geldner (Fed. Stud. iii. 111, n. 3), in RV. For the verse see RV. viii. 7. 11; TS. i. 5. 11. 4, &c.

The Triṣṭubh flew up, of thirteen syllables, but returned without obtaining it, it lost two syllables, but returned with the (sacrificial) gifts [2] and penance. Therefore in the world of the Triṣṭubh, the midday oblation,¹ the gifts are brought. 'That in truth is penance', they say, 'if a man gives his wealth.' The Gāyatrī flew up, of four syllables, together with a female goat with light. Then the goat won (Soma) for her, and so the goat has the name.² The Gāyatrī brought back the Soma and the four syllables, and so became of eight syllables. The theologians say [3], 'For what reason is it that the Gāyatrī, the smallest of the metres, holds the forefront of the sacrifice?' Because it brought down the Soma, it held the forefront of the sacrifice; therefore it is the most glorious (of the metres). By the feet it grasped two of the oblations, and by the mouth one. The one it grasped by the mouth it sucked, therefore two oblations are made of the pure Soma,³ the morning and midday oblations; therefore at the third oblation they pour out the dregs of the Soma; for they regard it as sucked as it were [4]. He removes any admixture so that it may be pure; verily also he makes ready it (the jīṣa). When the Soma was being borne away, the Gandharva Viçvāvasu stole it. It was for three nights stolen; therefore after purchase the Soma is kept for three nights. The gods said, 'The Gandharvas love women;⁴ let us redeem it with a woman.' They made speech unto a woman of one year old, and with her redeemed it. She adopted the form of a deer and ran away from the Gandharvas [5]; that was the origin of the deer. The gods said, 'She has run from you; she comes not to us; let us both⁵ summon her.' The Gandharvas uttered a spell, the gods sang, she went to the gods as they sang. Therefore women love one who sings enamoured are women of him who thus knows. So if there is in a family one person who knows thus, men give their daughters in wedlock to that family, even if there be other (wooers) in plenty [6].⁶ He buys Soma with a (cow) one year old, verily he buys it with the whole of speech. Therefore men utter speech when one year old. He buys with a cow which has no horns, small ears, is not one-eyed or lame, and has not seven hooves, verily he buys it with all. If he were to buy it with a white cow, the sacrificer would become leprous.¹ If he were to buy with a black one, it would be a funeral cow,² and the sacrificer would be likely to die. If with one of both colours, it would be one sacred to Vṛtrahan, and he would either overcome his foe or his foe him.³ He buys with a ruddy, yellow-eyed one. This is the form of Soma : verily he buys it with its own deity.

vi. 1. 7. That⁴ became gold. Therefore they purify gold forth from the waters.⁵ The theologians say, 'How is it that offspring are produced through that which is boneless, and yet are born with bones?' Because he offers the gold, placing it in the ghee, therefore are offspring produced, through that which is boneless, and yet are born with bones. The ghee is Agni's loved abode, the gold is radiance. 'This is thy body, O pure one. This is thy splendour', he says ; verily he unites Agni with his radiance and his body [1]; verily also he makes him ready. If he were to deposit (the gold) without fastening it on, then the foetuses of offspring would be liable to miscarriage. He deposits it fastening it on, to secure the foetuses. He fastens it so that it cannot be untied, for the production of offspring. The cow with which the Soma is bought is speech. 'Thou art the strong', he says, for what he strengthens in his mind,⁶ that he expresses in speech. 'Grasped by mind', he says ; for by mind is speech grasped. 'Acceptable to Viṣṇu', he says [2]. Viṣṇu is the sacrifice; verily he makes her acceptable to the sacrifice. 'Through the impulse of thee, of true impulse', he says; verily he wins speech which is impelled by Savitṛ. As each part is performed, the Rakṣases are fain to injure the sacrifice; the path of Agni and Sūrya is one which the Rakṣases cannot injure. 'I have mounted the eye of the sun, the pupil of the eye of Agni', he says. He mounts the path which is not injured by the Rakṣases [3]. The cow with which the Soma is bought is speech. 'Thou art thought, thou art mind',

² anustārani, the cow killed at the burial rite, with which are covered the limbs of the dead man; cf. RV. x. 16. 7; Oldenberg, Religion des Veda, p. 576, n. 5. See also TS. vi. 1. 7. 5.

³ The point is that the cow would at once impart victory and defeat, the defeat of Vṛtra, the victory of Indra, and there would be no certainty of securing the victory. All the authorities (Hillebrandt, Ved. Myth. i. 25-29) agree on the colour of the cow as like the colour of Soma, and as red or brownish-red (babhru). Cf. CB. iii. 8. 1. 13-16. The reference to seven hooves is of course to the fact that some animals have one of the feet with a single hoof, instead of a double one with a clear division as usual. āvaraṇa is a little obscure; the Kārya recension of the CB. has anupārṣṭalāvya, perhaps 'with unperforated ears'. The rendering 'not earless' of Egging, SBE. xxvi. 68, is difficult, and it may be better to assume that it means 'with unmutilated ears'.

⁴ Cf. KS. xxiv. 8; KapS. xxxvii. 4; MS. iii. 7. 5, 6; QR. iii. 2. 4. 9-21. It comments on TS. i. 2. 4.

he says; verily he instructs her. Therefore children are born instructed. 'Thou art thought', he says: for what one thinks in the mind one expresses in speech. 'Thou art mind', he says; for what one grasps by the mind one performs. 'Thou art meditation', he says, for what one meditates with the mind one expresses in speech [4]. 'Thou art the gift (to the priests)', he says: for (the cow) is the gift. 'Thou art of the sacrifice', he says, verily he makes her fit for the sacrifice. 'Thou art of kingly power', he says, for she is of kingly power. 'Thou art Aditi, double-headed', he says. In that to Aditi belong the opening and the concluding oblations of the sacrifices, therefore does he say that.¹ If (the cow) were not bound, she would be unrestrained; if she were bound by the foot, she would be the funeral cow,² and the sacrificer would be likely to perish [5]. If she were held by the ears, she would belong to Vṛtrahan, and the sacrificer would oppress another, or another would oppress him. 'May Mitra bind thee by the foot', he says. Mitra is the auspicious one of the gods; verily with his help he binds her by the foot. 'May Pūṣan guard the ways', he says. Pūṣan is this (earth); verily he makes her lady of this (earth), for the gaining thereof. 'For Indra the guardian!', he says; verily he makes Indra her guardian [6]. 'May thy mother approve, thy father', he says; verily he buys with her approved.³ 'Go, O goddess, to the god', he says; for she is a goddess, and Soma is a god. 'To Indra Soma', he says, for the Soma is borne to Indra. If he were not to say that text, the cow with which the Soma is bought would go away. 'May Rudra guide thee hither', he says. Rudra is the harsh [7] one of the gods: verily he places him below her, for guiding hither.⁴ He does as it were a harsh thing when he recites that (text) of Rudra's. 'In the path of Mitra', he says, for soothing. He buys indeed by speech when he buys by the cow with which the Soma is bought. 'Hail! Return with Soma as thy comrade, with wealth', he says; verily having purchased by means of speech, he restores speech to himself. The speech of him who knows thus is not likely to fail.

vi. 1. 8. He⁵ follows six steps. Speech does not speak beyond the sixth day. He wins speech in the size in which she is found in the path of the year.⁶ He offers in the seventh footprint. The Çakvari has seven feet, mental absolute could be developed. See Speijer, Sanskrit Syntax, § 372. Cf. p. 626, n. 11.

the Çakvarî is cattle, verily he wins cattle. There are seven domesticated animals, and seven wild, there are seven metres to win both sets of animals. 'Thou art a Vâsvî, thou art a Rudrâ' he says; verily thus by her form he expounds her greatness [1].¹ May Brâhaspati make thee rejoice in happiness', he says. Brâhaspati is the holy power of the gods; verily by means of the holy power he wins cattle for him. 'May Rudra with the Vasus be favourable to thee', he says, for the sake of protection.² 'I pour thee on the head of the earth, on the place of sacrifice', he says; for the place of sacrifice is the head of the earth. 'On the abode of the offering', he says, for the foot of the cow by which the Soma is bought is the abode of the offering. 'Rich in ghee; hail!' [2], he says. Because it was from her foot that ghee was pressed out, he says thus. If the Adhvaryu were to offer a libation where there were no fire, the Adhvaryu would become blind, and the Rakshases would destroy the sacrifice. He offers after putting down the gold; verily he offers in that which has fire;³ the Adhvaryu does not become blind, and the Rakshases do not destroy the sacrifice. As each part is performed, the Rakshases are tain to injure the sacrifice. 'The Rakshas is enclosed, the evil spirits are enclosed', he says,⁴ for the smiting away of the Rakshases [3]. 'Thus I cut the necks of the Rakshas'; 'Who hateth us and whom we hate', he says. There are two persons, one whom he hates and one who hates him; verily successively he cuts their necks. The foot of the cow with which the Soma is bought is cattle; he pours (the dust of the footprint) so far as it is mixed with the ghee;⁵ verily he wins cattle. (Saying) 'Ours be wealth'; he pours it; verily the Adhvaryu [4] does not deprive himself of cattle. Saying 'Thine be wealth', he hands it to the sacrificer, and so bestows wealth on the sacrificer. Saying 'Thine be wealth', (the sacrificer hands it) to his wife. For a wife is the half of oneself, and to do so is as it were to the Sattra called the Gayam Ayana; see Hillebrandt, Altindianische, pp. 155, 157.

³ That is, on the footstep on which the pieces of gold have been placed, gold and fire being, as is natural, equated: cf. Oldenberg, Religion des Veda, p. 89.

⁴ grâdhi is of course the ordinary form in the Veda of grâdhi, 'neck'; and the comm. is needlessly troubled by seeking to find in it, as opposed to Rakshas, the distributive as opposed to the collected use. For grâdhi see Hoernle, JRAS. 1906, pp. 916 seq. It might also be rendered 'throat', but 'neck' is equally plausible.

⁵ The reading is a little uncertain; the MSS. have glytenapûtam or glytanapûtam or yalanapûdam; but BS. vi. 18; ĀpCS. x. 28. 3 have tulam pretty clearly, and that must be regarded as the traditional reading: glytenapûtam is the rendering of the comm., and it makes good sense. There is of course the possibility of reading yalat-mata (cf. ji-mata). BR. and OB. render mî Fett getrocknt, suggesting tulam from tu. Bhâsk. has mata bandhana; and mâ seems the root; yalanapûtam being the correct reading.

deposit it in one's house.¹ 'Let me attend on thee with Tvastr's aid',² he says. Tvastr is the maker of the forms of offspring, of pairings; verily he places form in cattle. For this world the Gārhapatya fire is piled up; for yonder world the Āhavaniya. If he were to cast it on the Gārhapatya fire, he would be rich in cattle in this world; if on the Āhavaniya, he would be rich in cattle in yonder world; he casts it on both; verily he makes him rich in cattle in both worlds.

vi. 1. 9. The³ theologians say, 'Should the Soma be clarified or not?' Soma indeed is the king of plants; whatever falls upon it is swallowed by it.⁴ If he were to clarify it, it would be as when one expels from the mouth what has been swallowed: if he were not to clarify it, it would be as when something falls upon the eye and moves to and fro; the Adhvaryu would be hungry, the sacrificer would be hungry. 'O Soma-seller, purify the Soma', he should say, so whether it be the one [1] or the other, he involves the Soma-seller in both (faults), and therefore the Soma-seller is hungry. Arūpa Aupaveṣī said, 'At the buying of the Soma I win the third pressing.' He measures (the Soma) on the skin of beasts; verily he wins cattle, for cattle are the third pressing. If he desire of a man, 'May he be without cattle', he should measure it for him on the rough side.⁵ The rough side indeed is not connected with cattle; verily he becomes without cattle. If he desire of a man, 'May he be rich in cattle' [2], he should measure for him on the hairy side. That indeed is the form of cattle; verily by the form he obtains cattle for him, verily he becomes rich in cattle. He buys it at the end of the waters; verily he buys it with its sap. 'Thou art a home-dweller', he says; verily he makes it at home. 'Thy libation is bright', he says; for bright is its libation. He advances (for it) with a cart; verily he advances to its mightiness.⁶ He advances with a cart [3], therefore what lives⁸ on the level is to be borne by a cart. Where, however, they bear it on their heads, therefore what lives on the hill is to be borne on

² On tā here—the other Sāṅhitās have trā—cf. Oldenberg, Ṛgveda-Noten, i. 28, n. 5.

³ Cf. KS. xxiv. 5; Kaps. xxxvii. 6; QB. iii. 3. 2. 5-19. This section comments on TS. i. 2. 6.

⁵ Like most of Arūpa's observations, it has little point. Apparently the explanation is that which follows: viz. he measured the Soma on a skin and so won cattle, and they are equivalent to the third pressing which is accompanied by the sātanīya and arubandhyā animals; cf. Hillebrandt, Ritualliteratur, p. 125. For Arūpa see Vedic Index, i. 35.

⁶ That is the side without hair, at first sight rather a curious description.

⁷ As a token of respect he uses a cart.

⁸ Jihāna seems to be an adj. rather than a noun, though the abstract is possible. The reference to gīraū is interesting as the head. With a verse, 'That god, Saviour', in the Atichandas metre¹ he measures. The Atichandas is all the metres; verily with all the metres he measures it. The Atichandas is the highest of the metres. In that he measures with a verse in the Atichandas metre, he makes it the highest of its peers. With each (finger) separately [4] he measures; verily he measures it with each fresh in turn: therefore the fingers have various strengths. He presses down the thumb on them all, therefore it has equal strength with the other fingers, therefore all it accompanies. If he were to measure with all (the fingers), the fingers would grow united; with each separately he measures, therefore they grow separate. He measures five times with the Yajus.² The Pañkti has five syllables, the sacrifice is fivefold; verily he wins the sacrifice. (He measures) five times in silence [5]. They make up ten. The Virāj has ten syllables, the Virāj is food, verily by the Virāj he wins proper food. In that he measures with the Yajus, he wins the past; in that he measures in silence, the future. Now if there were only so much Soma as that which he measures, there would be enough for the sacrificer only, and not also for the priests in the Sadas. With the words, 'For offspring thee!' he draws (the cloth for the Soma) together: verily he makes the priests in the Sadas share in it, with a garment he ties it up; the garment is connected with all the gods [6]; verily he unites it with all the gods: the Soma is cattle; (with the words) 'For expiration thee', he ties it; verily he confers expiration upon cattle. (With the words) 'For cross-breathing thee', he looses it; verily he confers cross-breathing upon cattle; therefore the vital breaths do not desert a sleeper.

vi. 1. 10. If³ he were to barter (it) in response (to the words), 'Let me buy with one-sixteenth (of the cow) from thee, with one-eighth', he would make the Soma not worth a cow, the sacrificer not worth a cow, the Adhvaryu not worth a cow, but he would not depreciate⁴ the mightiness of the cow. 'With a cow let me buy from thee', verily he should say; verily he makes the Soma worth a cow, the sacrificer worth a cow, the Adhvaryu worth a cow, yet still he does not depreciate the mightiness of the cow. He a reminiscence of the hilly country where the Soma is usually supposed to have grown (Vedic Index, ii. 475). The constr. is intelligible but condensed.

² The exact nature of the measuring is not specified: as the thumb is used with each, clearly one finger must have been used twice, but which is not decided; see Caland and Henry, p. 42.

³ With this and TS. vi. 1. 11 cf. KS. xxiv. 6;

buys (it) with a she-goat; verily he buys it full of fervour; he buys (it) with gold; verily he buys it bright [1]; he buys (it) with a milch cow; verily he buys it with milk for the mixing: he buys (it) with a bull, verily he buys it with Indra;¹ he buys (it) with a draught ox, the draught ox is the bearer; verily by the bearer he buys the bearer² of the sacrifice; he buys with two as a pair, to win a pair; he buys with a garment, the garment is connected with all the gods; verily he buys it for all the gods. These make up ten.³ The Virāj has ten syllables, the Virāj is food: verily by the Virāj he wins proper food [2]. 'Thou art the bodily form of penance, Prajāpati's kind', he says; verily the Adhvaryu makes atonement to the cattle, that he may not be cut off. He attains prosperity, he obtains cattle who knows thus. 'The bright with the bright for thee I buy', he says, that is according to the text. The gods retook by force the gold where-with they purchased the Soma, saying, 'Who shall barter brilliance?' The gold by which [3] he buys the Soma he should retake by force; verily he bestows brilliance upon himself. 'Ours be light, darkness be on the Soma-seller', he says; verily he places light in the sacrificer, and bestows darkness on the Soma-seller. If he were to strike (the Soma-seller) without inter-twining (the flock of wool), then the serpents would bite during that year. 'Thus do I intertwine the necks of the biting serpents', he says; the serpents do not bite that year, he pierces the Soma-seller with darkness. 'O Svāna [4], Bhrāja', he says: they indeed in yonder world guarded the Soma; from them they grasped the Soma; if he were not to indicate to them those that serve as the price of Soma, he would not have purchased the Soma, and they would not guard the Soma for him in yonder world. In that he indicates to them those that serve as the price of Soma, he really purchases the Soma, and they guard the Soma for him in yonder world.

vi. 1. 11. The⁴ Soma when bought and tied up is connected with Varuna 'Come as a friend to us, creating firm friendships', he says, for atonement.⁵ 'Enter the right thigh of Indra', he says; the gods placed the Soma which they purchased in the right thigh of Indra; now the sacrificer is Indra, therefore he says thus. 'With life, with fair life', he says; verily seizing the gods [1] he rises up. 'Fare along the wide atmosphere', he says: for Soma has the atmosphere for its deity. 'Thou art the seat of Aditi. Sit on the seat of Aditi', he says; that is according to the text. He severs it indeed when he makes what is connected with Varuna connected with Mitra; he sets it down with a verse addressed to Varuna; verily he unites it with its own deity. He covers it round with a garment, the garment is connected with all the gods; verily with all [2] the gods he unites it, and thus (it serves) for the smiting away of the Rakṣases. 'He hath stretched the atmosphere within the woods', he says; for within the woods he stretched the atmosphere. 'Strength in horses', he says; for (he placed) strength in horses. 'Milk in kine', he says, for (he placed) milk in kine. 'Skill in the heart', he says; for (he placed) skill in the heart. 'Varuna, Agni in dwellings', he says; for Varuna (placed) Agni in dwellings. 'The sun in the sky' [3], he says; for (he placed) the sun in the sky. 'The Soma in the hill', he says; the hills are the pressing-stones; he places the Soma in them, who sacrifices; therefore he says thus. 'Thee, all-knowing god' with this verse addressed to Sūrya he fastens the black antelope skin, to smite away the Rakṣases. 'Come hither, O ye oxen, strong to bear the yoke', he says; that is according to the text. 'Move forward, O lord of the world', he says; for he is the lord of creatures [4]; 'to all thy stations', he says; for he moves forward to all his stations. 'Let no opponent find thee', he says, since the Gandharva Viçvavasu stole the Soma when it was being carried below, he says that, to prevent its being stolen. 'Thou art the good luck of the sacrificer', he says, verily thus the sacrificer grasps the sacrifice, that it be not interrupted. The Soma when bought and tied up¹ indeed approaches the sacrificer in the shape of Varuna [5]. 'Honour to the radiance of Mitra and Varuna', he says, for atonement. They bring forward the Soma, it rests with Agni, they in uniting overpower the sacrificer. Now the consecrated person has for long been holding himself ready for the sacrifice.² In that he offers an animal to Agni and Soma, that is a buying-off of himself, therefore of it he should not eat: for as it were it is a buying-off of a man³. Or rather they say, 'By⁴ Agni and Soma Indra slew Vṛtra'. In that he offers

⁴ The —— editing TS. II. 5. 2 renders this as an animal to Agni and Soma, it slays hostile things for him; therefore he should eat of it. He honours it with a verse addressed to Varuna; verily he honours it with its own deity.¹

vi. 2. 1. If² he should offer hospitality after unyoking both (the oxen), he would break up the sacrifice.³ If (he should offer) before he has unyoked both, it would be as when hospitality is offered to one who has not yet arrived. One ox is unyoked, one ox is not unyoked; then he offers hospitality, for the continuance of the sacrifice. The wife (of the sacrificer) holds on (to the cart); for the wife is mistress of the household gear; verily he offers what is approved by the wife. The share of the wife in the sacrifice makes a pair;⁴ so the wife also [1] grasps the sacrifice that it may not be interrupted. With whatever retinue the king comes, to all of them hospitality is offered; the metres are the retinue of King Soma. 'Thou art the hospitality of Agni. For Viṣṇu thee!' he says; thus he offers (hospitality) to the Gāyatrī. 'Thou art the hospitality of Soma. For Viṣṇu thee!' he says; thus he offers (hospitality) to the Trisṭubh. 'Thou art the hospitality of the stranger. For Viṣṇu thee!' he says; thus he offers (hospitality) to the Jagatī [2]. 'For Agni thee, giver of wealth, for Viṣṇu thee!' he says; thus he offers (hospitality) to the Anusṭubh. 'For the eagle, bringer of the Soma, thee, for Viṣṇu thee!' he says; thus he offers (hospitality) to the Gāyatrī. He offers five times. The Pañkti has five syllables, the sacrifice is fivefold; verily he wins the sacrifice. The theologians say, 'For what reason is the Gāyatrī offered to on either side of the offering of hospitality?' Because the Gāyatrī brought the Soma down⁵ [3]; therefore is it offered to on both sides of hospitality, before and after. Hospitality is the head of the sacrifice, the sacrificial cake is offered on nine potsherds, but the connexion seems to require 'by'. If it is merely 'for', it is less natural to say that an animal offered to Agni and Soma would be vāstragna, which the comm. correctly renders as vāstrātī.

² Cf. KS. xxiv. 8; KapS. xxxviii. 1; MS. iii. 7. 9; QB. iii. 4. 1. 1-18. This section comments on TS. i. 2. 10.

therefore the head has nine apertures.¹ The sacrificial cake is offered on nine potsherds. The three sets of three potsherds are commensurate with the Trivṛt Stoma, the Trivṛt is brilliance; verily he places brilliance in the head of the sacrifice. The sacrificial cake is offered on nine potsherds. The three sets of three potsherds are commensurate with the threefold breath, the breath is threefold [4]; verily in order he places the threefold breath in the head of the sacrifice. Now the Saccharum spontaneum shoots are the eyelashes of Prajāpati, and his lids are pieces of sugar-cane². In that the strew is of Saccharum spontaneum and the dividing-stakes of sugar-cane, verily he brings together the eye of Prajāpati. Now the libations made by the gods the Asuras tore³ and ate. The gods saw the Gmelina arborea tree. (Thinking) 'It is fit for work; by it one can perform work', they made the enclosing-sticks of Gmelina arborea wood [5], and by them they smote away the Rakṣases. In that the enclosing-sticks are made of Gmelina arborea wood, it is for the smiting away of the Rakṣases. He makes them touch, that the Rakṣases may not go through them. He does not place one in front, for the sun which rises in front smites away the Rakṣases. He places the kindling-sticks erect; verily from above he smites away the Rakṣases; (he places one) with a Yajus, the other in silence, to make a pair. He places two; the sacrifice has two feet; (verily they serve) for support. The theologians say [6], 'There are both Agni and Soma here; why is hospitality offered to Soma and not to Agni?' In that having kindled fire he places it on the fire, by that verily is hospitality offered to Agni. Or rather they say, 'Agni is all the gods.' In that he kindles fire after placing the oblation, he thus produces all the gods for the oblation when it has been placed.

vi. 2.2. The⁴ gods and the Asuras were in conflict. The gods fell out among themselves. Being unwilling to accept one another's pre-eminence, they separated in five bodies, Agni with the Vasus, Soma with the Rudras, Indra with the Maruts, Varuna with the Ādityas, Brhaspati with the All-gods. They reflected, 'Our foes, the Asuras, we are profiting in that we are falling out among ourselves; let us remove (from us) and deposit together those bodies which are dear to us; from these shall he depart who [1] first of us is hostile to another.' Therefore of those who perform the Tānūnaptra rite he who first is hostile goes to destruction. In that he divides up the Tānūnaptra, (it serves) for

³ nīgṛdham is clearly a gerund of *nīg-*skū, and should be written nīgṛdām, the usual loss of the double sibilant occurring in the MSS. The comm. renders nīgṛdām, which is clearly wrong; Blak. gives nīgṛpāya as one rendering. Cf. vi 8.4; p. 505, n. 2.

the overcoming of the foe, he himself prospers, his foe is defeated. He divides five times; for five times did they divide. Then again the Pañkti has five syllables, the sacrifice is fivefold; verily he wins the sacrifice. 'For him who rusheth on I seize thee', he says; he who rushes on is the breath [2]; verily he delights the breath. 'For him who rusheth around', he says; he who rushes around is the mind; verily he delights the mind. 'For Tanūnapāt', he says; for they divided up these bodies. 'For the mighty', he says; for they divided them up for strength. 'For the greatest in strength', he says; for they divided up the greatest part of themselves. 'Thou art unsurmounted, the unsurmountable', he says; for that is unsurmounted and unsurmountable. 'The force of the gods' [3], he says; for that is the force of the gods. 'Guarding from imprecations, impervious to imprecations', he says; for that guards from imprecations and is impervious to imprecations. 'May the lord of consecration approve my consecration', he says; that is according to the text. The gods making the ghee a weapon smote Soma; now they come near the Soma as it were, when they perform the Tānūnaptra. 'May thy every shoot, O god Soma, swell', he says. Whatever [4] of it becomes spoiled¹ or is lost, that he purifies by it. 'May Indra swell for thee; do thou swell for Indra', he says; verily he makes to swell both Indra and Soma. 'Make thy comrades to swell with wealth and skill', he says. The priests are his comrades; verily he makes them to swell. 'With good fortune may I accomplish thy pressing, O god Soma' [5], he says; verily he invokes this blessing (on himself). Those who make the Soma to swell fall away from this world, for the Soma when made to swell has the atmosphere as its deity. 'Desired are riches exceedingly, for food, for prosperity', he says; verily by paying homage to heaven and earth they find support in this world. The gods and the Asuras were in conflict. The gods in scar entered Agni; therefore they say, 'Agni is all the gods'. They [6], making Agni their protection, overcame the Asuras. Now he as it were enters Agni who undergoes the intermediate consecration, (and it serves) for the overcoming of his foes; he prospers himself, his foe is overcome. He protects himself by the consecration, his offspring by the intermediate consecration. The girdle he makes tighter; for his offspring are closer to him than himself. He drinks warm milk, and rubs himself with bubbling water²; for fire³ is extinguished by cold, (and these serve) for kindling. 'Thy dread form, O Agni', he says; verily with its own deity he consumes the hot milk, for unity, for atonement.

¹ The com. renders apuvāya as gusyat: it is of course a derivative from aptā (RV. x. 103, 12, &c.), and the sense is clearly as rendered.

vi 2. 3. The¹ Asuras had three citadels ; the lowest was of iron, then there was one of silver, then one of gold. The gods could not conquer them ; they sought to conquer them by siege : therefore they say—both those who know thus and those who do not—‘ By siege they conquer great citadels.’ They made ready an arrow. Agni as the point, Soma as the socket, Visnu as the shaft.² They said, ‘ Who shall shoot it ? ’ [1] ‘ Rudra’, they said, ‘ Rudra is cruel, let him shoot it.’ He said, ‘ Let me choose a boon ; let me be overlord of animals.’ Therefore is Rudra overlord of animals. Rudra let it go ; it cleft the three citadels and drove the Asuras away from these worlds. The observance of the Upasads is for the driving away of foes. One should not offer another libation in front ; if he were to offer another libation³ in front [2], he would make something else the beginning. He sprinkles clarified butter with the dipping-ladle to proclaim the sacrifice.⁴ He makes the offering after crossing over⁵ without coming back ; verily he drives away his foes from these worlds so that they come not back. Then returning he offers the Upasad libation ; verily having driven away his foes from these worlds and having conquered he mounts upon the world of his foes. Now the gods by the Upasads which they performed in the morning drove away the Asuras from the day, by the Upasads (performed) in the evening (they drove away the Asuras) from the night. In that both morning and evening Upasads [3] are performed, the sacrificer drives away his foes from day and night. The Yajyās used in the morning should be made Puronuvākyās at night, for variety. He performs three Upasads, these worlds are three ; verily he delights these worlds ; they together⁶ make six, the seasons are six ; verily he delights the seasons. He performs twelve at an Ahīna Soma sacrifice, the year consists of twelve months ; verily he delights the year. They make twenty-four [4], the half-months number twenty-four ; verily he delights the half-months. He should perform an awl-shaped⁷ intermediate consecration who wishes, ‘ May there be prosperity for me in this world’, (that is) one to begin with, then two, then three, then four ;

¹ Cf. KS. xxiv. 10; xxv. 1; KapS. xxxviii. 8, 4; MS. iii. 8. 1, 2; QB. iii. 4. 4. 3–20, 26, 27; AB. i. 23, 25. For other versions of the Upasads, cf. Lévi, La doctrine du sacrifice, pp. 45 seq.; Muir, Sansk. Texts, ii. 388 seq.

⁴ That is, the Srauva Āghāra takes place ; cf. Caland and Henry, L'Agnisoma, p. 68.

⁵ This refers to crossing the space between the Āhavanya and the Vedi from north to south. For the Upasad he returns to the north.

⁶ i. e. the morning and evening celebration.

⁷ drīgrā is explained by the comm. as dra + agra, dra being a haliturdapradhana. But the Pada MSS. resolve it as dra + agra no doubt correctly. The real sense of dra, Pūṣan's weapon, is probably 'awl' or 'gimlet' (Vedic Index, i. 61). The reference is to the making of the number of teats of the cow used for the milk required for the Dikṣā.

this indeed is the awl-shaped intermediate consecration; verily there is prosperity for him in this world. He should perform an intermediate consecration broader at the top than below who wishes, 'May there be prosperity for me in yonder world', (that is) four to begin with, then three, then two, then one; this indeed is the intermediate consecration broader at the top than below; verily there is prosperity for him in yonder world.

vi. 2. 4. They¹ go to the world of heaven who perform the Upasads. Of them he who takes out (a little food) is left behind; one² must take out carefully, (thinking) 'I have not taken out anything.' He who is left behind wearied among those who go on their own mission sticks behind and lives at (home). Therefore after once taking out, one should not take out a second time. One should take out of curd, that is the symbol of cattle: verily by the symbol he wins cattle [1]. The sacrifice went away from the gods in the form of Viṣṇu, and entered the earth. The gods sought him grasping hands. Indra passed over him. He said, 'Who has passed over me?' 'I am he who smites in the stronghold; who art thou?' 'I am he who brings from the stronghold.' He said, 'Thou art called he who smites in the stronghold. Now a boar,³ stealer of the good, [2] keeps the wealth of the Asuras which is to be won beyond the seven hills. Him smite, if thou art he who smites in the stronghold.' He plucked out a bunch of Darbha grass, pierced the seven hills, and smote him. He said,

'Thou art called he who brings from the stronghold; bring him.' So the sacrifice bore off the sacrifice for them; in that they won the wealth of the Asuras which was to be won (vēdyam), that alone is the reason why the Vedi is so called. The Asuras [3] indeed at first owned the earth, the gods had so much as one seated can espy. The gods said, 'May we also have a share in

² This passage is not easy, but the sense seems clearly that a dīkṣita can only have a little extra sustenance (dadhi), practically what he can regard as śāl. The difficulty is in the sentence ending nigydya sahi vasati. The comm. takes it as referring to such cases as when a pilgrim misses the Prayāga sāṃkraman but puts in the rest of the pilgrimage, and he renders nigydya as pāradyur nigyatya sārthe gatā, whence Weher suggests the reading nigyāyā (cf. TS. vi. 2. 1. 5 nigdātam for the MSS. nigdām). In that case the words must be pressed to give the sense, 'having aroused himself comes to dwell along with (those who have gone on).' This renders tāsmāt a little unnatural: one rather expects a sentence which would give a ground for tāsmāt. Bhāsk. has svārthān nigyatya vigrāmya . . . punas svārthonākībhūtāḥ. BR. take nigydya for niṣṭyāya, and if this is correct, then the rendering above must be approximately the sense, though it is not easy. Vasati, however, does seem to contrast with gatām, and the metaphor from a coagulating drop is not an impossible one. rāṇīyam is an early instance of ṇīya as gerund (Whitney, Sansk. Gramm. § 968 b, calls ṇīya late, but it is recognized in Root, &c., p. 91).

the earth? How much shall we give you? Give us as much as this Salavṛki¹ can thrice run round.' Indra taking the form of a Salavṛki thrice ran round on all sides the earth. So they won the earth, and in that they won it therefore is the Vedi so called [4]. All this earth is the Vedi, but they measure off and sacrifice on so much as they deem they can use. The back cross-line is thirty feet, the eastern line² is thirty-six feet the front cross-line is twenty-four feet. These make up tens;³ the Virāj has ten syllables; the Virāj is food; verily by the Virāj he wins food He digs up (the earth): verily he digs away whatever in it is impure. He digs up; therefore the plants perish. He spreads the sacrificial strew; therefore the plants again revive. He spreads over the strew the upper strew. The strew is the people; the upper strew is the sacrificer; verily he makes the sacrificer higher than the man who does not sacrifice; therefore the sacrificer is higher than the man who does not sacrifice.

vi 2. 5. If⁴ a weak man take up a burden, he breaks up into pieces. If there were twelve Upasads in the one-day rite, and three in the Ahina, the sacrifice would be upset. There are three Upasads in the one-day rite, twelve in the Ahina, to preserve the strength of the sacrifice: thus it is in order. One teat (of the cow) is used for a child, for that is fortunate.⁵ So he takes one teat for his milk drink, then two, then three, then four. That [1] is the razor-edged drink by which he drives away his foes when born and repels them when about to be born; verily also with the smaller he approaches the greater. He takes the four teats first for his drink, then three, then two, then one. That is the drink called 'of a beatific back', full of fervour, and of heavenly character; verily also is he propagated with children and cattle. Gruel is the drink of the Rājanya: gruel is as it were harsh; the Rājanya is as it were harsh [2], it is the symbol of the thunderbolt, (and serves) for success. Curds (is the drink) of the Vaicya, it is the symbol of the sacrifice of cooked food, (and serves) for prosperity. Milk (is the drink) of the Brahman, the Brahman is brilliance, milk is brilliance; verily by brilliance he endows himself with brilliance and milk. Again by milk foetuses grow; the man who is consecrated is as it were a foetus; in that milk is his drink, verily thus he causes himself to grow. Manu was wont thrice to take drink, the Asuras twice, the gods once [3]. Morning, midday, evening, were the times of Manu's drinking, the symbol of the sacrifice of cooked food, (serving) for prosperity. Morning and evening were those of the Asuras, without a middle, a symbol of hunger; thence were they overcome. Midday and midnight were those of the gods; thence they prospered and went to the world of heaven. Now with regard to his drinking at midday and at midnight, it is in the middle that people feed themselves; verily he places strength in the middle of himself, for the overcoming of his foes. He prospers himself [4], his foe is overcome. Now the man who is consecrated is a foetus, the consecration-shed is the womb (in which he is). If the man who is consecrated were to leave the consecration-shed, it would be as when a foetus falls from the womb. He must not leave, to guard himself. The fire here¹ is a tiger to guard the house. Therefore if the man, who is consecrated were to leave (the shed), he would be likely to spring up and slay him. He must not leave, to protect himself. He lies on the right side; that is the abode of the sacrifice; verily he lies in his own abode. He lies turned towards the fire; verily he lies turned towards the gods and the sacrifice.

vi. 2. 6. On² a place of sacrifice where the sacrifice faces the east should he make him to sacrifice for whom he wishes, 'May the higher sacrifice condescend to him, may he gain the world of heaven.' That is the place of sacrifice where the sacrifice faces the east, where the Hotr as he recites the Prātaranuvāka gazes upon the fire, water, and the sun. To him the higher sacrifice condescends, he gains the world of heaven. On a contiguous (āptā) place of sacrifice should he make him to sacrifice who has foes. He should make it touch the road or a pit so that neither a wagon nor a chariot can go between [1].³ That is a contiguous place of sacrifice. He conquers (āpnoti) his foe, his foe conquers him not. On a place of sacrifice which is elevated in one place he should make him to sacrifice who desires cattle. The Aṅgirases produced cattle from a place of sacrifice elevated in one place. It should be elevated between the seat and the oblation-holders. That is a place of sacrifice elevated in one place; verily he becomes possessed of cattle. On a place of sacrifice which is elevated in three places should he make him to sacrifice who desires heaven. The Aṅgirases went to the world of heaven from a place of sacrifice elevated in three places. It should be elevated between the Āhavaniya fire and the oblation-holder [2], between the oblation-holder and the seat, and between the seat and the Gārhapatya fire. That is a place of sacrifice elevated in three places; verily he goes to the world of heaven. On a place of sacrifice which is firm should he make him to sacrifice who desires support. That is a place of sacrifice which is firm, which is level on all sides; verily he finds support. Where diverse plants are intertwined, there should he make him sacrifice who desires cattle. That is the form of cattle; verily by the form he wins cattle for him [3]; verily he becomes possessed of cattle. On a place of sacrifice seized by destruction should he make him to sacrifice for whom he desires, 'May I cause his sacrifice to be seized by destruction.' That is a place of sacrifice seized by destruction where there is a bare patch of level ground; verily he causes his sacrifice to be seized by destruction. On a place of sacrifice which is distinctly marked should he cause him to sacrifice regarding whom they have doubts as to (admitting him to) common meals or to marriage.¹ It should be sloping east of the Āhavaniya and west of the Gārhapatya. That is a place of sacrifice which is distinctly marked, he is distinguished from his evil foe, they doubt not of him for common meal or wedding. On a place of sacrifice which is artificial should he make him sacrifice who desires wealth. Man must be made, verily he prospers.

vi. 2: 7. The² high altar taking the form of a lioness went away and remained between the two parties. The gods reflected, 'Whichever of the two she joins, they will become this.' They called to her; she said, 'Let me choose a boon; through me shall ye obtain all your desires, but the oblation shall come to me before (it comes to) the fire.' Therefore do they besprinkle the high altar before (they sprinkle) the fire, for that was its chosen boon. He measures (it) round with the yoke-pin [1], that is its measure; verily also by what is fitting he wins what is fitting. 'Thou art the abode of riches (vitta) for me', he says, for being found (vittā) she helped them;³ 'thou art the resort of the afflicted for me', he says, for she helped them in affliction; 'protect me when in want', he says, for she protected them when in want; 'protect me when afflicted', he says, for she protected them when afflicted. 'May Agni, named Nabhas, know (thee) [2], O Agni Āṅgiras', (with these words) he thrice strokes with (the wooden sword), verily he wins the fires that are in these worlds. He strokes in silence for the fourth time, verily he wins that which is not indicated. 'Thou art a lioness; thou art a buffalo', he says, for it (the high altar) taking the form of a lioness went away and remained between the two parties. 'Extend wide; let the lord of the sacrifice extend wide for thee', he says; verily he enriches the sacrificer with offspring and cattle. 'Thou art firm' [3], (with these words) he strikes (the earth) together, for firmness. 'Be pure for the gods, be bright for the gods', (with these words) he moistens it and scatters (sand) on it, for purity. 'May the cry of Indra guard thee in front with the Vasus', he says; verily he sprinkles it from the quarters. 'Since the high altar has gone¹ to the gods, here must we conquer' (thought) the Asuras, and with bolts ready they advanced on the gods. Them the cry of Indra with the Vasus repelled in front [4]; the swift of mind with the Pitrs on the right, the wise one with the Rudras behind, and Viçyakarmā with the Ādityas on the left. In that he sprinkles the high altar, verily thus does the sacrificer repel his foes from the quarters. Indra gave the Yatis² to the Sālāvṛkas; them they ate on the right of the high altar. Whatever is left of the sprinkling waters he should pour on the right of the high altar; whatever cruel is there that he appeases thereby. He should think of whomever he hates; verily he brings affliction upon him.

vi. 2. 8. The³ high altar said, 'Through me ye shall obtain all your desires.' The gods desired, 'Let us overcome the Asuras our foes.' They sacrificed (with the words), 'Thou art a lioness, overcoming rivals; hail!' They overcame the Asuras, their foes. Having overcome the Asuras, their foes, they felt desire, 'May we obtain offspring.' They sacrificed (with the words), 'Thou art a lioness, bestowing fair offspring; hail!' They obtained offspring. They having obtained offspring [1] felt desire, 'May we obtain cattle.' They sacrificed (with the words), 'Thou art a lioness, bestowing increase of wealth, hail!' They obtained cattle. Having obtained cattle, they felt desire, 'May we obtain support.' They sacrificed (with the words), 'Thou art a lioness, winning (the favour of) the Ādityas; hail!' They found support here.

¹ Delbrück (Allind. Synt. pp. 597, 598) takes this as an aor. and this rendering makes fair sense; when, the altar goes to the gods, the Asuras feel that they must fight now or never. Weber gives as alternatives the 3rd sing. pres. intens. (for vartatī) or 3rd sing. plur. dim. (for vata), the latter being quite impossible; the former is, however, quite possible in sense — 'since it is approaching we must now fight.' But it is also possible that it is simply vartatī, 3rd sing. of vrt as a third class verb, which gives the same sense as Weber without a breach of grammar, and even upā-vartī is conceivable in the same sense. The verb should be accented in view of cid, and it is no doubt merely a blunder that it is not.

Having found support here, they felt desire, 'May we approach the deities for blessings.' They sacrificed (with the words), 'Thou art a honest; bring the gods in the plants [1] so there, now!' They approached the deities for blessings. He sprinkles five times: the Pankti has five syllables, the sacrificer is fivefold. verily he wins the sacrifice. He sprinkles transversely, therefore earth above their hands transversely, for support. 'For beings that' (with these words) he takes up the ladle; of the gods that are that is the share; verily he the new with delights them. He puts round the enclosing-sticks of Butea frondosa for the holding apart of these worlds [3]. Agni had three elder brothers.¹ They perished when carrying the offering to the gods. Agni was afraid, 'This one here will come to ruin.' He went away. The (night) he spent among the trees was with the Butea frondosa; the (night) among the plants was with the Sugandhilejum; the (night) among the earth was between the horns of a ram. The gods sought to start him forth. They found him, and said to him [4], 'Return to us; bear the offering for us.' He said, 'Let me choose a boon. Whatever of the offering when taken up falls outside the enclosing-sticks, let that be the portion of my brothers.' Therefore whatever of the offering when taken up falls outside the enclosing-sticks, that is their portion; verily therewith he delights them. He reflected, 'My brothers of old perished because they had bones. I will shatter bones.' The bones he shattered became the Butea frondosa, the flesh which died on them bdelium. In that he brings together these paraphernalia, verily thus he brings Agni together. 'Thou art the rubble of Agni', he says, for the paraphernalia are the rubble of Agni. Or rather they say, 'These enclosing-sticks of Butea frondosa which lie around² are in truth his brothers.'

vi. 2.9. He³ loosens the knot; verily he sets them free from the noose of Varuna; verily he makes them fit for the sacrifice. Having sacrificed with a verse to Savitri, he brings forward the oblation-holders, verily on the instigation of Savitri he brings them forward. The axle which is tied on both sides is Varuna of evil speech: if it were to break, it would break against the house of the sacrificer. 'With fair voice, O god, do thou address the dwelling', he says; the dwelling is the house; (verily it serves) for atonement. The wife (of the sacrificer) [1] ancints (them), for the wife is every one's friend, for friendship. The share of the wife in the sacrifice makes a pair; verily also the wife grasps the sacrifice that it may not be interrupted.⁴ Now the Rakshases following in its track seek to injure the sacrifice ; he makes a libation in the two tracks with Rc verses addressed to Viṣṇu. The sacrifice is Viṣṇu ; verily he drives away the Rakṣases from the sacrifice. If the Adhvaryu were to pour the libation in (a place) without fire, the Adhvaryu would become blind, the Rakṣases would injure the sacrifice [2]. He puts gold down on it before making the libation;¹ verily he makes the libation in that which has fire ; the Adhvaryu does not become blind, the Rakṣases do not injure the sacrifice. ‘Come ye two forward, ordaining the offering’, he says ; verily he makes them go to the world of heaven. ‘There rejoice on the height of the earth’, he says, for the place of sacrifice is the height of the earth. Now the oblation-holder is the head of the sacrifice. ‘From the sky, O Viṣṇu, or from the earth’ [3], with this Rc verse which contains a blessing² he strikes in the prop of the southern oblation-holder ; verily the sacrificer at the beginning of the sacrifice wins blessings. Now Danda Anpara split by the Vāyat call the axle of the third oblation-holder ; the third cover put on the oblation-holder (serves) to make up the third oblation-holder. The oblation-holder is the head of the sacrifice. ‘Thou art the forehead of Viṣṇu : thou art the back of Viṣṇu’, he says. Therefore so often is the head divided. ‘Thou art the string of Viṣṇu, thou art the fixed point of Viṣṇu’, he says, for the oblation-holder is connected with Viṣṇu as its deity. Now the knot which he first ties, if he were not to unloose it, the Adhvaryu would perish from suppression of urine ; therefore it must be unloosed.

vi. 2. 10. ‘On³ the impulse of the god Savitr’, (with these words) he takes up the spade, for impelling. ‘With the arms of the Açvins’, he says, for the Açvins were the priests of the gods. ‘With the hands of Pūṣan’, he says, for restraint. Now the spade is as it were a bolt ; ‘Thou art the spade ; thou art the woman’, he says, to appease it. Now, as each part is performed, the Rakṣases seek to injure the sacrifice ; ‘The Rakṣas is encompassed, the evil spirits are encompassed’, he says, to smite away the Rakṣases [1]. ‘Here do I cut off the neck of the Rakṣas, who hateth us, and whom we hate’, he says ;⁴ there are two people, he whom he hates and he who hates him ; verily straightway he cuts their necks. ‘To sky thee, to atmosphere thee, to earth thee !’ he says ; verily he anoints it for these worlds. He anoints from the top downwards ; therefore [2] men live on strength from the top downwards. Now he does a cruel on are in TS. i. 3. 1.

⁴ This is a clear case where the Brāhmaṇa differs from the text of TS. i. 3. 1 and where the change is for the worse. So TS. vi. 3. 9. 2.

deed in that he digs ; he pours down water, for atonement. He pours down (water) mixed with barley : barley is strength, the Udumbara is strength, verily he unites strength with strength. (The post) is of Udumbara wood of the height of the sacrificer. As great as is the sacrificer, so much strength does he put in it. 'Thou art the seat of the Pitṛs', (with these words) he spreads the strew, for what is dug in has the Pitṛs for its deity [3]. If he were to set it up without strewing, it would be dug in and have the Pitṛs for its deity; he sets it up after strewing, verily he sets it up in this (earth), and makes it firm-rooted.' 'Support the sky, fill the atmosphere', he says, for the distinction of these worlds. 'May Dyutana Maruta set thee up', he says; Dyutana Maruta was wont to set up the Udumbara (post) of the gods; verily [4] by him he sets this (post) up. 'Thee that art winner of Brahmins, winner of nobles', he says; that is according to the text. 'With ghee, O sky and earth, be filled'. (with these words) he sacrifices on the Udumbara (post); verily with moisture he anoints sky and earth. He makes it run right to the end : verily completely does he anoint the sacrificer with brilliance. 'Thou art of Indra', (with these words) he puts down the covering, for the seat has Indra as its deity. 'The shade of all folk', he says, for the seat is the shade of all folk. (A roof of) nine coverings² [5] should he fix for one who desires brilliance, commensurate with the Trivṛt Stoma: the Trivṛt is brilliance, verily he becomes brilliant, one of eleven coverings (he should fix) for one who desires power: the Trisṭubh has eleven syllables, the Trisṭubh is power; verily he becomes powerful. (A roof of) fifteen coverings (he should fix) for one who has foes; the thunderbolt is fifteenfold; (verily it serves) for the overcoming of foes. (A roof of) seventeen coverings (he should fix) for one who desires offspring; Prajāpati is sixteenfold; (verily it serves) to gain Prajāpati. (A roof of) twenty-one coverings (he should fix) for one who desires support; the Ekavīṇa is the support of the Stomas; (verily it serves) for support. The Sadas is the stomach, the Udumbara is strength, in the middle he fixes (the post) of Udumbara wood; verily he places strength in the midst of offspring; therefore [6] in the middle they enjoy strength. In the world of the sacrificer are the southern coverings, in that of his foe are the northern; he makes the southern the higher; verily he makes the sacrificer higher than the man who does not sacrifice; therefore the sacrificer is higher than the man who does not sacrifice. He fills up the crevices,³ for ² सूरीहम् is rendered by Śāyana सूरीभाद्धम्. The word is analysed in the Pada as सूरीहम्, but it is possible that सूरीहम् is the form; cf. A.V. xiii. 1. 3, and 'shoot' Cf. TR. vi. 2. 4. 2.

³ ————— is clearly read as ————— by distinction : therefore people depend on the forest. ' May our songs, O lover of song ', he says ; that is according to the text. ' Thou art the string of Indra , thou art the fixed point of Indra ', he says ; for the Sadas has Indra for its deity. Now the knot which he first ties, if he were not to unloose it, the Adhvaryu would perish through suppression of urine ; therefore it must be unloosed.

vi. 2. 11. The¹ oblation-holder is the head of the sacrifice, the sounding-holes are the vital airs. They are dug in the oblation-holder ; therefore the vital airs are in the head. They are dug below ; therefore the vital airs are below the head. ' I dig those which slay the Raksas, which slay the spell, and which are of Visnu ', he says, for the sounding-holes have Visnu for their deity. The Asuras in retreat dug in spells against the vital airs of the gods : they found them at the distance of an arm ;² therefore they are dug an arm's length deep. ' Here do I cast out the spell [1] which an equal or an unequal hath buried ', he says ; there are two sorts of men, the equal and the unequal : verily whatever spell they dig against him he thus casts out. He unites them ;³ therefore the vital airs are united within. He does not combine them ; therefore the vital airs are not combined. He pours water over ; therefore the vital airs are moist within. (The water) he pours is mixed with barley [2] ; barley is strength, the sounding-holes are the vital airs : verily he places strength in the vital airs. He spreads over the strew ; therefore the vital airs are hairy within. He besprinkles (the holes) with butter ; butter is brilliance, the sounding-holes are the vital airs ; verily he places brilliance in the vital airs. The pressing-boards are the jaws of the sacrifice ; he does not join them, for the jaws are not joined ; or rather at a long Soma sacrifice they should be joined, for firmness. The oblation-holder is the head of the sacrifice [3], the sounding-holes are the vital airs, the pressing-boards the jaws, the skin the tongue, the pressing-stones the teeth,⁴ the Āhavaniya the mouth, the high altar the nose, the Sadas the stomach. When he eats with his tongue on his teeth, (the food) goes to the mouth ; when it goes to the mouth, then it goes to the stomach ; therefore they press (the juice) with the pressing-stones on the oblation-holder over the skin, sacrifice in the Āhavaniya, retire towards the west, and consume (the Soma) in the Sadas. He who knows the milking of the Virāj⁵ in the mouth of the sacrifice milks her : the Virāj is this (cow).

Sayana who paraphrases it as chadiśūm antarilachidreṣu tṛṇapālaiḥ pidhānam. Bhāsk. gives a variety of views, including our one āranyakatvapaknūlām (v. l. mūlānām) tṛṇām samjñā.

¹ Cf. KS. xxv. 9 ; KapS. xl. 2 ; MS. iii. 8. 8 ; CB. iii. 5. 4. 1-24. The verses commented upon are in TS. i. 3. 2.

² Three vitasṭis is the length according to the eomm.

³ i. e. the holes are connected below, but not at the top.

⁴ The inversion of order is curious and is not in the parallel in the KS. It occurs below also ; see TS. vi. 3. 3. 6.

⁵ So the sacrifice is called because the Rcs in the skin is its hide the pressing boards its udder the sounding holes its teats, the pressing-stones its calves the priests the milkers Soma the milk. He who knows thus, milks her.

vi. 3. 1. From¹ the pit he scatters (earth) on the altars; the pit is the birthplace² of the sacrifice; (verily it serves) to unite the sacrifice with its birthplace. The gods lost by conquest the sacrifice: they won it again from the Agnidh's altar: the Agnidh's altar is the invincible part of the sacrifice. In that he draws off the altar fires from that of the Agnidh, he renews the sacrifice from the invincible part of it. Conquered as it were they go who creep to the Bahispavamāna (Stotra): when the Bahispavamāna has been sung [1], he says, 'Agnidh, draw off the fires, spread the strew, make ready the sacrificial cake.' Verily having re-won the sacrifice they keep renewing it. At two pressings he draws off by means of embers, at the third with (flaming) splinters, to give it glory, verily he completes it.³ The altars guarded the Soma in yonder world, they took away the Soma from them; they followed it and surrounded it. He who knows thus [2] wins an attendant. They were deprived of the Soma drink; they besought the gods for the Soma drink; the gods said to them, 'Take two names each; then shall ye gain it, or not.'⁴ Then the altars became fires (also): therefore a Brahman who has two names is likely to prosper. Those which came nearest gained the Soma drink, viz. the Āhavaniya, the Agnidh's altar, the Hotr's, and the Mārjaliya; therefore they sacrifice on them. He leaves them out in uttering the cry for sacrifice,⁵ for [3] they were deprived of the Soma drink. The gods drove away the Asuras who were in front by the sacrifices which they offered on the eastern side, and the Asuras who were behind by those which they offered on the western side. Soma libations are offered in the east, seated to the west he besprinkles the altars; verily from behind and from in front the sacrificer smites away his enemies: therefore offspring are engendered behind, and are brought forth in front [4]. The altars are the breaths; if the Agnistoma's twelve Stotras amount to ninety (= 10×9), and the Virāj is figured as a cow, which clearly represents the earth; cf. यज्ञ वा विराजः.

¹ Cf. ES. xxvi. 1; KapS. xl. 4; MS. iii. 8. 10; CB. iii. 6. 2. 19-26. The verses commented on are in TS. i. 3. 3.

³ गद्दित्तृ is explained as 'flaming handfuls of grass'.

the Adhvaryu were to go past the altars to the west, he would mingle the breaths, he would be liable to die. The Hotṛ is the navel of the sacrifice, the expiration is above the navel, the inspiration is below; if the Adhvaryu were to go past the Hotṛ to the west, he would place the expiration in the inspiration, he would be liable to die. The Adhvaryu should not accompany the song; the Adhvaryu's strength is his voice; if the Adhvaryu were to accompany the song, he would confer his voice on the Udgātṛ [5], and his voice would fail. The theologians say,¹ 'The Adhvaryu should not go beyond the Sadas to the west before the Soma offering is completed. Then how is he to go to offer the sacrifices in the southern fire? Because that is the end of the fires. But how are the gods to know whether it is the end or not?' He goes round the Agnidh's altar to the north and offers the sacrifices in the southern fire; verily he does not mingle the breaths. Some of the altars are besprinkled, some not; those which he besprinkles he delights those which he does not besprinkle he delights by indicating them.

vi 3. 2. The² Vaisarjana³ offerings are made for the world of heaven. He offers in the Gārhapatya⁴ with two verses; the sacrificer has two feet; (verily it serves) for support. He offers in the Agnidh's fire: verily he approaches the atmosphere; he offers in the Āhavaniya; verily he makes him go to the world of heaven. The Rakṣases sought to harm the gods as they were going to the world of heaven: they smote away the Rakṣases through Soma, the king, and making themselves active⁵ went to the world of heaven, to prevent the Rakṣases seizing them. The Soma is ready at hand; so he offers [1] the Vaisarjanas, to smite away the Rakṣases. 'Thou, O Soma, brought about by ourselves', he says, for he is the one who brings about by himself; 'from hostility brought about by others', he says, for the Rakṣases are brought about by others;⁶ 'thou art the giver of wide protection', he ¹ The interpretation given here is that of the comm. The last sentence evidently answers the third, but the reason for the third being an apparent answer to the difficulty of the second is not clear: Sāyana makes it: laukikagamanatrād dīrḍ anuyñāsyanti.

³ The name is due to the fact that the intermediate consecration is about to be over.

⁴ This is the old Āhavaniya which when the move from the Prācīnavāṇa takes place becomes the new Gārhapatya; as being at the door of the Prācīnavāṇa it is often called the Cālāmukhiya; cf. Caland and Henry, L'Agnistoma, p. 178.

⁶ It is quite uncertain what sense was put on tanūkti by the Brāhmaṇa. Sāyana explains that the god is even better at the game of rending the tanū than the Rakṣases, but the contrast with anyaktim means apparently that 'anukt' means making by oneself', and evidently the view taken by the Brāhmaṇa was that the dveṣāṇi were made by Soma, or by others. But anyaktim is nonsense.

says; in effect he says, 'give us wide (protection).' 'May the active one gladly partake of the ghee', he says: verily he makes the sacrificer active and causes him to go to the world of heaven, to prevent the Rakṣases seizing him. They take up the Soma [2], the pressing-stones, the cups for Vāyu,¹ the wooden trough, they lead forth the wife (of the sacrificer), they make the carts move along with them; verily whatever is his he goes with it to the world of heaven. He offers in the Agnidh's fire with a verse containing the word 'lead',² for leading to the world of heaven. He places on the Agnidh's altar the pressing-stones, the cups for Vāyu, and the wooden trough, for they take it away from them; if he were to put it with them, it would become spoiled. He makes it go forward with a verse addressed to Soma; verily by means of its own [3] divinity he makes it go forward. 'Thou art the seat of Aditi, do thou sit on the seat of Aditi', he says; that is according to the text. Hitherto the sacrificer has guarded the Soma. 'This, O god Savitr, is the Soma of you (gods)', he says; verily instigated by Savitr, he hands it over to the gods. 'Thou, O Soma, god to the gods, hast thou gone'; he says, for it being a god [4] goes to the gods. 'I here, man to men', he says, for he being a man goes to men. If he were not to say that formula, the sacrificer would be without offspring or cattle. 'With offspring, with increase of wealth', he says: verily he abides in this world with offspring and with cattle. 'Homage to the gods', he says, for homage is the due of the gods; 'svadhā to the Pitrs', he says, for the svadhā call is the due of the Pitrs [5]. 'Here (may) I (be free) from Varuna's noose', he says; verily he is freed from Varuna's noose. 'O Agni, lord of vows,' (he says). 'One should recover one's former body', they say, 'for who knows if the richer, when his will is accomplished,³ will restore it or not.' The pressing-stones are the troop of thieves of King Soma; him, who knowing thus, places the pressing-stones on the Agnidh's altar, the troop of thieves finds not.

vi. 3. 3. Having⁴ sacrificed with a verse addressed to Visnu, he approaches the post. The post has Visnu for its deity; verily he approaches it with its own deity. 'I have passed by others, I have not approached others', he says, for he passes by others, and does not approach others. 'I have found thee nearer than the farther, farther than the near', he says, for he finds it nearer than the farther, farther than the near. 'I welcome thee intelligible, 'when his will has come to pass.'

² This verse is not in the TS. but is RV. i. 189. 1; VS. v. 86. It is said by the sacrificer.

⁴ Cf. KS. xxvi. 3. 4; KapS. xlii. 3. 4; MS. iv. 5. 8; 6. 2; CB. iii. 6. 4. 1-27. The verses commented on are in TS. i. 3. 5.

that art of Visnu, for the sacrifice to the gods' [1], he says, for he welcomes it for the sacrifice to the gods. 'Let the god Savitṛ anoint thee with honey', he says; verily he anoints it with glory. 'O plant, guard it, O axe, harm it not', he says; the axe is the thunderbolt; (verily it serves) for atonement. The brilliance of the tree which fears the axe falls away with the first chip, the first chip which falls he should take up; verily he takes it up with its brilliance [2]. These worlds are afraid of the falling forward¹ of the tree. 'With thy top graze not the sky, with thy middle harm not the atmosphere', he says; verily he makes it tender for these worlds. 'O tree, grow with a hundred shoots', (with these words) he sacrifices on the stump, therefore many (shoots) spring up from the stump of trees. 'May we grow with a thousand shoots', he says; verily he invokes this blessing. He should cut it so that it will not touch the axle² [3]. If he were to cut it so that it would touch the axle, the cattle³ of the sacrificer would be liable to perish. If he desire of any one, 'May he be without support', he should cut for him a branch; this among trees is not supported; verily he is without support. If he desire of any one, 'May he be without cattle', he should cut for him (a post) without leaves and with a withered top: this among trees is without cattle; verily he becomes without cattle. If he desire of any one, 'May he be rich in cattle', he should cut for him one with many leaves and many branches; this [4] among trees is rich in cattle; verily he becomes rich in cattle. He should cut one that is supported for one who desires support, this among trees is supported which grows from its own birthplace on level ground and is firm. He should cut one which leans⁴ towards the west, for it is leaning over for the sacrifice. He should cut one of five cubits⁵ for him of whom he desires, 'May the higher sacrifice condescend to him'; the Pañkti has five syllables, the sacrifice is fivefold, the higher sacrifice condescends to him [5]. (He should cut one) of six cubits for one who desires support; the seasons are six; verily he finds support in the seasons. (He should cut one) of seven cubits for one who desires cattle; the Çakvari has seven feet, the Çakvari is cattle; verily he wins cattle. (He should cut one) of nine cubits for one who desires brilliance, commensurate with the Trivṛt Stoma: the Trivṛt is brilliance; verily he

² That is, the strip should not reach the axle of the cart.

³ adhaśāmī evidently means the animals which go below the pole of the chariot (īśā), govatśādikam as Sāyaṇa has it.

⁴ upanatah has here the precise sense of the past participle passive with a finite verb understood and is not an equivalent of upanamati.

becomes brilliant. (He should cut one) of eleven cubits for one who desires power ; the Trisṭubh has eleven syllables, the Trisṭubh is power ; verily he becomes powerful. (He should cut one) of fifteen cubits for one who has foes ; the thunderbolt is fifteenfold : (verily it serves) for the overcoming of foes. (He should cut one) of seventeen cubits for one who desires offspring ; Prajāpati is seventeenfold : (verily it serves) to gain Prajāpati. (He should cut one) of twenty-one cubits for one who desires support , the Ekavīṅga is the support of the Stomas ; (verily it serves) for support. It has eight corners ; the Gāyatrī has eight syllables, the Gāyatrī is brilliance, the Gāyatrī is the beginning of the sacrifice ;¹ verily it is commensurate with brilliance, the Gāyatrī, the beginning of the sacrifice.

vi 3. 4. 'To² earth thee ! To atmosphere thou ! To sky thee !' he says, verily for these worlds he anoints it. He anoints from the foot upwards, for upwards as it were is the world of heaven. Cruel as it were is that which he does when he digs, he pours water over, for expiation ; he pours (water) mixed with barley, barley is strength. The post is of the height of the sacrificer. As great as is the sacrificer, so much strength does he put in it [1]. 'Thou art the seat of the Pitṛs', (with these words) he spreads the strew, for what is dug in has the Pitṛs for its deity.³ If he were to set it up without strewing, it would be dug in and have the Pitṛs for its deity ; he sets it up after strewing ; verily he sets it up in this (earth). He throws down the splinter of the post ; verily he sets it up with its glory. 'Thee to the plants with fair berries', (with these words) he fixes on the top [2], therefore at the top plants bear fruit. He anoints it, butter is glory. The corner near the fire⁴ is of the same height as the sacrificer, in that he anoints the corner near the fire, he anoints with brilliance the sacrificer. He anoints it to the end, verily completely does he anoint the sacrificer with brilliance. He rubs it all around ; verily he places brilliance in him completely. 'Support the sky, fill the atmosphere, with thy base make firm the earth', he says, for the separation of these worlds. With a verse addressed to Viṣṇu [3] he arranges it ; the post has Viṣṇu for its deity ; verily he arranges it with its own deity. He arranges it with two (verses) : the sacrificer has two feet ; (verily it serves) for support. If he desire of a man, 'May I deprive him of brilliance, of the deities, of power', he should move the corner near the fire to one side or the other of the Āhavaniya;¹ verily he deprives him of brilliance, of the deities, of power. If he desire of a man, 'May I unite him with brilliance, with the deities, with power' [4], he should set up for him the corner (of the post) near the fire in a line with the Āhavaniya; verily he unites him with brilliance, with the deities, with power. 'Thee that art winner of Brahmans, winner of nobles', he says: that is according to the text. He winds round (the grass), the girdle is strength, the post is of the same height as the sacrificer; verily he unites the sacrificer with strength. He winds (it) round at the level of the navel.² verily at the level of the navel he bestows upon him strength, therefore at the level of the navel men enjoy strength. If he desire of a man, 'May I deprive him of strength' [5], he should put (it) on either upwards or downwards; verily he deprives him of strength. If he desire, 'May Parjanya rain', he should put it on downwards, verily he brings down rain; if he desire, 'May Parjanya not rain', he should put it on upwards; verily he holds up rain. What is dug in belongs to the Pitrs, what is above the part dug in up to the girdle belongs to men, the girdle belongs to the plants [6], what is above the girdle up to the top to the All-gods, the top to Indra, the rest to the Sādhyas. The post is connected with all the gods; verily in setting up the post he delights all the gods. By means of the sacrifice the gods went to the world of heaven, they reflected, 'Men will equal us', they blocked the way by the post³ and went to the world of heaven; the Rsis discerned that (world) by means of the post, and that is why it is called post [7]. In that he sets up the post, (it is) to discern the world of heaven. He puts (it) up to the east (of the fire), for before⁴ the sacrifice it is proclaimed, for what is not proclaimed is that of which when it is passed men say, 'This should have been done.' The Sādhyas despised⁵ the sacrifice; the sacrifice touched them not; what was superabundant in the sacrifice touched them. The superabundant part of the sacrifice is the producing of fire and casting it on the fire; the superabundant part [8] of the post is the part above the top; that is their share; verily by it he delights them. The gods when the Soma sacrifice was complete cast the offering-spoons (into the fire) and the post; they reflected, 'Here we are

³ This seems to be the sense here at least: in QB. iii. 2. 2. 2; 7. 1. 27 Eggeling prefers 'scatter', see SBE. xxvi. xxix, 36, n. 1. Whitney, AJP. iii. 402, prefers 'set up an obstacle, block, or bar the way'.

⁴ The purdāt has clearly the two different senses of place (in the vidhi) and of time in the arthavāda, the place being derived from the time.

⁵ They thought it too little and wanted something over (iti). Cf. AA. ii. 3. 3.

making a disturbance of the sacrifice': they saw a ransom in the bunch of grass for the offering-spoons, in the chip¹ for the post. When the Soma sacrifice is complete he casts (in the fire) the bunch of grass, he offers the chip, to avoid disturbing the sacrifice.

vi. 3.5. The² Sādhyā gods were in this world and nothing else living.³ They offered⁴ Agni as a sacrifice to Agni, for they found nothing else to offer; thence indeed these creatures were born: in that he casts the fire on the fire after producing it, (it serves for) the propagation of offspring. Now the fire is Rudra, the beast the sacrificer, if he were to produce the fire after offering the beast, he would place the sacrificer in the power of Rudra [1], and he would be liable to die. Or rather they say, 'All the gods are the fire, the beast the offering'.⁵ In that he produces the fire after offering the beast, he brings forth all the gods for the offering which is made ready. The fire should be produced, after bringing up (the beast). The offering is then neither finished nor not begun. 'Thou art the birthplace of Agni', he says, for that is the birthplace of Agni. 'Ye are the two male ones', he says, for they are the two male ones [2]. 'Thou art Urvāçī, thou art Āyu', he says, to make a pair. 'Anointed with gheo do ye produce a male', he says, for they⁶ produce a male who (produce) Agni. 'Be born with the Gāyatrī metre', he says; verily he produces him with the metres 'Recite for Agni as he is being produced', he says; he⁷ recites a verse to Savitṛ; verily, instigated by Savitṛ, he produces him. 'Recite for him who is born'⁸ [3], 'For him who is being cast forward recite', he says; verily as each part is performed he completes him. He⁹ recites all Gāyatrī verses; Agni has the Gāyatrī as his metre; verily he unites him with his own metre. The fire is in front; having produced fire he casts it forward; the two uniting overpower¹⁰ the sacrificer; 'Be of one mind with us', he

² Cf. KS. xxvi. 7; KapS. xli. 5; MS. iii. 9. 5, 6; QB. iii. 7. 3. 1-8; 4. 1. 20-24. The verses commented on are in TS. i. 8. 7.

worthy; for the dative of the person to whom the offering is made, see Delbrück, Aśvind § 91, p. 141; for a double dat. see TS. ii. 1. 2. 3.

says, to appease (them). He offers after casting (the fire) forward ; verily he gives him food on birth ; he offers with melted butter ; the melted butter is the dear home of Agni ; verily he unites him with his dear home, and also with brilliance.

vi. 3. 6. 'For¹ food thee !' (with these words) he takes up the strew, for he who sacrifices strives (ichāte) as it were. 'Thou art the impeller', he says, for he brings them² up. 'To the gods the servants of the gods have come', he says, for being the servants of the gods they go to the gods. 'The priests, the eager ones', he says; the priests are the priests, the eager ones, therefore he says thus. 'O Br̥haspati, guard wealth' [1], he says; Br̥haspati is the holy power (Brahman) of the gods ; verily by the holy power he wins cattle for him. 'Let thy oblations taste sweet', he says, verily he makes them sweet. 'O god Tvastr, make pleasant our possessions', he says ; Tvastr is the form-maker of the pairings of cattle ; verily he places form in cattle. 'Stay, ye wealthy ones', he says ; the wealthy ones are cattle ; verily he makes cattle abide for him. 'On the impulse of god Savitr' [2], (with these words) he takes up the rope, for instigation. 'With the arms of the Aṣvins', he says, for the Aṣvins were the Adhvaryus of the gods. 'With the hands of Pūṣan', he says, for restraining. 'O offering to the gods, I seize thee with the noose of sacred order', he says ; sacred order is truth : verily with truth which is sacred order he seizes it. He winds (the rope) round transversely,³ for they fasten a (beast) for killing in front, (verily it serves) for distinction. 'Fear not men', (with these words) he fastens it, for security. 'For the waters [3] thee, for the plants thee I sprinkle', he says, for from⁴ the waters, from the plants, the beast is born. 'Thou art a drinker of the waters', he says, for he is a drinker of the waters who is offered in sacrifice. 'O ye divine waters, make it palatable, a very palatable offering for the gods', he says ; verily he makes

² This refers clearly to several victims, and the victims are identified with the dātīr viyah. It will be seen that the TS. here does not adopt the order of the text in TS. i. 3. 7, but puts the Agnimanthana before the ceremonies connected with the driving up of the victims.

27; see Eggeling, SBE. xxvi. 180, n 2). This may be correct, but the rest of the sentence is doubtful ; the comm. is no doubt correct in treating the reference as one to the ordinary killing for food as opposed to the sacrifice, and he renders it as meaning that in such a case the slaughterers stand in front of the beast and put a noose over its neck. This gives a welcome sense, though prati muc in this usage would seem to require some case other than an accusative. Bhāsk. has pratipāni pratikūlāni prāṇavṛteś ciro 'tīya grīvāyām pratimūificati.

it palatable. From above he sprinkles (it); verily he makes it pure from above; he makes it drink; verily within he makes it pure; from below he besprinkles (it), verily all over he makes it pure.

vi. 3. 7. By¹ means of Agni as Hoty the gods defeated the Asuras. 'Recite for Agni as he is kindled', he says, for the overcoming of foes. He recites seventeen kindling-verses; Prajāpati is seven-fold: (verily it serves) to win Prajāpati. He recites seventeen; there are twelve months and seven seasons, that is the year; offspring are born in the course of the year; (verily it serves) for the propagation of offspring. The gods, after reciting the kindling-verses, could not discern the sacrifice. Prajāpati silently performed [1] the libation of ghee; then did the gods discern the sacrifice; in that silently he performs the libation of ghee, (it serves) for the revelation of the sacrifice. The sacrifice was with the Asuras; the gods took it by the silent offering: in that silently he performs the libation of ghee, he takes away the sacrifice of his foe. He rubs the enclosing-sticks; verily he purifies them. Thrice each he rubs them, for the sacrifice is thrice repeated;² also (it serves) to smite away the Raksases. They make up twelve;³ the year has twelve [2] months, verily he delights the year, verily also he endows him⁴ with the year, for the gaining of the world of heaven. The libation of ghee is the head of the sacrifice, the fire is all the gods;⁵ in that he performs the libation of ghee, verily the sacrificer at the beginning of the sacrifice wins all the gods. The libation of ghee is the head of the sacrifice, the beast is the body: having performed the libation of ghee he anoints the beast; verily on the body of the sacrifice [3] he places the head. 'Let thy breath be united with the wind', he says; the breath has the wind for its deity; verily he offers its breath in the wind. 'Thy limbs with the sacrificers, the lord of the sacrifice with his prayer', he says; verily he causes the lord of the sacrifice to obtain its blessing. Viçvarūpa, Tvastri's son, vomited over the beast from above; therefore they do not cut off (portions) from the beast above; in that he anoints the beast from above, verily he makes it pure [4]. He chooses the priests, verily he chooses the metres, he chooses seven; there are seven tame animals, seven wild; there are seven metres, (and so it serves) to win both. He offers eleven fore-sacrifices; ten are the vital airs of the beast, the body¹ is the eleventh; verily his fore-offerings are of the same size as the beast. One (of them) lies around the omentum, verily the body lies around the body.² The axe is a thunderbolt, the splinter of the sacrificial post is a thunderbolt, the gods by making a thunderbolt of the ghee smote Soma. 'Anointed with ghee, do ye guard the beast', he says; verily, overpowering it by means of the thunderbolt, he offers it.

vi. 3. 8. He² encircles (it) with fire, verily he makes it completely offered, that nothing may be lost, for that which falls of the oblation is (thus) not lost. He encircles (it) with fire thrice, for the sacrifice is thrice repeated; also (it serves) to smite away the Rakṣases. The theologians say, 'Should the beast be grasped hold of, or not?' Now the beast is led to death; if he were to grasp hold of it, the sacrificer would be likely to die. Or rather they say, 'The beast is led to the world of heaven' [1]; if he were not to grasp hold of it, the sacrificer would be bereft of the world of heaven.' He grasps hold (of it) by means of the omentum-forks; that is as it were neither grasped nor yet not grasped.³ 'Give directions, O Hoty, for making ready the oblations to the gods', he says, for an act that is directed⁴ is carried out. 'Ye wealthy ones, do ye kindly resort to the lord of the sacrifice', he says; that is according to the text. With the fire he goes in front, to smite away the Rakṣases. 'Guard from contact with earth', (with these words) he casts down the strew [2], that nothing may be lost, for that which falls on the strew is not lost; verily also he places it on the strew. The Adhvaryu turns away from the beast as it is slaughtered, verily he conceals himself from cattle, that he may not be cut off. He attains fortune, and obtains cattle who knows thus. The wife is led forward from the back place; 'Homage to thee, O extended one', he says, the extended are the rays of the sun [3]; verily he pays homage to them. 'Come forward, irresistible', he says; the resisting is the foe; (verily it serves) to beat away the foe. 'Along the stream of ghee, with offspring, with increase of wealth', he says; verily he invokes this blessing. 'O ye waters, goddesses, purifying', he says; that is according to the text.

vi. 3. 9. When⁵ the beast is offered in sacrifice, pain seizes its vital airs. 'Let thy speech swell, let thy breath swell', he says; verily he removes the pain from the vital airs. From the vital airs the pain enters the

² Cf. KS. xxvi. 8; KapS. xl. 6; MS. iii. 9. 7; QB. iii. 8. 1. 6-2. 4. The verses commented on are in TS. i. 3. 8. 1, 2.

³ Exactly the same construction is found in TS. vi. 3. 5. 2.

⁴ This seems to be the sense, as Śāyana takes it.

earth; (with the words) 'Hail to the and night!' he pours it down; verily he removes the pain of the earth by day and night. 'O plant, protect him', 'O axe, harm him not', he says; the axe is a thunderbolt [1], (verily it serves) for atonement. He cuts from the sides, for men cut from the middle. he cuts crossways, for men cut along; for distinction. 'Thou art the share of the Rakṣases', (with these words) he casts the strew, having anointed it on the thick part; verily with the blood he propitiates the Rakṣases. 'This Rakṣas here I lead to the lowest darkness, who hateth us and whom we hate', he says; there are two (kinds of) persons, he whom he [2] hates and he who hates him; both these he leads to the lowest darkness.¹ 'For food (is) thee!' (with these words) he draws out the omentum, for he who sacrifices strives as it were.² If he were to pierce (it), Rudra would be likely to slay his cattle; if he were not to pierce (it), it would not be fixed;³ with one he pierces, with the other not, for support. 'In ghee, O sky and earth, be covered', he says; verily with fat he anoints sky and earth. 'Uncut [8] with wealth of heroes (give us) riches', he says, that is according to the text. Now cruel as it were is what he does when he draws out the omentum. 'Fare along the broad atmosphere', he says, for atonement. Now he who grasps hold of the beast as it is led to death falls away from this world; he takes again hold of the omentum-forks; verily he finds support in this world. With the fire he goes in front, to smite away the Rakṣases; verily also with the oblation he follows the deities [4]. He should not pass⁴ over the last of the embers; if he were to pass over the last of the embers, he would despise the deities. 'O Vāyu, taste the drops', he says; therefore the drops are produced separately. The omentum is the chief part of cattle, the strew the chief of plants; verily he unites the chief with the chief; verily also in the plants he establishes cattle. 'Give directions⁵ for the Svāhā cries', he says [5], for the completion of the sacrifice. The speckled butter is the expiration and inspiration of cattle, the omentum is the body; having poured butter on the speckled ghee,⁶ he pours on the omentum; verily in the body of cattle he deposits expiration and inspiration. 'Hail! Go to Urdhvyanabhas, the offspring of the Maruts', he says; Urdhvyanabhas, the offspring of the Maruts, used to cast forward

³ There are two forks (grapas), and one of them is to be dug in, and the other not, else the omentum would not be held firm; the forks have one a single point, the other is bifurcate, and is used for the foot of the omentum.

⁵ The Maitrīśvara gives the direction to the Hotṛ for the Yajña verse of the last of the fore-sacrifices.

the omentum forks of the gods, verily through him he casts them forward. He casts them forward in opposite directions;¹ therefore expiration and inspiration are in opposite directions.

vi. 3. 10. Having² offered in sacrifice the beast, he strews over (it) a cake verily he sacrifices it with its sap. Having performed the rite with the omentum, he performs with the cake; the cake is strength; verily he places strength in the midst of cattle; verily also he closes the cut in the beast. Having made offering of the speckled ghee, he thrice asks, 'Is the oblation cooked, Qamitr?' for the gods found truth in three (cookings). He who says what is not cooked is cooked (is burdened) with sin.³ The speckled butter is the expiration and the inspiration of cattle [1]; when the beast is offered the body comes into the heart; in that he sprinkles the heart with speckled ghee, he thus places expiration and inspiration in the body of cattle. By means of the beast the gods went to the world of heaven. They reflected, 'Men will mount after us.' They cut off its head and made its sap stream forth, it became the Prakṣa (tree); that is the nature of the Prakṣa.⁴ In that there is a branch of the Plakṣa above the strew, so he cuts off from the victim when it has its sap [2]. As the beast is borne along the Rakṣases follow after it, he takes it between the sacrificial post and the Āhvaniya, to smite away the Rakṣases. When the beast is offered its mind departs. 'Recite to Manotā for the oblation which is being divided', he says;⁵ verily he secures its mind. He cuts off eleven portions; ten are the vital airs of the beast, the body is the eleventh, he cuts off as much as is the size of the beast [3].⁶ First he makes a portion of the heart, then of the tongue, then of the breast: what he conceives with the heart, that he says with the tongue; what he says with the tongue, that he utters from the breast. That is the order in the case of the beast. If he cuts off thus and then cuts from the rest at will, still the cutting off from that animal has been made in order. In the middle he makes a portion of the intestines, for breath is in the middle; he makes a portion of the upper part [4], for

² Cf. MS. iii. 10. 2, 3; QB. iii. 8. 3. 1-19.

⁵ The Hotṛ is made to recite the hymn, RV. vi. 1, 1-13, which contains the word manotā (used of Agni); see Eggeling, SBE xxvi. 203, n. 4.

breath is in the upper part; whether he does one, or the other, there is variation in both cases.¹ A Brahman on birth is born with a threefold debt, of pupilship to the Rsis, of sacrifice to the gods, of offspring to the Pitrs. He is freed from his debt who has a son, is a sacrificer, and who has lived as a pupil: this (debt) he performs (drudayate) by these cuttings-off, and that is why the cuttings-off (aruddāni) have their name. The gods and the Asuras were in conflict. The gods said to Agni, 'With thee as our hero let us overcome the Asuras' [5]. He said, 'Let me choose a boon; let me have a choice part of the beast.' He chose that choice part (of the beast), the shoulder from the fore part, the intestines from the middle, the hip from the hind part. Then the gods prospered, the Asuras were defeated; in that he makes portions of three members² it is for the overcoming of his foe; he prospers himself, his foe is defeated. He cuts off transversely; therefore cattle move forward their limbs transversely, for support.³

vi. 3. 11. He⁴ covers the dipping-spoons with fat; cattle are distinguished by fat; verily he bestows on cattle their distinguishing mark. He covers (them) after putting (the fat) on the soup; the soup is the sap of cattle, verily he bestows sap upon cattle. He stirs the oblation of fat with the rib;⁵ the rib is the middle of cattle, the fat is the sap of cattle; in that he stirs the oblation of fat with the rib, he places sap in the middle of cattle. Now they kill [1] the beast when they dispose⁶ of it; the expiration has Indra for its deity, the inspiration has Indra also. 'May Indra's expiration be set in every limb', he says; verily he bestows expiration and inspiration upon cattle. 'O god Tvaṣṭṛ, let much be united for thee', he says; for cattle have Tvaṣṭṛ as their deity. 'When ye that are various become of one form', he says; for they being various become then of one form. 'Over thee as thou goest among the gods [2] for help let thy comrades and thy father and mother rejoice', he says; verily he makes him, approved by his mother⁷ and his father, go to the world of heaven. With a half-verse he offers the oblation of fat; the half-verse is yonder (sky) and the half-verse is this (earth); verily with sap he adorns both. He offers to the quarters; verily with sap he adorns the quarters; verily from the quarters he wins strength and sap. The speckled butter is the expiration and the inspiration of cattle; cattle have the lord of the forest [3] for their deity; in that having made offering of the speckled butter he says,¹ 'Recite for the lord of the forest, give directions for the lord of the forest', he bestows expiration and inspiration upon cattle. Of each he divides the divided pieces;² therefore cattle have various forms. He moistens (it) with soup; soup is the sap of cattle; verily he bestows sap upon cattle. He invokes the Idā; the Idā is cattle; verily he invokes cattle. Four times he invokes [4], for cattle have four feet. If he desire of a man, 'May he have no cattle', he should take for him (a piece) without fat; cattle are distinguished by fat; verily by means of their distinctive mark he deprives him of cattle, and he has no cattle. If he desire of a man, 'May he have cattle', he should take for him (a piece) with fat; cattle are distinguished by fat; verily by means of their distinctive mark he wins cattle for him, and he has cattle. Prajāpati created the sacrifice; he first created the butter [5], in the middle the beast, last the speckled butter; therefore the fore-sacrifices are performed with butter, the beast (is offered) in the middle, and the after-sacrifices with speckled butter. Therefore that is mixed as it were, for it was created last. He offers eleven after-sacrifices; ten are the vital airs of the beast, the body is the eleventh; he offers as many after-sacrifices as is the size of the beast. Now they kill the beast when they dispose of it; the speckled butter is the expiration and the inspiration of cattle; in that he performs the after-sacrifices with speckled butter, verily he bestows expiration and inspiration upon cattle.

¹ Apparently this means that there is an option to choose the top or the middle of the intestines, as reasonable variants, not as identical.

² That is the technical name of the part for Agni Svīṣṭakṛt.

⁷ mātā is read in C as a quasi-compound derived from the irregular mātā plāras of the text.

vi. 4. 1. By³ means of the sacrifice Prajāpati created offspring; verily he created them by the subsidiary sacrifices; in that he offers the subsidiary sacrifices, verily thus the sacrificer creates offspring. He cuts off from the hind portion, for from the hind portion offspring are born; he cuts off from the thick side,⁴ for offspring are born from the thick side; he cuts off without confusion, to prevent confusion of the vital airs. He does not turn (it) round; if he were to turn (it) round, disease¹ would be likely to seize his offspring. 'Go to the ocean, hail!' he says, verily thus he produces seed [1]. 'Go to the atmosphere, hail!' he says; verily by means of the atmosphere he begets offspring for him, for in accord with the atmosphere offspring are born. 'Go to god Savitṛ, hail!' he says; verily, instigated by Savitṛ, he begets offspring for him. 'Go to day and night, hail!' he says: verily by means of day and night he begets offspring for him, for in accord with day and night offspring are born. 'Go to Mitra and Varuna, hail!' he says [2]; verily he bestows expiration and inspiration on offspring when born. 'Go to Soma, hail!' he says, for offspring have Soma for their deity. 'Go to the sacrifice, hail!' he says; verily he makes offspring fit for the sacrifice. 'Go to the metres, hail!' he says; the metres are cattle; verily he wins cattle. 'Go to the sky and the earth, hail!' he says; verily on either side he supports offspring when born with the sky and the earth. 'Go to the clouds [3] of the sky, hail!' he says; verily he procures rain for offspring when born. 'Go to Agni Vaiçvānara, hail!' he says; verily he establishes in this (world) offspring when born. He makes a portion of the vital airs, who makes a portion of the intestines; 'Give me mind and heart', he says, verily he summons the vital airs according to their places. When the beast is offered, pain reaches its heart; it gathers round the heart-spit [4]. if he were to place the heart-spit on the earth, he would cause pain to the earth; if on the waters, he would cause pain to the waters; he places it in the meeting-place of dry and wet,² to appease both. He should think of whomsoever he hates; verily he causes him pain.

vi. 4. 2. The³ gods divided the sacrifice on the Agnidh's altar: of what was left over they said, 'Let this remain here.' That is why the Vasatīvari (waters) have their name.⁴ But in the morning they could not arrange (to divide it); they placed it in the waters, they became the Vasatīvaris. He takes the Vasatīvaris; the Vasatīvaris are the sacrifice; verily having taken from the beginning the sacrifice he stays (with it). If the sun set, on one who has not taken (the waters), his sacrifice would not be begun [1], and he would split the sacrifice. He should either take waters with radiance

¹ uddeśātā is explained as a disease by Bhāsk. and Śayana, and in Suçrūta it is a disease marked by retention of the faeces, ud with tyt denoting 'secreta' or 'excrete' (see BR. s.v.). in them¹ or having deposited gold he takes² them with light in them or he should take them from the tank of a Brahman who performs many sacrifices for he is one who has taken the Vasatīvaris. He takes the Vasatīvaris, the Vasatīvaris are cattle; verily having taken cattle from the beginning he stays (with them). If he were to take them along the stream, his cattle would be likely to wander from him; he takes them standing against the stream; verily he obstructs cattle and seizes them for him. Indra [2] slew Vṛtra; he died upon the waters; of them what was pure, fit for sacrifice, and divine, that was set free.³ They became the Vahantis. He takes of the Vahantis; verily he takes those of waters which are pure, fit for sacrifice, and divine. He should not pass over the nearest Vahantis; if he were to pass over the nearest Vahantis, he would despise the sacrifice. He should not take of stagnant (waters); the stagnant (waters) are seized by Varuna, if he were to take of stagnant (waters) [3], he would cause Varuna to seize his sacrifice. If it is done by day, the night enters the waters; therefore the waters appear dusky by day; if it is done by night, the day enters the waters; therefore the waters appear shining by night; he takes (them) at the union of shade and light: verily for him he secures the colour of day and night. 'These waters are rich in oblation', he says verily he takes them made into an oblation. 'Rich in oblation be [4] the sun', he says; verily he takes them with light in them. He takes with an Anuṣṭubh; the Anuṣṭubh is speech; verily with the whole of speech he takes them. He places (them) on both; verily he makes him have cattle in both worlds. He carries (them) round everywhere, to smite away the Rakṣases. 'Ye are the share of Indra and Agni', he says; that is according to the text. He places (them) on the Agnidhi's altar: the Agnidhi's altar is the invincible part of the sacrifice: verily he places (them) on the invincible part of the sacrifice. vi. 4. 3. The ¹ theologians say, 'He indeed would be an Adhvaryu who in making Soma descend should make it descend for all the gods.' 'To the heart thee!' he says; verily he makes it for men; 'To mind thee!' he says; verily he makes it for the Pitrs, 'To the sky thee! To the sun thee!' he says; verily he makes it for the gods; so many are the gods; verily he makes it descend for them all. Before the utterance of speech [1] he begins the morning litany; verily he wins all that there is of speech. 'The waters' is the first thing he utters;² the waters are the sacrifice; verily over the sacrifice he utters speech. He recites all (kinds of) metres, the metres are cattle; verily he wins cattle. For one who desires brilliance he should conclude with a Gāyatri verse, for one who desires power with a Tristubh verse, for one who desires cattle with a Jagati verse, for one who desires support with an Anusṭubh verse, for one who desires the sacrifice with a Pañkti verse, for one who desires food with a Virāj verse.

Let Agni (kindled) with the kindling-stick hear my appeal', he says [2]; verily, instigated by Savitr, having made proclamation to the gods, he goes for the waters. 'O Hotr, give directions for the waters', he says;³ for an action which is directed is done. 'O bowl priest of the Maitrāvaruna, run hither', he says; Mitra and Varuna are the leaders of the waters; verily with them he goes for them. 'O ye divine waters, child of the water', he says; verily by the oblation requiting them he seizes them: then he takes of them made into an oblation and covered with ghee [3]. 'Thou art the dragger', he says; verily he removes dirt from them. 'I draw you for the sustenance of the ocean', he says; therefore the waters though eaten and drunk do not waste away. The pit is the birthplace of the sacrifice, the Vasatīvaris are the sacrifice; bringing the bowls of the Hotr and the Maitrāvaruna into contact he pours in the Vasatīvaris reciprocally,⁴ so that the sacrifice may have its birthplace; verily he produces it from its own birthplace. 'O Adhvaryu, didst⁵ thou seek the waters?' he says; 'they came to me; look upon them', in effect he says. If it is an Agnistoma, he makes a libation; if an Uktiya, he rubs (butter) on the enclosing-sticks; if it is an Atirātra, he goes forward uttering a text, to distinguish the sacrifices.

vi. 4. 4. 'On¹ the instigation of god Savitṛ,² (with these words) he takes up the pressing-stone, for instigation; 'with the arms of the Aṣvins', he says, for the Aṣvins were the Adhvaryus of the gods; 'with the hands of Pūṣan', he says, for support. The Soma is cattle, the Upāñcu pressing-(stone) is cross-breathing, in that he measures round the Upāñcu pressing-(stone), he confers cross-breathing upon cattle. 'To Indra thee! To Indra thee!' (with these words) he measures, for the Soma is taken for Indra. Five times he measures with the text [1]; the Pañkti has five syllables, the sacrifice is fivefold, verily he wins the sacrifice. Five times (he measures) in silence; these make up ten; the Virāj has ten syllables, the Virāj is food; verily he wins food by the Virāj. 'Ye are savoury, conquerors of Vṛtra', he says; this is the Soma-drinking of the waters; he who knows thus reaches not destruction in the waters. 'With thy light which is in the sky', he says; verily from these worlds he gathers him [2]. Soma, the king, reflected on the quarters, he entered the quarters; 'forward, behind, upward, downward', he says, verily from the quarters he gathers him, verily also he wins the quarters for him. 'O mother, come forth', he says; women are likely to desire him who knows thus. 'Thy unerring, watchful name, O Soma', he says [3] this is Soma's Soma-drinking; he who knows thus reaches not destruction from Soma. When they press Soma they kill him; he³ keeps back shoots, verily he protects him. The shoots are the vital airs, Soma is cattle; he later lets go the shoots; verily he bestows vital airs upon cattle, two by two he lets them go; therefore the vital airs are in pairs.

vi. 4. 5. The⁴ Upāñcu cup is breath; in that the cups are drawn beginning with the Upāñcu, they follow on breath. Aruna Aupaveṣī⁵ used to say, 'At the morning pressing I establish the sacrifice and then I proceed with it when it has been established.' He first presses eight times; the Gāyatrī has eight syllables, the morning pressing is connected with the Gāyatrī, verily thereby he obtains the morning pressing. (He presses) eleven times on the second occasion; the Trisṭubh has eleven syllables, the midday pressing is connected with the Trisṭubh [1]; verily thereby he obtains the midday pressing. (He presses) twelve times on the third occasion; the Jagatī has twelve syllables, the third pressing is connected with the Jagatī; verily thereby he obtains the third pressing. This is what he calls the establishment of the sacrifice, to prevent loss; for what falls when the sacrifice is established is not lost. Or rather they say, 'The Gāyatrī is not open to question¹ at the morning pressing': he who knows thus is not liable to question from his foe; therefore eight times in each case² should he press [2]. The theologians say, 'Other cups are drawn with a strainer, what strainer has the Upāñcū?' 'Speech is the strainer', he should reply. 'Be pure for the lord of speech, O strong one', he says; verily by speech he purifies him. 'With the shoots of the male', he says, for the shoots of the Soma are the shoots of the male, 'purified by the arms', he says, for by the arms he purifies him: 'thou art the god, purifier of gods', he says, for he being a god [3] is the purifier of gods; 'to those thee whose portion thou art', he says, for he draws him for those whose portion he is. 'Thou art he who is appropriated', he says; verily he makes³ breath his own; 'make our food full of sweetness for us', he says, verily he makes all food sweet for him: 'to all the powers of sky and earth thee!', he says, verily upon both gods and men he bestows the vital airs. 'May mind enter thee!', he says [4]; verily he attains mind. 'Fare along the broad atmosphere', he says, for the breath has the atmosphere as its deity. 'Hail! Thee, of kindly nature, to the sun!', he says, the gods of kindly nature are the breaths: verily in them he secretly offers. 'To the gods that drink the rays thee!', he says; the gods that drink the rays are the rays of the sun; that is their share; verily thereby he delights them. If he desire, 'May Parjanya rain' [5], he should rub (the cup) with the (palm of) the hand downwards; verily he brings down the rain. If he desire, 'May it not rain', he should rub with the hand upwards; verily he keeps up the rain. If he practise witchcraft, 'Slay N.N.; then will I sacrifice to thee', he should say; verily desiring the libation he slays him. If he be far away, he should stand until he is weary;⁴ verily he follows his breath and slays him. If he practise witchcraft [6], he should put (it) down (with the words), 'I set thee down on the breath of N.N.'; the breath is restless;⁵ verily he brings his breath to rest. He purifies by means of six shoots; the seasons are six; verily he purifies him by means of the seasons; thrice he purifies, these worlds are three; verily he purifies him by means of these worlds. vi. 4. 6. Whatever¹ the gods did as the sacrifice, that the Asuras did. The gods saw that the sacrifice must be established in the Upāñcu (cup), and they established it in the Upāñcu. The Asuras grasping the thunderbolt attacked the gods; the gods in fear ran up to Indra, Indra obstructed them² by means of the Antaryāma (cup), and that is why the Antaryāma has its name, 'the obstructor'. In that the Antaryāma cup is drawn, verily thus the sacrificer obstructs his foes. 'Through thee³ I interpose sky and earth [1], I interpose the broad atmosphere', he says, verily with these worlds the sacrificer obstructs his foes. The gods reflected, 'Indra hath now become what we are'; they said, 'O bounteous one, give us a share'; 'In unison with the gods, the lower and the higher', he replied; to both (the sets of) gods, the lower and the higher [2], he gave a share. 'In unison with the gods, the lower and the higher', he says, to both (the sets of) gods, the lower and the higher, he gives a share. 'O bounteous one, do thou rejoice in the Antaryāma', he says; verily he does not cut off the sacrificer from the sacrifice. 'Thou art taken with a support', he says, for the support of inspiration. If both (cups) were drawn without a filter, inspiration would follow expiration, he would be likely to die. The Antaryāma is drawn with a filter [3], to separate expiration and inspiration. The Upāñcu and the Antaryāma (cups) are expiration and inspiration, the Upāñcu pressing-(stone) is cross-breathing. If he desire of a man, 'May he be likely to die', he should set them down for him without being in contact; verily he severs his expiration and inspiration from cross-breathing; swiftly he dies. If he desire of a man, 'May he live all his days', he should set them down for him in contact; verily he connects his expiration and inspiration with cross-breathing; he lives all his days⁴.

vi. 4. 7. The⁵ cup for Indra and Vāyu is speech; in that the cups are drawn beginning with that to Indra and Vāyu, verily they follow speech. The gods said to Vāyu, 'Let us slay Soma, the king'; he replied, 'Let me

² The Asuras are referred to, not the Devas, with whom the acc. could hardly be construed.

choose a boon; let your cups be drawn with mine first.' Therefore the cups are drawn with those for Indra and Vāyu first. They slew him, he became putrid; the gods could not endure him, they said to Vāyu, 'Make him sweet for us' [1]; he replied, 'Let me choose a boon; let your vessels be said to have me as their deity.' Therefore, being of various deities, they are said to have Vāyu as their deity. Verily did Vāyu make him sweet for him; therefore what becomes putrid they hang out in a windy place, for Vāyu is its purifier, its sweetener. They could not find its distribution; Aditi said, 'Let me choose a boon, then shall ye distribute through me, verily with me as deity may your Soma (draughts) be set down' [2]. 'Thou art taken with a support', he says, and thereby have they Aditi for their deity, for those vessels that are made of wood are born from her womb, those that are made of clay are clearly hers; therefore he says thus. Speech aforesome¹ spoke without discrimination: the gods said to Indra, 'Do thou discriminate this speech for us', he replied, 'Let me choose a boon; let this (cup) be drawn for me and for Vāyu together.' Therefore the cup is drawn together for Indra and Vāyu.² Indra approaching it in the midst discriminated it; therefore is speech spoken distinctly. Therefore is it drawn once, in the middle, for Indra, and twice for Vāyu, for he chose two boons.

vi. 4. 8. The³ gods said to Mitra, 'Let us slay Soma, the king'; he replied, 'Not I; for I am the friend of all': they answered, 'Still we will slay him; he replied, 'Let me choose a boon; let them mix⁴ the Soma for me with milk.' Therefore they mix with milk (the Soma) for Mitra and Varuna. From him cattle departed (saying), 'He that was a friend hath done a cruel deed'; a cruel deed as it were [1] does he do who sacrifices with Soma; from him cattle depart. In that he mixes with milk (the Soma) for Mitra and Varuna, he unites Mitra with cattle, and the sacrificer with cattle. Aforetime indeed was Mitra thus aware, 'When I have done this cruel deed, cattle will depart from me': therefore he chose thus. The gods said to Varuna, 'With thee as helper we will slay Soma, the king'; he replied, 'Let me choose a boon, for me [2] and Mitra together let this (cup) be drawn.' Therefore it is drawn for Mitra and Varuna together; therefore with a king as helper⁵ they slay a king, with a Vaīṣya a Vaīṣya, with a Qūdra a Qūdra. This was not day or night, but undiscriminated the gods said to Mitra and Varuna, 'Make this to shine forth for us'; they replied, 'Let us choose a boon; let one cup only be drawn before ours.' Therefore the cup for Indra and Vāyu is drawn before that for Mitra and Varuna, for the Upāñcu and the Antaryāma (cups) are expiration and inspiration.¹ Mitra produced the day, Varuna the night; then indeed did this shine forth; in that (a cup) is drawn for Mitra and Varuna, (it is) for shining forth vi 4. 9. The² head of the sacrifice was cut; the gods said to³ the Aćvins, 'Ye are physicians; do ye replace the head of the sacrifice'; they replied 'Let us choose a boon; let there be drawn a cup for us also herein.' For them they drew this cup for the Aćvins; then indeed did they replace the head of the sacrifice; in that (the cup) for the Aćvins is drawn, (it is) to restore the sacrifice. The gods said of these two, 'Impure are they, wandering among men [1] and physicians.' Therefore a Brahman should not practise medicine, for the physician is impure, unfit for the sacrifice. Having purified them by the Bahispavamāna (Stotra) they drew for them this cup for the Aćvins;⁴ therefore (the cup) for the Aćvins is drawn when the Bahispavamāna has been sung. Therefore by one who knows thus the Bahispavamāna should be performed; verily he purifies himself. Their skill as physicians they deposited in three places, in Agni a third, in the waters a third, in the Brahman a third. Therefore one should put beside him a pot of water [2] and sit on the right hand of a Brahman when practising medicine: all medicine⁵ he performs thereby, his remedy becomes effective. The theologians say, 'For what reason are cups for two deities drawn in one vessel, but offered in two?' In that (the cups) are drawn in one vessel, therefore there is one breath within; they are offered in two vessels, therefore the breaths outside are in pairs. Those that are for two deities are the breaths, the Idā is cattle; if he should summon the Idā before those that are for two deities [3], he would obstruct his breaths by cattle, he would be likely to perish. Having eaten those for two deities, he summons the Idā; verily having placed the breaths in himself he summons the Idā (The cup) for Indra and Vāyu is speech, that for Mitra and Varuna is the eye, that for the Aćvins is the ear; he eats in front that for Indra and Vāyu, therefore in front he speaks with speech; in front that for Mitra and Varuna, therefore in front he sees with the eye; moving all round, that for the Aqvins; therefore on all sides he hears with the ear. Those for two deities are the breaths [4], he sets down full¹ vessels; therefore the breaths are full within; wherever in the performance of the sacrifice nothing is done, in that place the Rakṣases attack the sacrifice; in that he sets down full vessels the part of the sacrifice being performed is deposited² to prevent the entry of the Rakṣases. He sets down in the north track of the southern oblation-cart: verily he places speech in speech. They lie (there) until the third pressing, for the continuity of the sacrifice.

vi. 4. 10. Brhaspati³ was the Purohita of the gods, Qanda and Marka of the Asuras; the gods had the holy power (Brahman), the Asuras had the holy power (Brahman); they could not overcome one another;⁴ the gods invited Qanda and Marka; they replied, 'Let us choose a boon; let cups be drawn for us also herein.' For them they drew these cups for Qukra and Manthin; then did the gods prosper, the Asuras were defeated. He for whom knowing⁵ thus these Qukra and Manthin (cups⁶) are drawn, prospers himself, his foe [1] is defeated. Having driven away these two, the gods offered to themselves⁷ to Indra. 'Driven away are Qanda and Marka together with N.N.', he should say of whom he hates, with him whom he hates he thus drives them away. 'This is the first preparer, all-maker', (with these words) they offered to themselves, to Indra, these (cups), for Indra kept making these forms. The Qukra is yonder sun, the Manthin is the moon: they depart towards the east, closing their eyes⁷ [2], therefore men do not see them as they go east. Turning back towards the west they sacrifice, therefore men see them going west. The Qukra and the Manthin are the eyes of the sacrifice, the high altar is the nose. They offer having gone round (the altar) on both sides; therefore the eyes are on either side of the nose, therefore the eyes are held apart by the nose; they walk round on all sides, to smite away the Rakṣases. Now the offerings the gods made on the east, with them they drove away the Asuras who were in front [3]; with those on the west they drove

⁵ The gen. hero is not a clear case of an instrumental genitive, as the possessive relative is present, and the analogy of dhṛidāyate gṛhṇyat shows that the priest is the actor, not the sacrificer.

⁷ This must be the sense, though Śāyana refers it to taking the cups above and below. KS. has apūphya and MS. apidhya.

away the Asuras who were behind; other sacrifices are made in the east, the Çukra and Manthin on the west; verily behind and in front the sacrificer drives away his foes; therefore offspring are engendered behind and are brought forth in front. In accordance with the Çukra and Manthin are offspring born, the eaters and the eaten. ‘Engendering heroic offspring come forth, Çukra, with pure radiance’ [4], ‘Engendering prolific offspring, come forth, Manthin, with mixed radiance’, he says;¹ the eaters are those who are heroic, the eaten those that are prolific. The offspring of him who knows thus becomes an eater, not eaten. The eye of Prajāpati swelled; it fell away, it entered the Vikañkata, it did not stay in the Vikañkata; it entered barley, it stayed in barley; that is why barley has its name [5]. In that the Manthin vessel is of Vikañkata and he mixes with groats, verily thus he gathers together the eye of Prajāpati. The theologians say, ‘For what reason does the Manthin vessel not go to the Sadas?’ ‘It is the vessel of misfortune’, he should say; if it were to go there, the Adhvaryu would be blind, he would be ruined; therefore it does not go there.

vi 4. 11. Whatever² the gods did at the sacrifice the Asuras did. The gods saw the cups with the Āgrayana at their head; they drew them; then indeed did they reach the top; he for whom knowing thus the cups are drawn with the Āgrayana at their head reaches the top of his equals. With a verse containing the word ‘destructive’ he should draw for him who has a rival, verily having destroyed³ his rival he reaches the top of his equals. ‘Ye gods that are eleven in the sky’, he says [1], so many are the deities, verily he draws it for all of them. ‘This is thy birthplace; to the All-gods thee!’ he says, for it has the All-gods for its deity. Speech departed from the gods, not being willing to remain for the sacrifice; when speech had departed the gods silently drew the cups; speech reflected, ‘They are excluding me’; it went into the Āgrayana; that is why the Āgrayana has its name [2]. Therefore in the Āgrayana speech is uttered. In that the former cups are drawn in silence, that is as when the hunter lets go (his arrow), (thinking), ‘So far off is my mark,⁴ at so far I shall not miss.' The Adhvaryu taking the Āgrayana, commencing the sacrifice, utters his speech; thrice he utters 'Him'; verily thus he chooses the Udgatrs; the Āgrayana is Prajāpati: in that he utters 'Him' after taking the Āgrayana, verily thus Prajāpati sniffs¹ offspring [3]: therefore the cow sniffs the calf on birth. The Āgrayana is the self of the sacrifice; at each pressing he draws it; verily he continues the sacrifice in itself. He brings (it) up from above;² verily thus he impregnates seed: he takes (it) from below, verily he generates it. The theologians say, 'For what reason does the Gāyatri, the least of the metres, support³ the pressings?' 'The Āgrayana is the calf of the Gāyatri; verily turning back towards it it supports all the pressings. Therefore a cow turns back towards the calf which is taken away.

vi 5.1. Indra⁴ raised his bolt to hurl at Vṛtra; Vṛtra was afraid of the bolt when raised to be hurled; he said, 'Hurl it not at me; there is this strength in me, that will I bestow on thee'; on him he bestowed the Ukthya. At him he raised (the bolt) to hurl a second time; he said, 'Hurl it not at me; there is this strength in me, that will I bestow on thee' [1]; on him he bestowed again the Ukthya. At him he raised (the bolt) to hurl a third time; Viṣṇu supported him (saying), 'Smite'; he said, 'Hurl it not at me; there is this strength in me, that will I bestow on thee'; he bestowed on him again the Ukthya. Him when he had lost his magic power he slew, for the sacrifice was his magic power. In that the Ukthya is drawn, verily the sacrificer thus appropriates the power [2] and strength of his foe. 'To Indra thee, to him of the Brhat, the strong', he says, for to Indra he gave it; 'to him thee! To Viṣṇu thee!' he says; in that Viṣṇu supported him (saying), 'Strike', he gives Viṣṇu a share therein. Thrice he draws, for thrice he gave to him. 'This is thy birthplace; thou art the renewed offering',⁵ he says, for repeatedly [3] he draws from it. The Ukthya is the eye of the sacrifice, therefore the Somas follow the Ukthya when offered; therefore the body follows the eye, therefore as one goes many follow, therefore one becomes superior among many; therefore one wins many wives. If the Adhvaryu desire, 'May I bestow upon myself the glory of the sacrifice', standing between the Áhavaniya and the oblation-holder he should pour (it) down [4]; verily he bestows upon himself the glory of the sacrifice. If he desire, 'May I bestow upon the sacrificer the glory of the sacrifice', he should pour (it) down standing between the Sadas and the oblation-holder, verily he bestows upon the sacrificer the glory of the sacrifice. If he desire, 'May I bestow upon the Sadasyas¹ the glory of the sacrifice', he should pour (it) down, grasping the Sadas; verily he bestows upon the Sadasyas the glory of the sacrifice.

vi. 5. 2. The² Dhruva (cup) is the life of the sacrifice; it is drawn the last of the cups; therefore life is the last of the breaths. 'The head of the sky, the messenger of earth', he says; verily he makes him the head of his equals. 'Vaiçvānara, born for holy order', he says, for life has Vaiçvānara as its deity. It is drawn with Vaiçvānara on both sides; therefore there are breaths on both sides, below and above. The other cups that are drawn make a half, the Dhruva makes a half; therefore [1] the breath below is a half of the other breaths. The other cups are deposited on strewn (ground), the Dhruva on unstrewn; therefore in bone some creatures find support, in flesh others. The Asuras from above desired to turn round the earth; the gods made it firm (adr̥han) with the Dhruva; that is why the Dhruva has its name; in that the Dhruva is set down from above,³ (it serves) for firmness. The Dhruva is the life of the sacrifice, the Hōtr is the body; in that he pours the Dhruva down into the goblet of the Hotr, so he places life in the body of the sacrifice [2]. 'Before the Uktha it should be poured down', they say, for in front one enjoys life; 'In the middle it should be poured down', they say, for the middle one enjoys life; 'In the latter part it should be poured down', they say, for with the last one enjoys life. He pours (it) down while the verse⁴ to the All-gods is being recited; offspring are connected with the All-gods; verily he confers life upon offspring.

vi. 5. 3. By⁵ means of the sacrifice the gods went to the world of heaven, they reflected, 'Men will follow after us here'; they blocked (the way) by the year and went to the world of heaven. It the R̥sis discerned by means of the season-cups; in that the season-cups are drawn, (they serve) to reveal the world of heaven. Twelve are drawn; the year consists of twelve months; (verily they serve) to reveal the year. The first two are drawn together, the last two together; therefore the seasons are in pairs. The season-vessel has mouths on both sides, for who [1] knows where is the mouth of the seasons? 'Give directions for the season', six times he says,¹ the seasons are six; verily he delights the seasons; 'For the seasons', four times; verily he delights four-footed cattle. twice again he says, 'For the season'; verily he delights two-footed (cattle). 'Give directions for the season', six times he says, 'For the seasons', four times; therefore four-footed cattle depend upon the seasons, twice [2] again, 'For the season', he says; therefore bipeds live upon quadrupeds. 'Give directions for the season', six times he says; 'For the seasons', four times; twice again, 'For the season'; verily the sacrificer makes himself a ladder and bridge to attain the world of heaven. One should not follow the other, if one were to follow the other, season would follow season, the seasons would be confused [3]; therefore in order² the Adhvaryu sets out by the southern (door), the Pratiprasthātṛ by the northern. therefore the sun goes south for six months, north for six months.³ 'Thou art taken with a support; thou art Samasarpa: to Añhaspatya thee!' he says: 'There is a thirteenth month', they say: verily he delights it.

vi. 5. 4. The⁴ season-cups are drawn for the world of heaven; Indra and Agni are the light, in that he draws the cup for Indra and Agni with the season-vessel, verily he places light above it, to light up the world of heaven. Indra and Agni are the bearers of force among the gods. in that (the cup) for Indra and Agni is drawn, verily he wins force. He draws (the cup) for the All-gods with the Çukra-vessel; people are connected with the All-gods, the Çukra is yonder sun, in that he draws (the cup) for the All-gods with the

³ Probably from solstice to solstice, not 'in the south', 'in the north', from equinox to equinox (cf. Vedic Index, i. 422-426).

⁴ Cf. KS. xxviii. 2; KapS. xliv. 2; MS. iv. 6. 8; CB. iv. 3. 1. 21-27. The Çukra-vessel is of course that in which the Çukra cup has been drawn. The verses commented on are in TS. i. 4, 15, 16.

Çukra-vessel, yonder sun [1] rises turned to all people; therefore each one thinks, 'Towards me hath it arisen.' He draws (the cup) for the All-gods with the Çukra-vessel, people are connected with the All-gods, the Çukra is brilliance, in that he draws (the cup) for the All-gods with the Çukra-vessel, verily he bestows brilliance upon people.

vi 5. 5. Indra¹ in league with the Maruts slew Vṛtra at the midday pressing; in that (the cups) for the Maruts are drawn at the midday pressing, they are drawn for the sacrificer² as slaying the foe. Of him, when he had slain Vṛtra, the seasons were confused, with the season-vessel he drew (the cups) for the Maruts; then indeed did he discern the seasons; in that (the cups) for the Maruts are drawn with the season-vessel, (they serve) to reveal the seasons. (The cups) for the Maruts are a weapon which the sacrificer hurls at his foe; with the first [1] he raises it aloft, with the second he hurls it; with the third he lays (him) low. (The cups) for the Maruts are a weapon which the sacrificer makes ready; the first is a bow, the second a bowstring, the third an arrow; with the first he fits the arrow, with the second he lets it go, with the third he pierces. Indra having slain Vṛtra went to the furthest distance, thinking, 'I have done amiss'; he became of bay colour, he saw these (cups) for the Maruts, to save himself,³ he drew them [2]; verily with the first he won expiration, with the second inspiration, himself with the third, (the cups) for the Maruts are drawn to save the self of the sacrificer, verily he wins expiration with the first, inspiration by the second, and himself with the third. Indra slew Vṛtra; the gods said of him, 'Great hath he become who hath slain Vṛtra': that is why Mahendra (great Indra) has his name. He drew this libation for Mahendra, having slain Vṛtra and being above the other deities; in that (the cup) for Mahendra is drawn, so the sacrificer draws this libation, being above other people. He draws with the Çukra-vessel; (the cup) for Mahendra has the sacrificer as its deity, the Çukra is brilliance; in that he draws (the cup) for Mahendra in the Çukra-vessel, verily he bestows brilliance on the sacrificer.

vi. 5. 6. Aditi,⁴ desirous of offspring, cooked a Brahman's mess for the Sādhyā gods; to her they gave the remains, she ate it, she became pregnant, of her the four Adityas were born. A second (mess) she cooked; she reflected, 'They have been born for me from the remains, if I eat first, then stronger ones will be born from me'; she ate first, she became pregnant, from her was born an egg which miscarried. She cooked a third (meal) for the Adityas [1]. (saying) 'Let this labour be for enjoyment to me': they said, 'Let us choose a boon' let him who shall be born hence be one of us let him who shall be prosperous among his offspring be for our enjoyment', then was born the Aditya Vivasvant, men are his offspring here, among them he alone is successful who sacrifices, he serves for enjoyment of the gods. The gods kept Rudra away from the sacrifice [2], he followed the Adityas, they took refuge in (the cups) for two deities, them they did not give up; therefore men do not give up even one worthy of death who has come for help. Therefore (the cup) for the Adityas is drawn from those for two deities: in that they were born from the remnant, therefore it is drawn from the remnant. He draws with three verses: mother, father, son, verily that is this pairing: the amnion, embryo, the chorion, verily that is this [3] pairing. The Aditya (cup) is cattle; curds are strength; he mixes with curds in the middle: verily he places strength in the middle of cattle: (with curds) to be coagulated with boiled milk, for purity. Therefore the raw milks the cooker. The Aditya (cup) is cattle, he draws after covering (the cup), verily he draws securing cattle for him. The Aditya (cup) is those cattle; Agni is Rudra here; he draws after covering: verily he shuts off cattle from Rudra [4]. (The stone) for pressing out the Upāñu (cup) is this Aditya Vivasvant; it lies round this Soma drink until the third pressing. 'O bright Aditya, this is thy Soma drink', he says; verily he unites the Aditya Vivasvant with the Soma drink. 'With the rain of the sky I mix thee', (with these words) he should mix for one who desires rain; verily he wins rain. If it should fall quickly, Parjanya would be likely to rain; if long, (he would) not (be likely). He does not place (the cup) down, for from that which is not depressed¹ offspring are produced. He should not utter the secondary Vasat;² if he were to do so, he would let Rudra go after his offspring; after sacrificing he should not look after (it); if he were to look after (it) his eye would be likely to be destroyed, therefore he should not look after (it).

vi. 5. 7. He³ draws (the cup) for Savitṛ from the Āgrayana with the Antaryāma-vessel; the Āgrayana is Prajāpati; (verily it serves) for the begetting of offspring. He does not place (the cup) down, for from that which is not depressed offspring are produced. He does not utter the secondary Vasat; if he were to do so, he would let Rudra go after his offspring. Savitṛ is among the gods he who is connected with the Gāyatrī; in that the Āgrayana (is drawn), it is drawn in the world of the Gāyatrī ; in that he draws (the cup) for Savitṛ from the Āgrayana with the Antaryāma-vessel, verily he draws it off from its own birthplace. The All-gods [1] could not perform the third pressing ; they led Savitṛ who shares in the first pressing to the third pressing ; then indeed they performed the third pressing. In that (the cup) for Savitṛ is drawn at the third pressing, (it serves) for performing the third pressing. He draws (the cup) for the All-gods from the tub with the Savitṛ-vessel ; people are connected with the All-gods, the tub is connected with the All-gods, Savitṛ rules instigations, in that he draws (the cup) for the All-gods from the tub with the Savitṛ-vessel, verily instigated by Savitṛ he produces offspring for him [2]. He draws Soma in Soma ; verily thus he impregnates seed. 'Thou givest good protection, and art well established', he says, for he draws Soma in Soma, for support. In this same cup (offering) is made for men, gods, and Pitṛs ; 'Thou givest good protection, and art well established', he says ; verily thereby he makes (it) for men ; 'The great', he says, verily thereby he makes (it) for the gods ; 'Homage', he says, verily thereby he makes (it) for the Pitṛs ; so many are the gods ; verily he draws it for them all. 'This is thy birthplace, to the All-gods thee !' he says, for it is connected with the All-gods.

vi. 5. 8. The¹ Upāñcū is the breath ; in that the first and the last cups are drawn with the Upāñcū-vessel, verily they follow forward the breath, they follow back the breath. The Āgrayana is Prajāpati, the Upāñcū is the breath, the wives² produce offspring : in that he draws (the cup) for (Tvastṛ) with the wives from the Āgrayana with the Upāñcū-vessel, (it serves) for the production of offspring. Therefore offspring are born in accordance with the breath. The gods desired³ that the wives should go to the world of heaven [1] ; they could not discern the world of heaven, they saw this (cup) for the wives, they drew it ; then indeed did they discern the world of heaven ; in that (the cup) for the wives is drawn, (it serves) to reveal the world of heaven. Soma could not bear being drawn for women, making the ghee a bolt they beat it, they drew it when it had lost its power : therefore women are powerless, have no inheritance, and speak more humbly than even a bad man⁴ [2]. In that he mixes (the cup) for (Tvastṛ) with the wives with ghee, he overpowers it with a bolt and draws it. 'Thou art taken with a support', he says ; the support is this (earth), therefore offspring are born on this (earth). 'Of thee, pressed by Brhaspati', he says ; Brhaspati is the holy power of the gods; verily by the holy power he produces offspring for him. 'O drop', he says; the drop is seed; verily thus he impregnates seed. 'Possessing power', he says [3], power is offspring; verily he produces offspring for him. 'O Agni' he says, the impregnator of seed is Agni; 'With the wives', he says, for pairing 'in unison with the god Tvastr drink the Soma', he says. Tvastr is the maker of the forms of pairings of animals; verily he places form in animals. The gods sought to slay Tvastr; he went to the wives, they would not give him up; therefore [4] men do not give up even one worthy of death who has come for help.³ Therefore in (the cup) for the wives for Tvastr also a drawing is made. He does not put (the cup) down, for from what is not dispersed offspring are produced.⁴ He does not utter the secondary Vasat, if he were to do so, he would let Rudra go after his offspring: if he were not to do so, the Agnidh would consume the Soma before it had been appeased. he says the secondary Vasat muttering, he does not let Rudra go after his offspring, the Agnidh consumes the Soma after it has been appeased. 'O Agnidh, sit on the lap of the Nestr, O Nestr, lead up the wife', he says, verily the Agnidh impregnates the Nestr, the Nestr the wife. He causes the Udgatr to look (at the wife); the Udgatr is Prajapati; (verily it serves) for the production of offspring. He causes water to follow along; verily thus he pours seed, along the thigh he causes it to flow, for along the thigh is seed poured, baring the thigh he causes it to flow, for when the thigh is bared, they pair, then seed is poured, then offspring are born.

vi. 5. 9. Indra⁵ slew Vrtra, he forced out his skull-bone, it became the wooden tub, from it the Soma flowed, it became (the cup) for the yoker of bays; he reflected regarding it, 'Shall I offer, or shall I not⁶ offer?' He reflected, 'If I shall offer, I shall offer what is raw; if I shall not offer, I shall make confusion in the sacrifice.' He decided to offer; Agni said, 'Thou shalt not offer⁷ what is raw in me'; he mixed it with fried grains [1], and when it had become cooked he offered it. In that he mixes (the cup) for the yoker of bays with fried grains, (it serves) to make it cooked, verily he offers it when it has become cooked. He mixes with many; so many are his (cows) yielding his wishes in yonder world. Or rather they say, '(The fried grains) for the yoker of bays are the dappled (cows) of Indra yielding wishes', therefore he should mix with many. The bays of Indra, which drink the Soma, are the R̄e and the Sāman, the enclosing-sticks are their bridles; if he should offer without removing the enclosing-sticks, he would offer fodder to them still bridled [2]; he offers after removing the enclosing-sticks; verily he offers fodder to them with their bridles removed. It is the Unnetr who offers; the Adhvaryu when he has uttered 'Godspeed!' is as one who has finished his journey; if the Adhvaryu were to offer, it would be as when one yokes again (a horse) unyoked. He offers after putting it on his head, for from the head it sprung; he offers after striding, for Indra slew Vṛtra after striding; (verily it serves) for attainment. (The grains) for the yoker of bays are cattle; if he were to crush (them), few [3] cattle would attend and wait on him; if he were not to crush them, many cattle would attend, but not wait on him;¹ in his mind he crushes them together, and effects both; many cattle attend and wait on him. They await the invitation from the Unnetr; verily they win the Soma-drinking that is here. He throws down (the remnants) on the high altar; the high altar is cattle, (the grains) for the yoker of bays are cattle; verily they make cattle find support in cattle.

vi. 5. 10. Offspring² and cattle are born through the cups, goats and sheep through the Upāñcu and Antaryāma, men through the Çukra and Manthin, whole-hooved animals through the season-cups, kine through the Āditya cup. The Āditya cup is drawn with the largest number³ of R̄es; therefore kine are the most numerous of cattle; in that he thrice draws apart with his hand the Upāñcu (cup), therefore the female goat gives birth to two or three, but sheep are more numerous. The Āgrayāna is the father, the tub is the son; if the Āgrayāna is exhausted, he should draw from the tub; that is as when a father [1] in destitution has recourse to his son. If the tub is exhausted, he should draw from the Āgrayāna; that is as when a son in destitution has recourse to his father. The Āgrayāna is the self of the sacrifice; if the cup or the tub should be exhausted, he should draw from the Āgrayāna; verily from the self he develops the sacrifice. The Āgrayāna is drawn (with a verse) in which there is no discriminating mark;⁴ he draws with a pot, he offers with (the vessel) for Vāyu, therefore [2] (a man) is a slayer of a Brahman⁵ (through slaying) an Whatever of the sacrifice is accompanied by a Sāman or Yajus, is loose: whatever by a Re is firm, they are drawn with a support in front to the accompaniment of a Yajus, (they are drawn) with a support behind³ to the accompaniment of a Re, for the support of the sacrifice.

vi 5. 11. Some⁴ vessels are used (repeatedly), others not. With those that are employed once only (paracīrāni) he conquers yonder world, for yonder world is as it were turned away (parān).⁵ With those which are used again he conquers this world, for this world is repeated as it were again and again. Some vessels are used (repeatedly), and others not. Through those that are used once only the plants fade, through those which are used again [1] the plants revive again. Some vessels are used repeatedly, others not. Through those which are used once only the wild animals go to the forest; through those which are used again the domestic animals come back again to the village. brahma jahāti* is absolutely no help, and cannot have understood the reference. KS. and MS. have bhrānta, which is much easier. The text here if not due to the later confusion of bhrāta and brahma in this compound may be a sign that the doctrine was then held that before a garbha was born it could be expected to be born in any caste form (of the question of gandharva, Hillebrandt, Ved. Myth. i. 427 seq.; Pischel, Ved. Stud. i. 79; ii. 246; Oldenberg, Religion der Veda, p. 249). In CB. iv. 5. 2. 10 arṣīḍā denotes one neither clearly male or female. In MS. there should be read, for arṣīḍā sthāyā, (arṣīḍā sthāyā: the correction is certain on comparison of KS.

¹ This phrase, found also in KS. and MS., does not refer to the exposure of female children as formerly held; see Vedic Index, i. 487, and contrast Weber, Ind. Stud. ix. 481.

⁵ The idea is that the use is a thing gone by (pādīna) and the case of repetition is one where the next use is prī (forward). The repeated ones are the Upāñcu and Antaryāma cups; similarly these cups are drawn with wooden vessels such as those used for Vāyu (vāyavya), while the Āgrayana and the Ukhya, &c., with pots (stūlī).

knows thus becomes possessed of a foundation. He who knows the pairing of the cups is propagated with offspring, with cattle, with pairings. Some cups are drawn with pots, some with (vessels) for Vāyu ; that is the pairing of the cups. He who knows thus is propagated with offspring, with cattle, with pairings. Indra forcibly drank the Soma of Tvastr, he went to pieces on all sides [3] ; he found no stay in himself ; he saw these cakes as an addition to the pressing, them he offered, and with them he made a stay in himself ; therefore as additional to the pressing the cakes are offered ; therefore as additional to the pressing he should partake of the cakes ; verily he makes a stay in himself, and the Soma does not flow through him. The theologians say, 'Neither by R̄c nor by Sāman is the five made up ; what then is the fivefold character of the sacrifice ?' Fried grains, mush, rice grains, the cake, clotted milk, thereby the five is made up ; that is the fivefold character of the sacrifice.

PRAPĀTHAKA VI

The Exposition of the Dakṣinā and other Offerings

vi. 6. 1. The¹ sacrifices with the gifts are offered for the world of heaven. He offers with two (verses) on the Gārhapatya ; the sacrificer has two feet, (verily it serves) for support. He offers in the Agnidh's altar ; verily he ascends the atmosphere. He approaches the Sadas ; verily he makes him go to the world of heaven. He offers in the Gārhapatya with verses addressed to Sūrya , verily he makes him mount yonder world. He offers in the Agnidh's altar with a verse containing the word 'Lead', for leading to the world of heaven. 'Go to the sky, fly to heaven', (with these words) he takes out the gold after the offering [1] ; verily he makes him go to the world of heaven. 'With my form I approach your form', he says ; for by his form he approaches their form, in that (he approaches) with gold 'May Tutha, all knowing, allot to you', he says ; Tutha, all knowing, was wont to allot the gifts of the gods ; verily thereby he divides them. 'This gift of thine, O Agni [2], cometh, impelled by the Soma', he says, for his gift comes impelled by the Soma. 'Lead it by the path of Mitra', he says, for atonement. 'Go ye on by the path of holy order, of brilliant gifts', he says, holy order is truth : verily with truth, with holy order, he divides them. 'Leading prosperity by the path of the sacrifice', he says, for the gifts go by the path of the sacrifice. 'May I win a Brahman to-day [3], a seer and sprung from seers', he says ; the learned man is a Brahman, a seer and sprung from seers; therefore he says thus. 'Gaze on the heaven, gaze on the atmosphere', he says; verily he makes him go to the world of heaven. 'Join those in the seat', he says, for friendship. 'Given by us, go to the gods, full of sweetness; enter the giver', he says 'we here are givers; do ye there enter us, full of sweetnes' [4], he says in effect. He gives gold; gold is light; verily he places light before, to light up the world of heaven. He gives to the Agnidh, verily he delights the seasons headed by Agni, he gives to the Brahman priest, for instigation; he gives to the Hotr; the Hotr is the self of the sacrifice; verily he unites the self of the sacrifice with the gifts.

vi. 6. 2. He¹ offers the Samistayajuses, for the completion of the sacrifice. Whatever is harsh or injured in the sacrifice, what he passes over, what he does not pass over, what he does redundantly, what he does not do,² all that he propitiates with them. He offers nine: nine are the breaths in man, the sacrifice is commensurate with man; all the sacrifice he delights thus. He offers six with Res; the seasons are six, verily he delights the seasons, he offers three with Yajuses [1]; these worlds are three; verily he delights these worlds. 'O sacrifice, go to the sacrifice; go to the lord of the sacrifice', he says; verily he makes it go to the lord of the sacrifice. 'Go to thine own birthplace', he says: verily he makes it go to his own birthplace. 'This is thy sacrifice, O lord of the sacrifice, with its utterance of hymns and producing noble heroes', he says; verily he confers strength upon the sacrificer. Vasiṣṭha Satyahavya asked³ Devabhaga, 'When thou didst cause to sacrifice the Srūjayas, with many sacrificers, didst thou cause the sacrifice to rest upon the sacrifice [2] or on the lord of the sacrifice?' He replied,⁴ 'On the lord of the sacrifice.' 'But in truth Srūjayas have been defeated', he said, 'the sacrifice should have been made to rest on the sacrifice, to prevent the defeat of the sacrificer.' 'Ye gods, that find the way, finding the way, go on the way', he says, verily he makes the sacrifice to rest upon the sacrifice, to prevent the defeat of the sacrificer.

¹ Cf. MS. iv. 8. 4; QB. iv. 4. 4. 1-14. The verses commented on are in TS. i. 4. 44.

³ The alternatives are to stop at k or go on with i and k, which are clearly one Mantra only, as the last words here prove. Sayana, however, takes the alternative as stopping at g, which has the words yajñaputrah gacha.

⁴ He is Devabhaga, and the next sentence is said by Vasiṣṭha; so Bhāsk. Delbrück (Vergl. Synt. ii. 272) takes the whole as the reply of Devabhaga and the first clause as giving the reason for the defeat of the Srūjayas but this is less probable.

vi. 6. 3. He¹ offers the Avabhr̥thaya juses;² whatever sin he has committed in the year before, verily that thereby he propitiates. He goes to the waters for the final bath; Varuna is in the waters; verily straightway he propitiates Varuna. The Rakṣases, following along by the path, seek to injure the sacrifice; the Prastotṛ follows along with the Sāman, the slayer of Rakṣases³ is the Sāman; (verily it serves) for the smiting away of the Rakṣases. Thrice he performs the finale; these worlds are three; verily from these worlds [1] he smites away the Rakṣases. Each one performs the finale, for each one is infested by the Rakṣases, for the smiting away of the Rakṣases. ‘King Varuna hath made a broad (path)’, he says, for support. ‘A hundred remedies are thine, O king, a thousand’, he says; verily he makes medicine for him. ‘The noose of Varuna is overcome’, he says, verily he overcomes the noose of Varuna. He makes offering over the strew, for the support of the oblations; verily also he offers in what has fire.* He offers the fore-offerings omitting⁵ that to the strew [2]; the strew is offspring; verily he frees offspring from Varuna’s noose. He offers the two portions of butter; verily he does not obstruct the two eyes of the sacrifice. He sacrifices to Varuna; verily he frees him from Varunā’s noose. He sacrifices to Agni and Varuna; verily straightway he frees him from Varuna’s noose. He offers two after-offerings, omitting that to the strew; the strew is offspring; verily he frees offspring from Varuna’s noose. He offers four fore-offerings and two after-offerings; they make up six, the seasons are six [3]; verily he finds support in the seasons. ‘O bath, O flood’, he says; verily he propitiates by this utterance Varuna. ‘In the sea is thy heart, within the waters’, he says, for Varuna is in the sea. ‘Let the plants and the waters enter thee’;⁶ he says; verily he unites him with the waters and the plants. ‘Ye divine waters, this is thy foetus’, he says; that is according to the text. The Soma is cattle [4], if he were to partake of the drops,⁷ he would be possessed of cattle, but Varuna would seize him; if he were not to partake, he would have no cattle, but Varuna would not seize him; he should touch them only, he becomes possessed of cattle, Varuna seizes him not. 'The noose of Varuna is loosed', he says; verily is he freed from Varuna's noose. They advance without looking round, for concealment from Varuna. 'Thou art fuel, may we prosper', he says, verily with the kindling-stick they approach the fire in reverence. 'Thou art brilliance; grant me brilliance', he says; verily he bestows brilliance upon himself.

vi. 6. 4. With¹ the wooden sword he digs up the altar, with the axle of a chariot he measures. He sets up the sacrificial post, verily gathering together a threefold bolt he hurls it at his foe, to lay him low. If he were to set it up within the altar, he would win the world of the gods; if outside the altar, the world of men; he sets it up in the place where the altar and the edge (outside) meet, for the winning of both worlds. He should set (the set) up with the lower parts alike for one who desires the world of the Pitrs, with the girdle part alike for one who desires the world of men, with the top pieces alike for one who desires power, and all alike for one who desires support; the three in the middle alike for one who desires cattle; for through them [1] cattle attend (on him); verily he becomes possessed of cattle. He should interlock² the others; verily he interlocks him with offspring and cattle. If he desire of a man, 'May he be liable to die', he should set it up for him in grave fashion,³ the northern half the higher, then (the southern) the lower, this is the grave fashion; he for whom he sets it up thus swiftly dies. For him who desires the heaven he should set it up with the southern half the higher, then the (northern) half the lower; verily the sacrificer makes it a ladder and a bridge to attain the world of heaven [2]. In that on one post he twines round two girdles, therefore one man wins two wives; in that he does not wind one girdle round two posts, therefore one wife does not find two husbands. If he desire of a man, 'Be a girl born to him', he should intertwine⁴ (the girdles) near the ends; verily a girl is born to him; if he desire of a man, 'Be a son born to him', he should cover it round right up to the end; verily a son is born to him [3]. The Asuras drove the gods to the south, the gods repelled them by the Upaçaya (post): that is why the

¹ Cf. KS. xxix. 8; MS. iv. 7. 9; QB. iii. 7. 1. 22; 2. 1-8. This section gives the peculiarities of the eleven posts which may optionally be substituted for the normal one; see Hillebrandt, Ritualliteratur, pp. 186, 187; ApCS. xiv. 5-7 follows this closely, and cf. BGS. xvii. 11-16. There are two more posts, the Upaçaya, which is not set up, and the Pñinivata, used for an offering to Tvaṣṭṛ with the wives.

² i.e. make them touch each other.

⁴ Cf. Schwab, Das altpersische Thieropfer, p. 72, and for the girdles, above, TS. vi. 3. 4. 5, 6.

Upaçaya has its name. In that the Upaçaya lies near (upuçáye) on the south, (it serves) to drive away the foe. All the other posts have victims (attached), the Upaçaya has none, its victim is the sacrificer; if he were not to indicate (a victim), the sacrificer would be ruined. 'N.N. is thy victim', (with these words) he should indicate whomsoever he hates, whom he hates [4], him he indicates as a victim to it. If he hates not, 'The mole is thy victim', he should say; he harms not domestic nor wild animals. Prajāpati created offspring; he was destitute of proper food, he saw this set of eleven, and therewith he won proper food. In that there are ten posts, the Virāj has ten syllables, and the Virāj is food, he wins proper food by the Virāj [5]; thereby he milks the eleventh breast of her. In that the set of eleven (is set up), a thunderbolt is set up; it is liable to crush the sacrifice face to face; in that he sets up (the stake) (for Tvaṣṭṛ) with the wives,¹ (it serves) to establish the sacrifice and to bind.

vi. 6. 5. Prajāpati² created offspring, he thought himself emptied, he saw this set of eleven (victims), with it he bestowed life, power, and strength upon himself, he who sacrifices creates as it were offspring; then he is as it were emptied; in that this set of eleven is (offered), with it the sacrificer bestows life, power, and strength upon himself. With (the victim) for Agni he scatters, with that for Sarasvatī he makes a pairing, with that for Soma he impregnates seed [1], with that for Pūṣan he propagates. There is one for Br̥haspati; Br̥haspati is the holy power (Brahman) of the gods, verily with the holy power (Brahman) he produces offspring for him. There is one for the All-gods; offspring are connected with the All-gods, verily he produces offspring for him. By that for Indra he wins power, by that for the Maruts the people, by that for Indra and Agni force and might. That for Savitṛ is for instigation, that for Varuna to free oneself from Varuna's (noose). In the middle he offers that for Indra; verily in the middle he bestows power on the sacrificer [2]. In front of that for Indra he offers that for the All-gods; food is connected with the All-gods; verily he puts food in front; therefore food is eaten in front. Having offered that for Indra he offers that for the Maruts; the Maruts are the people, verily he fastens the people to him. If he desire, 'May he who has attained (power) be banished; may he who is banished return (to power)', in the place of that for Indra he should offer that for Varuna, in the place

The offering is given to Tvaṣṭṛ (vi. 6. 6. 2); cf. for the ordinary rite, Hillebrandt, Neu- und Vollmondopfer, pp. 154, 155; Schwab, Das altdänische Thieropfer, p. 159.

² Cf. KS. xxix. 9; KapS. xlvi. 2; MS. iv. 7. 8; CB. iii. 9. 1. 5-25. This section gives the eleven victims; cf. BGS. xvii. 13, 14, where the order is, on the north the victims for Sarasvatī, Pūṣan, the All-gods, Maruts, Savitṛ; on the south those for Soma, Br̥haspati, Indra, Indra and Agni, Varuna, with that for Agni in the centre.

of that for Varuna that for Indra [3]. He who has attained (power) is banished, he who is banished returns (to power).¹ If he desire, 'May the people fall into confusion', he should interchange the animals, verily he causes the people to fall into confusion. If he should offer that to Varuna along the stream of the waters, Varuna would seize his offspring; he offers (the victim) facing north on the south side² against the stream of the waters, to prevent Varuna seizing his offspring.

vi. 6. 6. Indra³ caused Manu to sacrifice with his wife, after she had been encircled with fire he let her go; therewith Manu prospered; in that he lets go (the victim), (for Tvaṣṭṛ) with the wives, the sacrificer prospers with the prosperity with which Manu prospered. From what is unsupported in the sacrifice the sacrifice comes to ruin; as the sacrifice comes to ruin the sacrificer comes to ruin along with it; in that he completes (the offering) (for Tvaṣṭṛ) with the wives with butter, (it serves) to support the sacrifice, and as the sacrifice finds support, the sacrificer finds support along with it. The offering of the cauldron [1] has been performed, the offering of the cow is not yet over, then he performs (the offering) (for Tvaṣṭṛ) with the wives, verily he performs it at the right moment; then indeed comes the conclusion. It is for Tvaṣṭṛ; Tvaṣṭṛ of the seed that is spilt moulds forms, him he sets loose as a male among wives; he for him moulds forms.

vi. 6. 7. They⁴ kill the Soma in that they press it, in that there is (an oblation) of Soma, that is as when they slay for the dead a barren cow⁵. If he were to offer in the northern half or the middle, he would cause conflict with the gods; he offers on the southern half; this is the quarter of the Pitṛs; verily in their own quarter he propitiates the Pitṛs. They give to the Udgātṛs, (the oblation) of Soma has the Sāman for its deity; whatever

² The meaning is that the animal to Varuna is offered as the eleventh, and that is on the south side of the middle post (the Agnistha). As the posts slope off towards the north, the offering as made at the northern post would have been abhi-vatātā, 'according to the stream.' The order is (ĀpCS. xiv. 6. 18-15) that to Agni at the Agnistha, then north one to Sarasvatī, then south one to Soma, and so on, ending with the eleventh.

³ Cf. KS. xxx. 1; KapS. xlvi. 4; MS. iv. 8. 1. In QB. i. 1. 4. 16 there is a brief allusion to the sacrifice of Indra's wife. The section gives the treatment of the offering to Tvaṣṭṛ, which is not slain but allowed to go loose after the Fury ga ceremony is over. It is performed after the omentum of the cow (rati) is offered, but before the other portions are disposed of. The Yupa is set up before the Galamukhiya, without a top, navel-high, on unstrawed ground, and the victim is a hairy uncastrated tawny bull, see ĀpCS. xiv. 7. 12-18; BGS. xvii. 15, where the victim is a goat.

⁴ Cf. KS. xxix. 2, 4; KapS. xlv. 3, 5, 6; MS. iv. 7. 2; 8. 6. This section gives some details of the Soma oblation, the offering of ghee, and the offering of a cow. See ĀpCS. xiii. 13. 14-14. 4. MGS. ii. 5. 2 1-8.

of the Sāman they do amiss, that is the atonement for it. They look at [1] (the victim) for Soma is a purifier, verily they purify themselves. He who cannot see himself would be dead. Having made it full all round, he should look at (it), for in it he sees himself; verily also he purifies himself. He whose mind is gone should look at (it), (saying), 'That mind of mine which hath gone away, or which hath gone elsewhere, by means of King Soma, we keep within us',² verily he keeps his mind in himself [2], his mind is not gone. At the third pressing the sacrifice departs from him who has sacrificed to him who has not sacrificed, he offers ghee with a verse to Agni and Viṣṇu; all the deities are Agni, the sacrifice is Viṣṇu verily he supports the deities and the sacrifice. He sacrifices muttering, for pairing. The theologians say, 'Mitra appropriates the well-performed part of the sacrifice, Varuna the ill-performed; where then is the sacrifice and where the sacrificer?' In that he offers a cow to Mitra and Varuna, by Mitra [3] he propitiates the well-performed part of the sacrifice, by Varuna the ill-performed, the sacrificer is not ruined. Even as men plough the field with the plough, so do the R̥c and the Sāman plough the sacrifice; in that he offers a cow to Mitra and Varuna, verily he rolls a roller³ over the ploughed-up sacrifice, for atonement. The metres of him who has sacrificed⁴ are worn out, the cow is the sap of the metres, in that he offers the cow to Mitra and Varuna, he again delights the metres, to drive away weariness. verily also he bestows sap upon the metres.

vi 6. 8. The⁵ gods divided up power and strength; what there was left over became the Atigrāhya cups, and that is why the Atigrāhyas have their name. In that the Atigrāhyas are drawn, verily thus the sacrificer bestows upon himself power and strength, brilliance by that for Agni, power by that for Indra, splendour by that for Sūrya. The Atigrāhyas are the support of the sacrifice, the Prsthās⁶ are the two wheels. if he were not to ¹ abhiudādīm is supported by the MSS (°dādūm in D is a mere slip), and the comm. which has dīyate prakṣipyata ājyam asminy caru, ĀpCS. xiii. 14. 3; ājyenābhīdadīm kṛtvā. The subjects are the Udgātṛs, though some Sūtras give the Adhvaryus, according to comm. on Āp. xiii. 14. 2.

² In KS. and MS. yamum galīm is read.

³ The comm. has gomayadi dravyam for matyām, but the sense 'roller' is no doubt more probable; cf. PB. ii. 9. 2.

⁴ This is not a case of a participle for a finite verb, but it is a predicative participle with the common omission of the copula.

' Cf. KS. xxix. 7; KapS. xlvi. 8; MS. iv. 7.3, CB. iv. 5.4.2-14. The Atigrāhyas are here briefly considered; see TS. iii. 3. 1. 1, 2, 5. 10. 1. Āp., Bhār., and Hiranyakacūpī attach them to the Āgrayana, Baudh. xiv. 10 only mentions them in his supplementary remarks, while QB. only admits them in the Dvādaśāhas; see Caland and Henry, L'Agnistoma, p. 166 n. The TS. orders it as part of the Agnistoma itself, as well as in the Prsthya Śādaha and the Viṣvajit.

⁶ i.e. the six Stotras. The reading is no doubt prsthye nā; prsthena in Bibl. Ind. is a mere blunder.

draw them in the Pr̄sthya (rite), the Pr̄thas would destroy the sacrifice in front; if he were to draw them in the Ukthya [1], the Atigrāhyas would destroy the sacrifice behind: but they should be drawn in the Viçvapit with all the Pr̄thas, so that the sacrifice may have all its strength. Prajāpati indicated the sacrifices to the gods, he put away their dear forms, they became the Atigrāhyas; 'Bodiless is his sacrifice', they say, 'for whom the Atigrāhyas are not drawn.' They should be drawn also in the Agnistoma, so that the sacrifice may have its body. All the deities were alike, and were not discriminated; these gods [2] saw these cups and drew them, Agni that for Agni, Indra that for Indra, Sūrya that for Sūrya; then indeed were they discriminated from the other gods; he, for whom knowing thus these cups are drawn, is discriminated from his evil foe. 'These worlds must be made full of light, with like strength', they say, verily with that for Agni he bestows light on this world, with that for Indra on the atmosphere, for Indra and Vāyu are yoke-fellows; with that for Sūrya on yonder world [3] he bestows light: full of light these worlds become for him; he makes them of like strength. Bamba¹ and Viçvayayasa found these cups, and to them these worlds, the distant and the near, became revealed; to him, for whom knowing thus these cups are drawn, these worlds, the distant and the near, become revealed.

vi. 6. 9. Whatever² the gods did at the sacrifice the Asuras did. The gods caused the metres and the pressings to find support in the Adābhya: then the gods prospered, the Asuras were defeated; he, for whom knowing thus the Adābhya is drawn, prospers himself, his foe is defeated. Because the gods deceived the Asuras with the Adābhya (undeceivable), that is why the Adābhya has its name. He who knows thus deceives his foe: his foe deceives him not [1]. The Adābhya is the form of Prajāpati, called the freer; he draws from (the Soma) which is tied up, for freedom; he who knows thus is set free from his evil foe. They kill the Soma in that they press it; in the slaying of the Soma the sacrifice is slain, with the sacrifice the sacrificer. The theologians say, 'What is it that the sacrificer does in the sacrifice whereby he goes alive to the world of heaven?' The Adābhya is the taking alive; he draws from (the Soma) before pressing; verily he makes him go alive to the world of heaven.

¹ For the two cf. Vedic Index, II. 60. The comm.'s version Bambā ca Viçvayayāś ca deśī is ludicrously wrong; Weber notes that lambā^o is found in the Gāṇa vācāpati to Pāṇini, vi. 2. 140.

² Cf. KB. xxx. 7; MS. iv. 7. 7; CB. xi. 5. 9. 1-12. For the verses see TS. vi. 8. 3, 4.

This section deals with the Adābhya cup, which comes before the Upāṇi, &c. (TS. i. 4. 1). Like the Anju (TS. vi. 6. 10) it is not an essential part of the sacrifice (Caland and Henry, L'Agnistoma, p. 149 n.).

Now they break the sacrifice asunder when they make it find support in the Adāhya; he lets go the shoots, for the continuance of the sacrifice.

vi. 6. 10. The¹ gods drew the cups in a line; Prajāpati saw this Ançu, drew it, and therewith prospered. Verily he, for whom knowing thus the Ançu is drawn, prospers. He draws from (the Soma) when it has been once pressed, for once he prospered thereby. He draws with the mind, for Prajāpati is mind as it were; (verily it serves) to obtain Prajāpati. He draws with (a vessel) of Udumbara; the Udumbara is strength; verily he wins strength; it has four corners; verily he finds support in the quarters [1]. He who knows the foundation of the Ançu becomes possessed of a foundation. The Sāman is that called the Vāmadevya; singing in his mind that foundation he draws; verily he becomes possessed of a foundation. If the Adhvaryu were not to make a success of drawing the Ançu, for both the Adhvaryu and the sacrificer would it go ill; if he were to make a success, for both would it go well; he draws without breathing: this is its success. He breathes² over gold, gold is immortality, breath is life, verily with life he quickens immortality; it is of a hundred (Kṛṣṇalas) in weight, man has a hundred (years of) life, a hundred powers; verily in life, in power he finds support.

vi. 6. 11. Prajāpati³ assigned the sacrifices to the gods; he thought himself emptied; he pressed over himself the power and strength of the sacrifice in sixteen ways;⁴ that became the Sodacın; there is no⁵ sacrifice called Sodacın, in that there is a sixteenth Stotra and a sixteenth Castra, therefore is it the Sodacın, and that is why the Sodacın has its name. In that the Sodacın is drawn, so the sacrificer bestows power and strength upon himself To the gods the world of heaven [1] did not become manifest; they saw this Sodacın, and drew it; then did the world of heaven become manifest to them; in that the Sodacın is drawn, (it serves) for the conquest of the world of heaven. Indra was the youngest of the gods, he had recourse to Prajāpati,

² If he must breathe, that is to say.

³ Cf. QB. iv. 5. 3. 1-8; PB. xii. 18. 1-38. For the Sodacın Graha see ĀpQS. xiv. 2, 3 seq., and cf. TS. i. 4. 37-42.

the fourth Sañsthā) is very strange, as in vii. 4. 3. 5; 7. 8; 10. 1 the Sodacın appears as a full Sañsthā; cf. Ind. Stud. ix. 120, 121; x. 352. Yet the suggestion of Weber that a polemic against the view is meant is supported by the comm. on PB. ix. 3. 1, and the comm. here has sa ca somayāganyatirikta yaśhāḥ kacīn nūtano na. Bhāsk makes sense by holding the sense to be that this is the only Sodacın. Probably the sense is merely that the Sodacın is essentially a mere variant of the Agniṣṭoma. But to read sa for na is very tempting and the sense would run on well thus.

he bestowed on him the Śodaśin, he drew it; then indeed did he attain the summit of the gods: he for whom knowing thus the Śodaśin [2] is drawn attains the summit of his equals. He draws at the morning pressing, the Śodaśin is the thunderbolt, the morning pressing is the thunderbolt; verily he draws it from its own birthplace. At each pressing he draws; verily from each pressing he produces it. At the third pressing he should draw (it) for one who desires cattle; the Śodaśin is the thunderbolt, the third pressing is cattle, verily by means of the thunderbolt he wins for him cattle from the third pressing. He should not draw (it) in the Ukthya: the Ukthas are offspring and cattle; if he were to draw (it) in the Ukthya [3], he would consume his offspring and cattle. He should draw (it) for one who desires cattle in the Atirātra; the Śodaśin is the thunderbolt: verily having won cattle for him by the thunderbolt, he calms them later with (the Castras of) the night.¹ He should also draw (it) in the Agniṣṭoma for a Rājanya, for a Rājanya sacrifices desiring distinction; verily in the day rite he grasps a bolt for him, and the bolt kindles him to prosperity, or it burns him, the twenty-onefold is the Stotra used, for support; what is recited has the word 'bay' in it;² he obtains the dear abode of Indra [4]. The smaller metres were among the gods, the larger among the Asuras; the gods recited the larger metre with the smaller on either side; then indeed did they appropriate the world of the Asuras. In that he recites the larger metre with a smaller metre on either side, verily thus he appropriates the world of his foe.³ They make six syllables redundant; the seasons are six, verily he delights the seasons. They place four in front [ॐ]; verily he wins four-footed cattle; two last; verily he wins two-footed (cattle); they make up an Anuṣṭubh; the Anuṣṭubh is speech, therefore speech is the highest of the breaths. When the sun is half-set, he sets about the Stotra of the Śodaśin; in this world Indra slew Vṛtra; verily straightway he hurlis the bolt against his foe. The sacrificial fee is a reddish-brown horse, that is the form of the bolt: (verily it serves) for success.

² The Castra begins RV. i. 84. 2 (TS. i. 4. 38 a).

position that a set of 32 + 28 + 30 syllables are to yield 32 + 32 + 32 (~ Anuṣṭubha), i.e. add 4 to the first and 2 to the last. The Viharana of the verses into Anuṣṭubha is described in ĀQS. vi. 9. 12. 18; the first Pāda of the Gāyatrī is followed by the first of the Pāñkti; the second by the second, the third by the third, and a fourth half-verse is made up by the last two Padas of the Pāñkti, i.e. Gāyatrī and Pāñkti yield a total of two Anuṣṭubha.

The One Day Sacrifices

vii. 1. 1. Production¹ of offspring is light.² Agni is the light of the gods, the Virāj is the light of the metres. The Virāj of speech ends in Agni;³ it is produced according to the Virāj. Therefore it is called light. Two Stomas bear the morning pressing, like expiration and inspiration; two the midday pressing, like eye and ear; two the third pressing, like speech and support. This sacrifice is commensurate with man, and is perfect [1].⁴ Whatever desire a man has, he wins by it, for one wins all by that which is perfect. By means of the Agnistoma Prajāpati created offspring, by means of the Agnistoma he grasped them. When he grasped them the mule escaped. Following it he took its seed, and placed it in the ass. Therefore the ass has double seed. They also say, 'He placed it in the mare.' Therefore the mare has double seed. They also say, 'In the plants [2] he placed it.' Therefore plants, though not anointed, glisten.⁵ They also say, 'He placed it in offspring.' Therefore twins are born. Therefore the mule has no offspring, for his seed has been taken from him. Therefore he is not suitable for the sacrifice,⁶ but is suitable if there is a sacrifice when one gives (to the priests) all one's goods or a thousand, for he escaped. He who knowing thus sacrifices with the Agnistoma begets unborn offspring and grasps those that are born. Therefore they say, 'It is the best of sacrifices [3]' Prajāpati indeed is the best, for he sacrificed with it first. Prajāpati⁷ desired, 'May I have offspring.' He meted out the Trivṛt from his mouth. After

² i.e. among men.

³ i.e. because the last Stotra, the Yajñayajñāya, is addressed to Agni; see SV. i. 1. 1. 4. 1; ii. 1. 1. 20. 1. See for the Stotras, Eggeling, SBE. xxvi. 325, n. 2; the text of each is given by Caland and Henry, L'Agnistoma.

⁴ asṭhūnī means literally 'not having a single horse'. The Vedic chariot required two horses, and one is always regarded as inadequate. Cf. Vedic Index, ii. 221 seq.

⁵ For all this cf. JB. i. 67. Oertel, Trans.

Connect. Acad. xv. 175 seq. The translation here follows Geldner, Ved. Stud. iii. 176, and Oertel, 176, n. 1, who compares samādīśīm in RV. x. 45. 4. The version of PW. 'the wood (axle) of the chariot creaks when it is not oiled' is certainly impossible. The plants occur in MS. 1.8 2, KS. vi. 2, and the mention of them here is possibly, as Oertel thinks, interpolated.

⁶ bṛkhiṣī, literally 'at the sacrificial strew', used curiously here to denote an ordinary sacrifice as opposed to an extraordinary one.

⁷ For this cf. Muir, Sanskrit Texts, ii. 15 seq.

it the god Agni was created, the Gāyatrī metre, the Rathantara Sāman, of men the Brahman, of cattle the goat, therefore are they the chief, for they were produced from the mouth. From the breast and arms he meted out the Pañcadaça Stoma. After it the god Indra was created, the Tristubh metre, the Bṛhat [4] Sāman, of men the Rajanya, of cattle the sheep. Therefore they are strong, for they were created from strength. From the middle he meted out the Saptadaça Stoma. After it the All-gods as deities were created, the Jagatī metre, the Vairūpa Sāman, of men the Vaigya, of cattle cows. Therefore are they to be eaten, for they were created from the receptacle of food. Therefore are they more numerous than others, for they were created after the most numerous of the gods. From his feet he meted out the Ekaviṇça Stoma. After it the Anustubh metre [5] was created, the Vairāja Sāman, of men the Cūdra, of cattle the horse. Therefore the two, the horse and the Cūdra, are dependent on others. Therefore the Cūdra is not fit for the sacrifice, for he was not created after any gods! Therefore they depend on their feet, for they were created from the feet. The Trivṛt is the breaths; the Pañcadaça the half-months; the Saptadaça Prajāpati;² these worlds are three; the Ekaviṇça is the sun yonder. In this they rest, in this they find support. He who knows thus rests on this, finds support in this.

vii. 1. 2. At³ the morning pressing he keeps glorifying the Trivṛt Stoma by the Gāyatrī metre; the Pañcadaça Stoma by the Trivṛt, which is splendour, the Saptadaça by the Pañcadaça which is force and strength, the Ekaviṇça by the Saptadaça which is connected with Prajāpati and causes begetting. Verily thus Stoma glorifies Stoma; verily also Stoma leads Stoma forth. As many as are the Stomas, so many are desires, so many the worlds, so many the lights; verily so many Stomas, so many desires, so many worlds, so many lights does he win.

vii. 1. 3. The⁴ theologians say, 'He indeed would really sacrifice, who having sacrificed with the Agnistoma should also sacrifice with the Sarvastoma.' If they omit the Trivṛt Stoma, then his vital airs are omitted, but he who offers the sacrifice does so with the wish, 'May it⁵ be in my vital airs. If they omit the Pañcadaça Stoma, his strength is omitted, but he who offers the sacrifice does so with the wish, 'May it be in my

² Cf. PB. iv. 6. 4.

³ This section briefly glorifies the four Stomas of the Agnistoma.

⁴ This section is intended to show that both the Agnistoma and the Aitrātra, which is called Sarvastoma, as having all the Stomas, including the Trinava and the Trayastriṇça as well as the ordinary four, should be celebrated (cf. PB. xx. 2. 11).

strength.' If they omit the Saptadaça Stoma [1], his offspring is omitted, but he who offers the sacrifice does so with the wish, 'May it be in my offspring.' If they omit the Ekaviñça Stoma, his support is omitted, but he who offers the sacrifice does so with the wish, 'May it be in my support.' If they omit the Trinava Stoma, his seasons and the strength of the Nakṣatras are omitted, but he who offers the sacrifice does so with the wish, 'May it be in my seasons and the strength of the Nakṣatras'¹ [2]. If they omit the Trayastrīñça Stoma, his deities are omitted, and he who offers the sacrifice does so with the wish, 'May it be in my deities.' He who knows the lowest of the Stomas attaining the first place,² obtains himself the first place. The Trivṛt is the lowest of Stomas, the Trivṛt occupies the first place. He who knows thus obtains the first place.

THE EXPOSITION OF THE SATTRAS

The Ahīna Sacrifices

vñ. l. 4. The³ Aṅgirases performed a sacrificial session. They went to the world of heaven. Of them Havismant and Haviskṛt were left behind. They desired, 'May we two go to the world of heaven.' They two saw this two-night rite, they grasped it, and sacrificed with it. Then they went to the world of heaven. He, who knowing thus offers the two-night sacrifice, goes to the world of heaven. They went with the first day and arrived with the second [1]. The first day is the Abhiplava,⁴ the second the complete (yati). The first day is the Jyotiṣṭoma form of the Agniṣṭoma;⁵ with it he wins splendour. The second day is an Atirātra with all the Stomas, that he may obtain all and win all. On the first day the Sāman is in the Gāyatrī

³ Cf. PB. xx. 11. 1-11, which covers the same ground in less detail.

⁴ The Abhiplava Sañjāha is a principal element of a Sattra or sacrificial session: it consists of a period of six days in which are recited alternatively the Br̥hat and the Rathantara Sāmans, as opposed to the Prethya Sañjāha where there is a daily change of Saman. Here Abhiplava applies to the first day of a two days' festival. Cf. Caland and Henry, L'Agnistoma, p. x, and see BCS. xvi. 24.

⁵ Jyotiṣṭoma is more properly the generic term which includes all the varieties, Agniṣṭoma, Ukthya, Śodaśin, Atirātra, Aptoryāma, Atyagniṣṭoma, Vajapeya. The Agniṣṭoma, the simplest form, has twelve Castras and twelve Stotras. The Atirātra is more complicated and has twenty-nine. The comm. on PB. thinks that the Jyotiṣṭoma includes the Agniṣṭoma because it has fifteen Stotras (i.e. he takes it as an Ukthya). Here it has its specific sense of a special form of Agniṣṭoma with a peculiar arrangement of the Stomas, for which see TS. vii 2. 4. 2. 4. 11. 1. 2.

(metre). The Gāyatrī is brilliance and splendour, verily he bestows brilliance and splendour on himself. On the second day (the Sāman) is in the Trīṣṭubh metre. The Trīṣṭubh is force and strength: verily he bestows force and strength on himself. The Sāman on the first day [2] is the Rathantara. The Rathantara is this (earth), verily he stands firm on this (earth). (The Sāman) on the second is the Brhat. The Brhat is yonder (sky), verily he stands firm on yonder (sky). They² say, 'Where are the Jagati and the Anuṣṭubh?' On the first day the Sāman is that of Viṣkhaṇus, verily he does not leave the Jagati. On the second it is the Sodāciṇ, verily he does not leave the Anuṣṭubh. Then they say, 'If the days fall in the same half-month, then the strength of one day only will belong to the rite.' The first day takes place on the night of new moon, the second on the next day³ verily the days fall on separate half-months, and have the several strengths. The first day has Havishmant, the second Haviskṛt in the finale, for support.⁴ vii. 1. 5. This⁵ was in the beginning the waters, the ocean. In it Prajapati becoming the wind moved. He saw her, and becoming a boar he seized her. Her, becoming Viṣvakarina, he wiped. She extended, she became the earth, and hence the earth is called the earth (lit. 'the extended'). In her Prajapati made effort. He produced the gods, Vasus, Rudras, and Ādityas. The gods said to Prajapati, 'Let us have offspring.' He said [1], 'As I have created you by penance, so seek ye offspring in penance.' He gave to them Agni as a support, saying, 'Strive with that support.' They strove with Agni as a support. After a year they produced one cow. They gave it to the Vasus, Rudras, and Ādityas, saying 'Guard it.' The Vasus, Rudras, and Ādityas guarded it. It produced for the Vasus, Rudras, and Ādityas (each) three hundred and thirty-three [2]. Thus she became the thousandth. The gods said to Prajapati, 'Cause sacrifice to be made to us with a thousand.' He caused sacrifice to be made by the Vasus with the Agnistoma. They won this world and gave (the thousandth).

¹ For the Sāmans prescribed cf. ApGS. x. 2. 6, 7.

² They wish to have the metres, Jagati and Anuṣṭubh, and so use the Vaikhanasa Sāman (SV. i. 3. 2. 1. 1) which is in the Brhatī metre and 4 Brhatīs = 3 Jagatis, which gives the Jagati metre. The Anuṣṭubh is also worked out of the Sodaciṇ Sāman, the Gaṇivita (SV. i. 2. 2. 8. 4), which is properly a Gāyatrī.

months are also in different months, but the parīmāna if not; Thibaut, Ind. Ant. xxiv. 88.

⁵ In vii. 1. 6-7 the Gargatrāṭa, or three-night feast of Garga, is described. Contains a legend in explanation of it. Cf. PB. xx. 14-16; BOS. xvi. 26-27.

He caused sacrifice to be made by the Rudras with the Ukthya. They won the atmosphere and gave (the thousand). He caused sacrifice to be made by the Ādityas with the Atirātra. They won yonder world, and gave (the thousand). Now the atmosphere [3] was broken. Therefore the Rudras are murderous, for they have no support. Therefore they say, 'The midmost day of the three-day night is not fixed; for it was moved.' The Ājya (Castra) of the midmost day is in the Trisṭubh metre. He recites the Samyāna¹ hymns, then recites the Sodāgaṇ, that the day may be made firm and be not loose. Therefore in the three-night rite, the first day should be an Agnistoma, then an Ukthya, then an Atirātra, for the separation of these worlds. On each day in succession he gives three hundred² continuously [4], for the continuance of these worlds. He should not break the decades³ lest he should thus destroy the Virāj. Now for the thousandth Indra and Viṣṇu strove. Indra reflects, 'By this Viṣṇu will appropriate all the thousand.' They made arrangement as to it, Indra got two-thirds, Viṣṇu the remaining third; verily the fact is recorded in the verse,⁴ 'Ye twain have conquered.' It is the Achāvāka [5] who recites this verse. Now (some say), 'The thousandth is to be given to the Hotṛ'; what is left over, is left over for the Hotṛ;⁵ the Hotṛ is the receiver of what has not been taken. Then others say, 'It is to be given to the Unnetr.' This is left over of the thousand, and the Unnetr is the one of the priests who is left over. Then some say, 'It is to be given to all those who have a place in the Sadas.'⁶ Then some say, 'It should be driven away and allowed to wander at will.' Then some say, 'It is to be given to the Brahman and the Agnidh [6], two shares to the Brahman and the third to the Agnidh. For the Brahman is connected with Indra, the Agnidh with Viṣṇu; (verily the division is) just as they

² The meaning must be 828, for the thousandth is referred to below and there can be little doubt that the 800 is merely a brachylogy.

³ He takes the cows by tens from the south side of the Vedi to the north between the hall and the Sadas. The odd three go with the last of the thirty-three sets of ten (comm.).

⁴ RV. vi. 69. 8; see above, TS. iii. 2. 11. 2; below, vii. 1. 6. 7.

⁵ The et here ends the quotation, but it is reasonable to suppose that the next words also are intended to express the views of the theologians who give the view mentioned. So in the next sentence. It must, however, be assumed that in giving the view the text also adopts it as the reason.

two agreed upon. Then some say, 'The one which is beautiful and of varied colour is the one to be given.' Then others say, 'The one which has two colours and on either side is spotted is the one to be given', for the gaining of a thousand. That indeed is the march of the thousand (sahusrasyāyana). There are a thousand Stotriyas, a thousand gifts (to the priests); the world of heaven is measured by a thousand, (verily it serves) for the winning of the heavenly world.

vii. 1. 6. Soma¹ found a thousand. Indra discovered it after him. Yama approached them and said to them, 'May I have a share too in it.' They said to him, 'Be it so.' Yama saw in one of the (cows) strength. He said to them, 'This one has the strength of the thousand, this be mine, the rest yours.' They said, 'We all² see that in this one is strength [1]. Let us each have a portion.' So they took shares in the one. They put her into the waters, saying, 'Come out for Soma.' She came out in the shape of a red³ brown cow of one year old, together with three hundred and thirty-three. Therefore let one buy the Soma with a red brown cow one year old. He, who knowing thus buys the Soma with a red brown cow one year old, buys the Soma with three hundred and thirty-three [2] and sacrifices with Soma for which he has paid a good price. They put her into the waters, saying, 'Come out for Indra.' She came out in the shape of a red draught animal with good characteristics, destroying foes, together with three hundred and thirty-three. Therefore one should give a red draught animal with good characteristics, destroying foes. He who knowing thus gives a red draught animal with good characteristics, destroying foes, gives her as three hundred and thirty-three [3]. They put her into the waters, saying, 'Come out for Yama.' She came out in the shape of an aged, stupid, utterly bad⁴ animal, together with three hundred and thirty-three. Therefore one should offer as the funeral cow one that is aged, stupid, utterly bad. If a man knowing thus offers a cow that is aged, stupid, utterly bad, as the funeral cow, she becomes for him in yonder world three

³ C again differs from the received text in reading here and below rakṣī, a variant of no weight. pṛthag the comm. explains as referring to the eyes, and this is probably correct; cf. QB. iii. 8. 1. 14; Hillebrandt, Ved. Myth. i. 27, n. 1. The real sense of rakṣī below is of course,

'belonging to Vṛtrakan', but the comm. and the text alike probably felt it rather as 'slayer of foes', treating rakṣī as a derivative of Vṛtra, 'foe'.

⁴ tajjaghangī seems to have this rather curious sense. The conj. tajag-(g)kangī is conceivable, but not likely (cf. Wackernagel, Altind. Gramm. II. i. 191 seq.), though it would suit well enough the anustāpanī, the cow used at the sacrificial burning of the dead man. Cf. Hopkins, Trans. Connect. Acad. xv. 45, n. 2.

hundred and thirty-three. Speech is the thousandth. Therefore [4] a boon must be given; for she is a boon, and when she is given she is a thousand. Therefore one must not accept a boon; for she is a boon; verily he would be accepting a thousand. Let him say, 'She is a boon', and of another,¹ 'Let this be mine'; verily he avoids accepting a thousand. She should be spotted on either side. They say, 'Let her be spotted on one side only; spotted is the thousand on the other side.'² The one for a boon [5] should be beautiful, perfect in form; for she is a boon; (verily it serves for) prosperity. Leading her round to the north of the Agnidh's place he makes her smell the wooden tub near the Āhavaniya fire, saying,³

'Smell the tub, O great one, with broad stream rich in milk;
Let the drops enter thee as the streams the ocean;
Give me a share in a thousand, with offspring, with cattle;
Let wealth again visit me.'

Verily he unites him with offspring, with cattle, with wealth [6]. He becomes rich in offspring, in cattle, in wealth, who knows thus. Having gone round the Agnidh's place with her, he should offer in front, while the cow stands facing (him), saying,⁴

'Ye twain have conquered; ye are not conquered;
Neither of the two of them hath been defeated;
Indra and Viṣṇu when ye contended,
Ye did divide the thousand into three.'

The thousand is divided into three parts at the three-night festival; verily he makes her possessed of a thousand, he makes her the measure of a thousand [7]. He offers to her forms; verily he unites her with her forms. Rising up he mutters in her ear,⁵

'O Ida, Ranti, Aditi, Sarasvatī, Priyā, Preyasi, Mahi, Viçruti,
These, O inviolable one, are thy names;
Proclaim me among the gods as a doer of good deeds.'

Verily she proclaims him among the gods, and the gods take note of him.

⁵ According to the comm. this means he offers to rohiṇī, &c. Perhaps it really refers to the forms subsequently enumerated.

vii. 1. 7. By¹ the thousandth the sacrifice goes to the world of heaven. She makes him go to the world of heaven. 'Do thou make me go to the world of heaven', he says; verily she makes him go to the world of heaven. 'Do thou make me go to the world of light', he says; verily she makes him go to the world of light. 'Do thou make me go to all holy worlds', he says; verily she makes him go to all holy worlds [1]. 'Do thou make me go to a secure place, with offspring and cattle, let wealth again visit me', (he says); verily she establishes him with offspring and cattle in wealth. Rich in offspring, cattle, and wealth he becomes who knows thus. He should give her to the Agnīdh, or the Brahman, or the Hotṛ or the Udgāṭṛ, or the Adhvaryu. In giving her, he gives a thousand. A thousand he accepts who not knowing [2] accepts her. He should accept her, (saying), 'Thou art one, not a thousand. Thee as one I accept, not a thousand; come to me as one, not as a thousand'; verily he who knows thus accepts her as one, not as a thousand. 'Thou art gentle, resting well, auspicious; come to me as gentle, well resting, auspicious,' [3] he says: verily she becoming gentle, well resting, auspicious, comes to him, and harms him not. The theologians say, 'Does the thousandth follow the thousand? or the thousand the thousandth?' If he were to let her go to the east, the thousandth would follow the thousand; now the thousand has no understanding, and would not recognize the world of heaven. He lets her go to the west; the thousand follow after her. She knowing goes to the world of heaven. He lets her go towards the sacrificer.² Quickly a thousand springs up. The (thousandth) is the last to be taken, but the first to go to the gods.

vii. 1. 8. Atri³ gave offspring to Aurva who was desirous of children. She deemed herself empty, without strength, weak, worn out. He saw the four-night rite; he grasped it, and sacrificed with it. Then indeed were four sons born for him, a good Hotṛ, a good Udgāṭṛ, a good Adhvaryu, a good councillor.⁴ He, who knowing thus offers the four-night rite, has four sons born for him, a good Hotṛ, a good Udgāṭṛ, a good Adhvaryu, a good councillor. The Pavamāṇa (Stomas) which are twenty-fourfold⁵ are splen-

³ Cf. PB. xxi. 9. 2. This is the rite called the Caturātra of Atri; see BG. xvi. 28.

dour [1] ; the increasing Stomas¹ are prosperity. Atri who had faith as his deity and offered sacrifices was not visited by the four strengths, brilliance, power, splendour, food.² He saw these four Soma libations with the four Stomas ; he grasped them and sacrificed with them. He won brilliance with the first, power with the second, splendour with the third, food with the fourth. He, who knowing thus, grasps the four Soma libations with the four Stomas and sacrifices with them, wins brilliance with the first, power with the second, splendour with the third, food with the fourth. With the success which Atri had, the sacrificer prospers.

vii. 1. 9. Jamadagni,³ desiring prosperity, sacrificed with the four-night rite. He prospered therein, and accordingly the two descendants of Jamadagni are not seen as grey-haired.⁴ That prosperity is his who knowing thus offers the four-night rite. On the Upasads offerings of the sacrificial cake are made. The sacrificial cake is cattle; verily he wins cattle. The sacrificial cake is food; verily he wins food. An eater of food and owner of cattle he becomes who knowing thus offers the four-day rite.

vii. 1. 10. The⁵ year was alone in the world.⁶ He desired, 'May I create the seasons.' He saw this five-night rite; he grasped it and sacrificed with it. Then indeed he created the seasons. He who knowing thus offers the five-night rite gains offspring. The seasons being created were not distinguished. They saw this five-night rite. They grasped it and sacrificed with it. Then they were distinguished⁷ [1]. He who knowing thus offers the five-night rite is distinguished from the enemy that hates him. Sarvaseni Çaucyeya⁸ desired, 'May I be rich in cattle.' He grasped this five-night rite and sacrificed with it. Then indeed he obtained a thousand cattle. He who knowing thus offers the five-night rite obtains a thousand cattle. Babara Pravahani⁹ desired, 'May I be a speaker of speech.' He grasped the five-night rite [2] and sacrificed with it. Then indeed he ¹ The Stomas are called udyātak because the number of verses increases; they are Trivṛt (9), Pañcadaça (15), Saptadaça (17), Ekaviṅça (21), Triṇava (27), Trayastriṅça (38). According to the comm. on the first day of this rite, Trivṛt, Pañcadaça, and Saptadaça are used for the three Pavaṁnas; on the second Pañcadaça, Saptadaça, and Ekaviṅça, and so on.

² Literally 'food eating'. Cf. AĀ. i 1.2.

³ Cf. PB. xxi. 10. 5-10. This is the Catūrātra of Jamadagni.

⁴ The comm. explain that father and son (for the dual)—i. e. as many as two—are never poor among the Jamadagnis. PB. has Aurau, and so refers to a definite pair, who seem to be meant as having had eternal youth and never to have become grey-headed.

⁵ There is no parallel in the other texts; see BCS. vi. 29.

⁶ ādām here as after has practically an adverbial sense.

⁷ See Keith, JRAS. 1914, p. 631.

⁹ Son of Pravahana is clearly the sense. But Satyavata Sāmigrāma quotes Çabara Svāmin on Jamāni Sūtra, i. 1. 31, as arguing that no Pravahana is known, and that it is therefore an epithet from pra and rah. More happy is Çabara in his remark that Babara is onomatopoetic (cabdānāvā).

became a speaker of speech. He, who knowing thus offers the five-night rite, becomes a speaker of speech, and men call him 'lord of speech'. The four-night rite is incomplete; the six-night rite is redundant; the correct sacrifice is the five-night rite. He who knowing thus sacrifices with the five-night rite sacrifices with the correct sacrifice. The (sacrifices) last five nights; the year consists of five seasons [3]; verily he stands firm in the year with its five seasons. Again the Pañkti has five elements, the sacrifice is fivefold; verily he wins the sacrifice. There is an Agniṣṭoma¹ characterized by the Trivṛt (Stoma); verily he wins brilliance. There is a Pañca-dāça (Stoma); verily he wins power. There is a Saptadaça (Stoma), for the obtainment of food; verily also he gains offspring by reason of it. There is an Agniṣṭoma with the Pañcadāça (Stoma), for the gaining of Prajāpati; (it has) the characteristics of the Mahāvrata, for the gaining of food. There is a Viçvajit Atiratra, with all the Pr̥ṣṭha (Stotras), for the winning of all.

According to ĀpCS. xx. 5 9 the Adhvaryu makes the sacrificer say a into the right ear of the horse, then offers the Pūrvahomas with b; with c lets the horse go, and with d confides it to the care of the Ratnins for guardianship; with e are said four Mantras for the offerings called Dhṛti in the four feet of the horse. Cf. MGS. ix. 2. 1; KGS. xx. 2. 18-3. 4; BGS. xv. 6 and 7 agrees as to a (the last sentence is used for adoration), d, and e (save that the horse is handed over to the gods, not the Ratnins), but b is used earlier for five

vii. 2. 1. The⁸ Sadhya gods, desirous of heaven, saw this (rite) of six nights. They grasped it, and sacrificed with it. Then indeed did they go to the world of heaven. Those, who knowing thus perform (the rite) of six nights, go to the world of heaven. (The rite) of six nights is a Sattrā of the gods, for these Pr̄śthas are obvious.⁹ Those, who knowing thus perform (the rite) of six nights, mount evidently upon the gods. (The rite)

¹ As is explained as *kṣayamātrāt padasāṁkṣeṣaṁ
deśānam*, and deśānam is given the force of mandagamana, which is rather doubtful. ni-kṣeṣa is referred to rubbing itself on the post or so on. MS. and VS. have hīm-kārdya, the usual form.

² Cf. KSA₂vedha, i. 11. For the Brahmana see TE. iii. 8. 17. 2. The section accompanies in ApGS. xx. 11. 7 an offering before the Āptis (TS. vii. 5. 19); cf. BGS. xv. 6 (apasya sāṁvṝṇi).

³ It is not probable that it means 'It is true that thou art Prajāpati'.

⁴ Cf. RV. ix. 94. 1, which has dhiyāt sārya nā kāsiyāt (also a denom. from kāsi), and for papim nā, vrājām nū, but ends papu vārdhānyā māmā. The sense in both cases is very obscure, and the version given above is little more than the common. KS has papim and kāsiyan. For pātiyām of Geldner, Fed. Stud. ii. 225.

⁵ In vii. 2. 1-10 the question of Sattras is again taken up, beginning with certain Ahinas, not properly called Sattras at all. For this 'Sattrā' cf. especially the passages describing the Saravatī sacrifices in PR. xxv. 10, 5, 19, 21; KGS. xxiv. 5. 26-28; 6. 15, 16; LGS. x. 16. 9-14; 17. 4-9; ĀGS. xli. 6; QGS. xiii. 29. 7-9; 20-23; ĀpGS. xxiii. 12. 4-18, 15; BGS. xvi. 29, 30 ad fin. For § 1 of ApGS. xxi. 22. 1-3; BGS. xvi. 29, 30 is of six nights; the seasons are six, the Pr̄ṣṭhas are six [1]; verily by the Pr̄ṣṭhas they mount the seasons, by the seasons the year; verily in the year they find support. They¹ proceed with the Br̄hat and the Rathantara (Sāmans). The Rathantara is this (earth), the Br̄hat is yonder (sky); verily with them do they proceed; verily also in them do they find support. These indeed are the quick paths of the sacrifice; verily by them do they proceed to the world of heaven. There is an Agniṣṭoma² with the Trivṛt (Stoma); verily they win brilliance. There is a Pañcadaça (Stoma); verily they win power. There is a Saptadaça (Stoma) [2], for the winning of food; verily also by it they are propagated. There is an Ekaviñča (Stoma), for support; verily also they place radiance in themselves. There is a Triṇava (Stoma), for conquest. There is a Trayastrīnča (Stoma), for support. They³ should sacrifice with this (rite) of six nights with both Sadas and oblation-holder. The oblation-holder and the Agnīdh's seat should be of Aćvattha wood, for that is heavenly. They should have wheels, for gaining the world of heaven. The sacrificial post is mortar-based, for support. They go forward, for forward as it were is the world of heaven [3]. They go with the Sarasvatī. This is the path that goes to the gods; verily they mount upon it. They go calling aloud;⁴ verily fastening misfortune on another they attain support. When ten (cows) make a hundred, then is one time to stop. Man is of a hundred (years of) life and of a hundred powers; verily in life and power do they find support. When a hundred make a thousand, then is one time to stop. Yonder world is measured by a thousand; verily they conquer yonder world. If one of them perish or they be oppressed, then is one time to stop, for that is a suitable opportunity.

vii. 2. 2. Kusurubinda⁵ Auddalaki desired, 'May I be rich in cattle.' He grasped this (rite) of seven nights, and sacrificed with it. Then indeed did he win all the domestic animals. He, who knowing thus sacrifices with (the rite) of seven nights, wins all domestic animals. (The rite) is of seven nights; the domesticated animals are seven, the wild seven, the metres seven, for

² The Pr̄ṣṭhya Śadāha is made up thus, the first day is an Agniṣṭoma with all the Stotras in the Trivṛt form of chanting; the next an Uktuya with the Pañcadaça form; the next an Uktuya with the Saptadaça form; the next a Śodacīn with the Ekaviñča form; the next an Uktuya with the Triṇava; and the last an Uktuya with the Trayastrīnča. The special Sāmans are Rathantara, Br̄hat

Vālīupa, Vairūja, Čākvara, and Raivata.

⁵ Cf. PB. xxii. 15. 10; KCS. xxiii. 5. 18; ApCS. xxii. 14. 8; 22. 11, 12; BCS. xvi. 80

winning both. There is an Agniṣṭoma¹ with the Trivṛt (Stoma) ; verily he wins brilliance [1]. There is a Pañcadaça (Stoma) ; verily he wins power. There is a Saptadaça (Stoma), for the winning of food ; verily also by it he is propagated. There is an Ekaviñča (Stoma), for support ; verily he places radiance in himself. There is a Triṇava (Stoma), for conquest. There is an Agniṣṭoma with the Pañcaviñča (Stoma) to obtain Prajāpati ; it has (the characteristics of) the Mahāvrata,² to win food. There is a Viçvajit Atirātra with all the Prsthas, to conquer all. If they were in the preceding days to perform the Prsthas in the obvious way, and similarly in the Viçvajit [2], the last day would be as when one sits down to a cow which has already been milked ; it would not be good enough for even a single night (rite). In the preceding days they perform the Brhat and the Rathantara. The Rathantara is this (earth), the Brhat yonder (sky) ; verily they depart not from them ; verily also in them do they find support. In that they perform the Prsthas in the Viçvajit in the obvious manner,³ it is as when one milks a cow which is ready to give.

vii. 2. 3. Brhaspati⁴ desired, ‘ May I be resplendent.’ He saw⁵ this rite of eight nights, he grasped it, and sacrificed with it. Then indeed did he become resplendent. He, who knowing thus sacrifices with (the rite) of eight nights, becomes resplendent. (The rite) is of eight nights ; the quarters are four, the intermediate quarters four ; verily from the quarters he wins splendour [1]. There is an Agniṣṭoma with the Trivṛt (Stoma) ; verily he wins brilliance. There is a Pañcadaça (Stoma) ; verily he wins power. There is a Saptadaça (Stoma), for the winning of food ; verily also by it he is propagated. There is an Ekaviñča (Stoma), for support ; verily he places radiance in himself. There is a Triṇava (Stoma), for conquest. There is a Trayastrinča (Stoma), for support. There is an Agniṣṭoma with the Pañcadaça (Stoma), to obtain Prajāpati ; it has (the characteristics of) the Mahāvrata, to win food.⁶ There is a Viçvajit Atirātra with all the Prsthas, to conquer all.

vii. 2. 4. Prajāpati⁷ created offspring. They being created were ahungered.

² Cf. S. vii. 5. 8. 1, 2; PB. v. 4. 10.

⁴ Cf. PB. xxii. 11. The rite consists of a Prsthya Śadaha, then a Mahāvrata Agniṣṭoma, and then an Atirātra Viçvajit ; see ApCS. xxii. 23. 7; BGS. xvi. 31.

⁵ The omission of apayat in vii. 2. 2 is due, according to the comm., to the fact that Kusurubinda was a boy and so only learned the rite from his teacher.

He saw this (rite) of nine nights, he grasped it, and sacrificed with it. Then indeed was he able to help offspring. When offspring are ahungered, one should sacrifice with (the rite) of nine nights, for these worlds are not fitted for them, and thus they are ahungered; verily he makes these worlds fitted for them, and as they become fitted he becomes fit for offspring along with them; these worlds become fit for him [1], and strength he places in offspring. By means of three nights he makes fit this world, by means of three nights the atmosphere, by means of three nights yonder world. As a man casts thread on thread,¹ so he casts world on world, for firmness, and to avoid looseness. The Stomas are known² as Jyotis, Go, and Āyus. The Jyotis is this (earth), the Go the atmosphere, the Āyus yonder (sky), verily they find support in these worlds, and he becomes famous among people [2]. (The rite) is of nine nights; verily in order he places brilliance on him. If a man be a long time ill, he should sacrifice with (the rite) of nine nights; for his breaths³ are loosened, and thus is he ill long;⁴ verily he supports his breaths in him, and even if his life be gone, yet he lives.

vii. 2. 5. Prajāpati⁵ desired, 'May I be propagated.' He saw this Daçahotr,⁶ and offered it. By this he created (the rite) of ten nights, and by this (rite) of ten nights he was propagated. If one is about to consecrate oneself for (the rite) of ten nights one should offer the Daçahotr; verily he creates by the Daçahotr (the rite) of ten nights, and by (the rite) of ten nights he is propagated. The sacrifice of ten nights is connected with the Virāj. He, who knowing thus sacrifices with (the rite) of ten nights, attains the Virāj. The sacrifice of ten nights is connected with Prajāpati [1]. He, who knowing thus sacrifices with (the rite) of ten nights, is propagated. Indra⁷ was on a level with the gods, he was not separated from them. He ran up to Prajāpati; he gave him this (rite) of ten nights. He grasped it, and sacrificed with it. Then indeed he became separated from the other gods. He,

¹ i.e. to make a rope of three strands.

² For further details cf. TS. vii. 4. 11. 2. In the PB. xvi. 3 they are called the Trikadrukas.

⁵ In the PB. xxiii. 14–17 four Dagarātras are described, of which the first corresponds with this – cf. also ĀpGS. xxii. 28, 16–18.

BGS. xvi. 91; KGS. xxiii. 5. 16; QGS. xvi. 29. 14–20; ĀGS. x. 3. 21, 22. Its composition is given accurately at the end.

⁶ daçahotram refers to a section preserved in the TĀ. iii. 1; MS. i. 9. 1; QGS. x. 14. 4, MGS. v. 2. 14. 1, beginning cittih svak. The comm. offers two explanations of the name, because the ten things mentioned in it (srugādāt) are the producers of the sacrifice, or because puruṣa who presides over the Mantra was ten times invoked and responded (see TB. ii. 3. 11. 1). For the real signification of the Daçahotārah see Hillebrandt, Ritualliteratur, pp. 165, 166.

who knowing thus sacrifices with (the rite) of ten nights, attains separation from the evil enemy. The sacrifice of ten nights has three eminences [2],¹ the Pañcadaça (Stoma) is one eminence; the Ekavîṅça one eminence, the Trayastrîṅça one eminence. He, who knowing thus sacrifices with (the rite) of ten nights, becomes thrice eminent among his peers. The sacrificer is the Pañcadaça; the sacrificer the Ekavîṅça, the sacrificer the Trayastrîṅça, and the others are the citadels. If a man have witchcraft practised against him, he should sacrifice with (the rite) of ten nights; verily he surrounds himself with the divine citadels; no harm whatever can befall him, the practiser of witchcraft overcomes him not. The gods and the Asuras were in conflict. The gods [3] saw in (the rite) of ten nights the divine citadels. They surrounded themselves with them, no harm whatever befall them; then the gods prospered, the Asuras were defeated. He who has enemies should sacrifice with (the rite) of ten nights; verily he surrounds himself with the divine citadels: no harm whatever befalls him; he prospers and his enemy is defeated. Stoma serves Stoma; verily he makes his enemy his servant. In that they perform the lesser Stoma after performing the greater there is uniformity [4]: to break the uniformity the Agniṣtoma Sāmans² are before and after (the greater Stoma). There is an Agniṣtoma, with the Trivṛt (Stoma), in praise of Agni, with verses addressed to Agni; verily he wins brilliance. There is an Ukthya, with the Pañcadaça (Stoma), and verses addressed to Indra; verily he wins power. There is an Agniṣtoma, with the Trivṛt (Stoma), and verses addressed to the All-gods; verily he wins prosperity. There is an Agniṣtoma, with the Saptadaça (Stoma), and verses addressed to Prajāpati, in which the Soma offering is bitter,³ to win food; verily also by it he is propagated [5]. There is an Ukthya with the Ekavîṅça (Stoma), and verses addressed to the sun, for support; verily he places radiance in himself. There is an Agniṣtoma, with the Saptadaça (Stoma), and verses addressed to Prajāpati, (called) the added oblation;⁴ verily he is invited by all. There are two Agniṣtomas, with the Triṇava (Stoma) on either side (of the Ukthya), with verses addressed to Indra, for conquest. There is an Ukthya, with the Trayastrîṅça (Stoma) with verses addressed to the All-gods, for rest. There is an Atirūtra Viçvajit with all the Pr̄ṣṭhas, for supremacy.

² The Agniṣtoma Sāman par excellence is the Yajñayajñīya based on RV. vi. 48. 1; see SV I. 35 T. 55 Gaya Gāna, I. 2. 25

Uhya Gāna, i. 1. 14.

³ For trivasona see Hillebrandt, Ved. Myth. i. 221.

vii. 2. 6. The¹ seasons, desirous of offspring, could not procure offspring. They desired, 'May we create offspring, may we win offspring, may we procure offspring, may we possess offspring.' They saw this (rite) of eleven nights; they grasped it, and sacrificed with it. Then indeed did they create offspring, win offspring, procure offspring, and possess offspring. They became the seasons, and that is why the seasonal periods are seasonal periods. They are the children of the seasons, and therefore [1] they are said to be connected with the seasons. Those, who knowing thus perform (the rite) of eleven nights, create offspring, win offspring, procure offspring, and possess offspring. There is an Atirātra with the form of light;² verily they place light before them, to reveal the world of heaven. There is a Prsthya Śadaha; the seasons are six, the Prsthas are six; verily by the Prsthas they mount upon the seasons, by the seasons upon the year; verily in the year they find support. There is a Caturviñça;³ the Gāyatrī has twenty-four syllables [2], splendour is connected with the Gāyatrī; verily in the Gāyatrī and in splendour they find support. There is a Catuçatvāriñça;³ the Trisṭubh has forty-four syllables, the Trisṭubh is power; verily in the Trisṭubh and in power they find support. There is an Astācatvāriñça;³ the Jagati has forty-eight syllables, cattle are connected with the Jagati; verily in the Jagati and in cattle they find support. (The rite) is of eleven nights, the seasons are five, the seasonal periods are five; verily in the seasons, in the seasonal periods, and in the year they find support and win offspring. There are Atirātras on either side, to secure offspring.

vii. 2. 7. He⁴ should draw the cup for Indra and Vāyu first if he desire, 'May my offspring accord in order of seniority.' Offspring are in accord according to the arrangement of the sacrifice, and if the sacrifice is dis-

¹ This chapter deals with a R̄tūnām Ekādaçarātra, which is really a Sattra as the comm. points out, and see ApCS. xxiii. 1. 5, 6; BCS. xvi. 32.

² There is an untranslatable play on words here: the Atirātra is a Jyotiṣṭoma day (of the three, Jyotis, Go, and Āyus), and Jyotis means 'light'. Cf. vii. 4. 11; pp. 609, n. 4; 610, n. 8.

³ The Prsthya Śadaha is followed by three Chandomas, the first has a Rathantara Sāman and the Caturviñça Stoma; the second the Brhat and Rathantara Simans, and the Catuçatvāriñça Stoma; the third the Brhat Siman and the Astācatvāriñça Stoma. The different Stomas are described in the PB. iii. 8, 9, 18. The three verses which form the basis are repeated thus, aaa bbbb c (= 8); a bbb cccc (= 8); aaaa b ccc (= 8); then aaa bbb bbb bbb bb c (= 15); a bbb ccc ccc cccc (= 14); aaa aaa aaa aa b ccc (= 15); then aaa bbb bbb bbb bbb bbb c (= 16); a bbb ccc ccc ccc ccc (= 16); aaa aaa aaa aaa b ccc (= 16). These three are called the Chandomas, according to the comm. because they are measured by the metres, Gāyatrī, Trisṭubh, and Jagati.

⁴ This chapter deals with the Dvādaçha but is confined to suggesting differing arrangements of the Grahas or libations. Cf. KS. xxx. 2, 3; KapS. xlvi. 5, 6, and more remotely MS. iv. 8. 9; CB. iv. 5. 9. 1-18. For the Dvādaçha see ApCS. xi. 1-14; BCS. xvi. 1-12; Hillebrandt, Ritualliteratur, pp. 154-157.

arranged, they are at discord. Verily he makes his offspring in accord in order of seniority; the younger does not overstep the older. He should draw the cup for Indra and Vāyu first for one who is ill.¹ For he who is ill is separated from breath, the cup for Indra and Vāyu is breath; verily he unites him with breath. They should draw the cup for Mitra and Varuṇa first if when they are consecrated one die [1]. From expiration and inspiration are they separated of whom when consecrated one dies, Mitra and Varuṇa are expiration and inspiration; verily at the commencement they grasp expiration and inspiration. He should draw the Āçvina cup first who is infirm. The Āçvins² are of the gods those who are infirm, late as it were came they to the front. The Āçvins are the gods of him who is infirm; they lead him to the front. He who desires support having attained prosperity should draw the Çukra³ cup first. The Çukra is yonder sun, this is the end; a man when he has reached the end [2] of prosperity stops; verily from the end he grasps the end, and becomes not worse. He who practises witchcraft should draw the Manthin⁴ cup first. The Manthin vessel is a vessel of misfortune; verily he causes death to seize on him; swiftly does he reach misfortune. He should draw the Āgrayaṇa⁵ cup first whose father and grandfather are holy, and who yet does not possess holiness. From speech and power is he separated whose father and grandfather are holy [3], and who yet does not possess holiness. The Āgrayaṇa (cup) is the breast as it were and the speech as it were of the sacrifice; verily with speech and with power he unites him, then he becomes not worse. He against whom witchcraft is practised should draw the Ukthya⁶ cup first. The Ukthya vessel is the power of all vessels; verily he yokes him with all power. He should take as Puroruc (the verse) 'O Sarasvatī, lead us to prosperity.' Sarasvatī is speech [4]; verily with speech he yokes him. 'May we go not through thee to joyless fields', he says. The joyless fields are those of death; verily he goes not to the fields of death. He should draw full cups for one who is ill. Pain afflicts the breaths of him who is ill, the cups are breaths; verily he frees his breaths from pain, and even if his life is gone, yet he lives. He should draw full cups if rain does not fall. Pain afflicts the breaths of the people if rain does not

² For the inferiority of the Āçvins as being physicians cf. TS. vii. 4. 9. 1, 2.

³ The Çukra and Manthin libations are libations of purified Soma and of Soma mixed with meal respectively. The libations were offered according to the ĀpQS. xii. 14 to Çanda and Marka, and Hillebrandt (Ved. Myth. i. 222 seq.) sees in them the sun (of the sun = Çukra here) and the moon (as the place of the Manes, and Marka = death). Cf. p. 54, n. 8. Bhāsk. gives two renderings acc. as gatāprī means having acquired wealth or having lost it.

⁴ The Āgrayaṇa and Ukthya are normally the opening and midmost cups. The KS. and MS. have Āgrayaṇa throughout.

⁵ Pādas a and d of RV. vi. 61. 14 are meant. In KS. the verse is given in full and with changes. See also TB. II. 4. 1 fall, the cups are breaths; verily he frees the breaths of the people from pain, and rain soon falls.

vii 2. 8. (The¹ cup) for Indra and Vāyu is connected with the Gāyatrī, the opening day is connected with the Gāyatrī, and therefore on the opening day (the cup) for Indra and Vāyu is drawn; verily he draws it in its own abode. The Çukra is connected with the Trīṣṭubh, the second day is connected with the Trīṣṭubh, and therefore on the second day the Çukra is drawn; verily he draws it in its own abode. The Āgrayaṇa is connected with the Jagati, the third day is connected with the Jagati, and therefore on the third day the Āgrayaṇa is drawn; verily he draws it in its own abode. In that it completes the metres, it completes the sacrifice [1], in that the Āgrayaṇa is drawn on the next day, where they have seen the sacrifice, thence does he again employ it. The second three nights begin with the Jagati, the Āgrayaṇa is connected with the Jagati; in that the Āgrayaṇa is drawn on the fourth day, he draws it in its own abode, verily also they revolve round their own metre. (The cup) for Indra and Vāyu is connected with the Rathantara (Sāman), the fifth day is connected with the Rathantara, and therefore on the fifth day [2] (the cup) for Indra and Vāyu is drawn; verily he draws it in its own abode. The Çukra is connected with the Br̥hatī, the sixth day is connected with the Br̥hatī, and therefore on the sixth day the Çukra is drawn; verily he draws it in its own abode. In that it completes the metres, it completes for the second time the sacrifice; in that the Çukra is drawn on the next day, where they have seen the sacrifice, thence does he again employ it. The third three nights begin with the Trīṣṭubh, the Çukra is connected with the Trīṣṭubh [3]; in that the Çukra is drawn on its seventh day, he draws it in its own abode, and they revolve round their own metre. The Āgrayaṇa is speech, the eighth day is speech, and therefore on the eighth day the Āgrayaṇa is drawn; verily he draws it in its own abode. (The cup) for Indra and Vāyu is breath, the ninth day is breath, and therefore on the ninth day (the cup) for Indra and Vāyu is drawn; verily he draws it in its own abode. In that [4] it completes the metres, it completes for the third time the sacrifice; in that (the cup) for Indra and Vāyu is drawn on the next day, where they have seen the sacrifice, thence does he again employ it, and they revolve round their own metre. They go by a trackless way leaving the path who start with anything except (the cup) for Indra and then Çukra, Āgrayaṇa, Aindravāyava, and the tenth day has the Aindravāyava. The three sets each make up a sort of sacrifice while a quasi new sacrifice commences with the next day which is the same as the last day of the sacrifice.

Vâyu. The tenth day is the end of the sacrifice, (the cup) for Indra and Vâyu is drawn on the tenth day; verily having reached the end of the sacrifice [5] they proceed from the trackless way to the path, and it is as when men go pushing on with a strong (team). The metres set their wishes on one another's¹ world, and the gods then interchanged them. The fourth day is the abode of (the cup) for Indra and Vâyu, the Agrayâna is drawn on this (day); therefore (the cup) for Indra and Vâyu is drawn on the ninth day, the abode of the Agrayâna. The fifth day is the abode of the Çukra [6], (the cup) for Indra and Vâyu is drawn on this (day); therefore the Çukra is drawn on the seventh day, the abode of (the cup) for Indra and Vâyu. The sixth day is the abode of the Agraysâna, the Çukra is drawn on this (day); therefore the Agrayâna is drawn on the eighth day, the abode of the Çukra. Verily thus does he exchange the metres, and he who knows thus obtains interchange with the richer;² verily also he causes concord in the sacrifice for the gods. Therefore one gives this to another.

vii. 2. 9. Prajâpati³ desired, 'May I be propagated.' He saw this (rite) of twelve nights; he grasped it, and sacrificed with it. Then indeed was he propagated. He who desires, 'May I be propagated', should sacrifice with (the rite) of twelve nights; verily he is propagated. The theologians say, 'The sacrifices have Agniṣṭomas at the beginning; why then is an Atirâtra first employed?' The two Atirâtras are the eyes of the sacrifice, the two Agniṣṭomas the pupils; if [1] they were to employ the Agniṣṭoma first, they would put the pupils outside; therefore the Atirâtra is employed first; verily having inserted the eyes of the sacrifice they put the pupils in them. He, who knows the Gâyatri to have sides of light, goes to the world of heaven with light and radiance. The sides are the Agniṣṭomas, the eight⁴ Ukthyas in between are the body; verily the Gâyatri has sides of light. He who knows thus goes to the world of heaven with light and radiance [2]. The twelve nights' (rite) is Prajâpati in twelve divisions. The two sides are the Atirâtras,⁵ the eight Ukthyas within are the body; Prajâpati in such guise touches truth with the Sattrâ, truth is the breaths; verily he touches the breaths. Those who perform the Sattrâ perform it with the breath of all people, and therefore they ask, 'Are these performers of a Sattrâ?'⁶ Dear to people and noble is he who knows thus.

² Marriage is meant according to the comm.; the play on vidha is obvious. Below idam is glossed as kanyâkârîyam apatyam.

³ Cf. KS. xxxiv. 8.

⁴ The ten days of the Dvâdaçarâtra are properly two

(1 and 10) in the

Jyotis form, seven Ukthyas, and a Sôdâgañ (4), but the term Ukhya here covers presumably the Sôdâgañ.

⁵ And also, we must with the comm. assume, the Agniṣṭomas, to make up the correct number twelve.

⁶ In

vii 2. 10. This¹ (rite) with a Vaiçvānara² on one side (only) was not able to win the world of heaven; it was stretched upwards and the gods piled round this Vaiçvānara, to overcome the world of heaven. The seasons made Prajāpati sacrifice with it, and in them because of it he prospered. He³ prospers among the priests who knowing thus sacrifices with (the rite) of twelve days. They were desirous of obtaining (their desires) from him. He gave to the spring the sap [1], to the hot season barley, to the rains plants, to autumn rice, beans and sesamum to winter and the cool season. Prajāpati made Indra⁴ sacrifice with it. Then indeed did Indra become Indra; therefore they say, 'It is the sacrifice of the inferior', for he by it first sacrificed. He eats a corpse who accepts a present at a Sattrā; a human corpse or the corpse of a horse.⁵ Food is the cow; in that he does not purify the vessel in which they carry food, filth is produced from it [2]. One should sacrifice by oneself, for Prajāpati prospered by himself. One should be consecrated for twelve nights; the year consists of twelve months, Prajāpati is the year, he is Prajāpati, he is born indeed who is born from fervour. The twelve Upasads⁶ are these four sets of three nights; with the first three he prepares the sacrifice, with the second three he grasps the sacrifice [3], with the third three he cleanses the vessels, and with the fourth three he purifies himself within. He⁷ who eats his victim, ¹ Cf. KS. xxxiv. 11, 12. The chapter seems to be a collection of fragments rather than a consecutive discussion, like several of the chapters in the section TS. v. 5-7. It deals with the question if the rite is to be celebrated as an Ahīna or not.

² This is to show that a final Atirātra is essential.

³ This is adduced by the comm. to show that an Ahīna not a Sattrā is here meant, quoting KGS. xiii. 1. 5: yajata ity ahīnasya.

⁵ The additions puruṣakunapādā ācakunapādā seem meant to distinguish the eating of flesh as a part of the rite and the eating of an abhorrent thing like human or horse flesh, for horse flesh was not a Vedic dish (Oldenberg, Religion des Veda, p. 356, n. 3). The words gaur ādā ānnam seem best taken not as a qualification of this sentence, but as a new paragraph. The comm. quite differently thinks that the food eaten by one who accepts a gift becomes a cow, i.e. his sin is equal to that of eating cow's flesh. But this is hardly Vedic. Bhāsk. sees a reference to the Dakṣinā, the receiver is pātra- sthāṇya, and connects the next clause with it

⁷ This is not easy: the comm. thinks the sense is if a man accepts a gift at a Sattrā, and if he afterwards himself has a Soma sacrifice, then the priest who officiates falls into all these evils. Alternatively the whole refers to a Dyādāgṛha as an Ahīna, where, although there is no prohibition of accepting gifts, as above for a Sattrā, still all these ills accrue and must be atoned for if the sacrifice is carried out. The simpler solution is to adopt the version which assumes a Sattrā to be meant, as above, but to make the subject throughout the priest who accepts, and asya refer to the person from whom he accepts a gift. The KS. does not throw any light on the passage, for it omits the last sentence, but it is note-eats his flesh, who eats his sacrificial cake, eats his brains, who eats his fried grain, eats his excrement, who eats his ghee, eats his marrow, who eats his Soma, eats his sweat, and also he eats the excrements from his head, who accepts (a present) at the twelve-day (rite). Therefore one should not cause one to sacrifice with the twelve-day (rite), to avert evil.

The Sattras

vii. 3. 1. They² go swiftly in that it is the tenth day. In that it is the tenth day they loosen their sins. He who among men going swiftly falls in with a trackless way, he who strikes a post, and he who stumbles, are left out. So he, who on this tenth day, the Avivākyā, comes to grief, is left out. If one points out (an error) to one who comes to grief,³ he seizes hold of him and comes out successfully, and then the one who pointed out (his error) is left out [1]. Therefore on the tenth day, the Avivākyā,

¹ Cf. KSAçvamedha, ii. 10. For the end cf. MS. iii. 12. 8 ; VS. xxii. 84 ; QB. xiii. 2. 1. 6 ; KQS. xv. 4. 83, 84. For the numbers see Vedic Index, I. 342, 848.

² Cf. AR. v. 22, 28; KB. xxvii. 1; FB. iv. 8. 8; 9. 4-12. In this chapter are given certain facts about the tenth day of Sattras. See also ĀpCS. xxi. 9. 1-2 (in 2 vyāha should be read, and is joined to the next Sātra; cf. BQS. xvi. 8).

³ The activa is found in KB. xxvii. 1. The sense is clearly general, 'come to grief', i. e. make an error in recitation or so on.

one should not point out (errors) to one who comes to grief. Or rather they say, 'By that which was successful in the sacrifice the gods went to the world of heaven, and overcame the Asuras by what was unsuccessful.' What is successful in the sacrifice belongs to the sacrificer, what is unsuccessful to his enemy. Now he, who comes to grief on the tenth day, the Avivākyā, produces overmuch. Those who are outside as spectators [2] should point out (his error). If there be none there, then (the error) should be pointed out from within the Sadas. If there be none there, then it should be pointed out by the Gṛhapatī. At any rate it should be pointed out.¹ They sing the verses of the serpent queen on that day. The queen of what creeps is this (earth). Whatever on this (earth) they praise, whatever they have praised, through that is this (earth) the serpent queen. Now whatever they have praised with speech and what they will praise² thereafter, (it is done thinking), 'Having won both and obtained them, let us stop.' They sing these (verses) with the mind. Neither a horse chariot nor a mule chariot can in one moment encompass this (earth), but mind can in one moment encompass it, mind can overcome it. Then they repeat the Brahman.³ The Rc verses are limited, the Sāmans are limited, and the Yajuses are limited, but of the Brahman there is no end, and that he should declare to the one who responds. That is the response.⁴

vii. 3. 2. The⁵ theologians say, 'By the first day of the twelve-day rite what is it that the sacrificer takes from the priests?' 'Brilliance and power' is (the answer). 'What by the second?' 'The breaths and food.' 'What by the third?' 'These three worlds.' 'What by the fourth?' 'Four-footed cattle.' 'What by the fifth?' 'The Pāñkti with its five elements.' 'What by the sixth?' 'The six seasons.' 'What by the seventh?' 'The Çakvarī with its seven feet.' 'What by the eighth?' 'The Gāyatrī with its eight syllables.' 'What by the ninth?' 'The Trivṛt' Stoma.' 'What by the tenth?' 'The Virāj with its ten syllables.'

² The comm. explains atēdhī, the reading of the MSS. and Padapātha and add. sa bhūmer uparī, but a temporal sense seems imperative, and the future significance of arendraḥ is obvious; cf. Macdonell, Yed. Gramm. p. 887; Delbrück, Altind. Synt. pp. 295, 296, 300. The single accent is noteworthy: cf. tatō' dñm in vii. 2. 10. 2.

³ That is the Caturhotṛ, as the AB. v. 23 shows at length, and see ApCS. xxi. 10.

⁴ 6, 7. The *Caturhotṛ*s are said to be brahma in TB. II. 8. 1, and the Mantras are given in TĀ. iii. 1. 2. Cf. Hillebrandt, Ritualliteratur, pp. 165, 166.

⁵ The comm. explains that the *Caturhotṛ*s are the product (harmā) of the action of the Adbharyu in uttering the Pratigārī or response, which in this case by ApCS. xxi. 10. 7 is on. This is practically the sense.

⁶ Not precisely paralleled by the other texts.

⁷ The gen. is of course as below connected with the pronoun, 'what of theirs'.

⁸ The Trivṛt Stoma is a mode of recitation in which the verses are made up by repetition to nine; hence the comparison.

lables.' 'What by the eleventh?' 'The Trīṣṭubh with its eleven syllables.' 'What by the twelfth?' 'The Jagatī with its twelve syllables.' So much is there as that. So much as that he takes from them.

vii. 3. 3. (The¹ rite) of thirteen nights is a complete (rite of) twelve days, for the opening and concluding days are the same.² There are three Atirātras, three are these worlds, for the obtaining of these worlds. The first Atirātra is the expiration, the second cross-breathing, the third inspiration; verily they find support in expiration, inspiration, out-breathing,³ and food, and reach their full life, who knowing thus perform (the rite) of thirteen nights. They say,⁴ '(The rite) of twelve days is the sequence of speech. They would cleave it if they put an Atirātra in the middle, and the speech of the householder would be liable to fail.' They perform the Mahāvrata after the Chandomas; verily they maintain the sequence of speech, and the speech of the householder is not likely to fail. The Chandomas are cattle, the Mahāvrata food; in that they perform the Mahāvrata after the Chandomas, they find support in cattle and in food.

vii. 3. 4. The⁵ Ādityas desired, 'May we be prosperous in both worlds.' They saw this (rite) of fourteen nights; they grasped it, and sacrificed with it. Then indeed they prospered in both worlds, this and yonder. Those, who knowing thus perform (the rite) of fourteen nights, prosper in both worlds, this and yonder. (The rite) is of fourteen nights, there are seven domesticated plants and seven wild; (verily it serves) to win both. In that the Pr̄sthās are performed in succession [1], they conquer by them yonder world. In that the Pr̄sthās are reversed,⁶ they conquer by them this world. There are two Trayastrīṇī Stomas in the middle; verily they attain sovereignty. (These two) are overlords; verily they

² i.e. they are both Atirātras.

³ The change to udāna from vṛḍīna is explained by the comm. on the theory that the latter includes all the other breaths when prāṇa and apāṇa are mentioned. This is ingenious, but the real explanation seems to be some carelessness of expression.

⁴ The absence of it renders the extent of the quotation uncertain.

⁵ A similar Caturdaṣṭātra is laid down in PB. xxiii. 8, followed by ĀpCS. xxiii. 12 seq. It consists of an Atirātra, two Śadahas, the latter reversed, and an Atirātra. So also BCS. xvi. 33.

⁶ That is, the first is marked by the Sāmans, Rathantara, Brhat, Vairūpa, Vairāja, Çākvara, and Raivata; the latter by the Raivata, Çākvara, &c. So the Stomas are Trivṛt, Pañcadaṣṭa, Saptadaṣṭa, Eka-viṇī, Trinava, and Trayastrīṇī, and the same reversed, the two Trayastrīṇīs thus coalescing.

become overlords of their peers. There are Atirātras on either side, for security.

vii. 3. 5. Prajāpati¹ went to the world of heaven. The gods followed him, and the Ādityas and the cattle followed them. The gods said, 'The cattle on which we have lived have followed us.' They arranged this (rite) of fourteen nights away for them.² The Ādityas mounted the world of heaven with the Prsthās; they arranged the cattle in this world with the two Tryahas. By means of the Prsthās the Ādityas prospered in yonder world, the cattle in this world by the Tryahas [1]. Those who, knowing thus, perform (the rite of) fourteen nights, prosper in both worlds, in this and in yonder; by the Prsthās they prosper in yonder world and by the Tryahas in this world. The three days are the Jyotis, Go, and Āyus. The Jyotis is this (earth), the Go the atmosphere, the Āyus yonder (sky); verily they mount upon these worlds.³ If the Prsthās were on one side, there would be a lack of balance;⁴ the Prsthās are in the middle, for balance [2]. The Prsthās are force and strength, verily they place force and strength in the middle. They⁵ proceed with the Brhat and the Rathantara (Sāmans). The Rathantara is this (earth), the Brhat yonder (sky); verily with them do they proceed: verily also in them they find support. These indeed are the quick paths of the sacrifice, verily by them do they proceed to the world of heaven. They⁶ mount the world of heaven turning away (from earth), who perform the Prsthās in succession. The Tryaha is reversed, for the return (from heaven), and for support. Having prospered in either world they cease (the rite). The (nights) are fourteen. As for ten of them, the Virāj is ten-syllabled,

¹ This Caturdaśārātra corresponds with one in PB. xxiii. 4; ĀpCS. xxi. 1, 15, 16, which is used in case of considering one's fitness for a social (talpe), funeral rite (udaka), or marriage connexion (rītāk); on these terms cf. Weber, Ind. Stud. x. 47. The scheme is an Atirātra: a Tryaha in the normal order, Jyotis, Go, Āyus; a Prsthya Śadāha; a Tryaha in reverse order, and an Atirātra. So also BCS. xvi. 83.

² prāty akarā is not quite clear in its first occurrence, and Sāyanā evidently felt this, for he ignores tēbhyaḥ and renders prāty akarā by 'performed'. The sense given above is possible; Bhāsk. has prātyātṛya gatim akurnā. The point is the correspondence of the Tryahas in his view. Below, the constr. is acc. and the sense must be 'pressed back'.

³ Repeated in TS. vii. 4. 1. 1

⁴ vidhā is here explained by the comm. as a kind of piece of wood tied with a rope at both ends for carrying milk or ghee, &c., and the Siddhānta-Kaumudi on Pāṇini, iv. 4. 17, agrees with the definition. The idea is that of something balanced, which will not work if put on one side or the other, but only if kept in the middle. vidhā is the form in PB. iv. 5. 19; xiv. 1. 10; AB. viii. 1; ĀGS. I. 12. 3, &c., and see also AĀ. v. 1. 8, where vidhā is used of the plank of the seat of a swing.

⁵ i.e. the Prsthās Śadāha is distinguished by the alternation of these two Sāmans instead of a series of the usual six, the Rathantara occurring on the first, third, and fifth, the Brhat on the other days. The passage is repeated in vii. 4. 1. 2, &c.

⁶ Repeated in TS. vii. 4. 2. 5 &c.

the Virāj is food; verily by the Virāj they win food. As for four, the quarters are four; verily they find support in the quarters. There are Atirātras on either side, for security.

vii. 3. 6. Indra¹ was on a level with the gods, he was not distinguished from them. He ran up to Prajāpati; he gave him this (rite) of fifteen nights. He grasped it, and sacrificed with it. Then indeed he became distinguished from the other gods. Those who knowing thus perform (the rite) of fifteen nights attain distinction from the evil enemy. The three days² are Jyotis, Go, and Āyus. The Jyotis is this (earth), the Go the atmosphere [1], the Āyus yonder (sky); verily they find support in these worlds. There³ can be no Sattra where there is no Chandoma; in that there are Chandomas, there is the Sattra. The gods they win by the Prsthās, the cattle by the Chandomas. The Prsthās are force and strength, the Chandomas cattle; verily in force and strength, and in cattle, they find support. (The rite) is of fifteen nights; the bolt is fifteenfold; verily they hurl the bolt at their enemies.⁴ There are Atirātras on either side, for securing power.

vii. 3. 7. Indra⁵ was as it were loose and unfixed. He was afraid of the Asuras. He ran up to Prajāpati; he gave him this (rite) of fifteen nights as a bolt. With it he overcame and conquered the Asuras and attained prosperity. By the Agniṣṭut⁶ he burned away the evil, by (the rite) of fifteen nights he placed force, might, power, and strength in himself. Those, who knowing thus perform (the rite) of fifteen nights overcome and conquer their enemies and attain prosperity. By the Agniṣṭut they burn away the evil [1], by (the rite) of fifteen nights they place force, might, power, and strength in themselves. These (nights) are full of cattle. Fifteen indeed are the nights of the half-month, the year is made up of half-months, cattle are born throughout the year; therefore (these nights) are full of cattle. These (nights) are heavenly. Fifteen indeed

¹ The PB. xxiii. 5 and ĀpCS. xxiii. 1. 17, 18 know a third Caturdaçarātra, but it is not mentioned in TS. This chapter gives the first of two Pañcadaçarātras. Then follow in PB. xxiii. 6-9; ĀpCS. xxiii. 2. 1-10 four Pañcadaçarātras, of which the last corresponds to the one here considered, viz. an Atirātra; a Tryaha; ten days of the Dvādaçāha (i.e. a Prsthā Sadāha, three Chandomas, and an Avivākyā), and an Atirātra. But there is no similarity of legend at all. BCS. xvi. 88 recognizes no Caturdaçarātra beyond the first two, but has a Sodācarātra made by adding a rata between the tenth day of the Dvādaçāha and the Atirātra.

⁶ That is a praise of Agni, not an Agniṣṭoma in the 'ritual' sense, for it is an Atirātra.

are the nights of the half-month, the year is made up of half-months, the world of heaven is the year; verily (these nights) are heavenly. There¹ are the three days, Jyotis, Āyus, and Go. The Jyotis is this (earth), the Go the atmosphere [2], the Āyus yonder (sky); verily they mount upon these worlds. If² the Prsthās were on one side, there would be a lack of balance; the Prsthās are in the middle, for balance. The Prsthās are force and strength; verily they place force and strength in the middle. They proceed with the Brhat and the Rathantara (Sāmans). The Rathantara is this (earth), the Brhat yonder (sky), verily with them do they proceed; verily also in them they find support. These indeed are the quick paths of the sacrifice; verily by them do they proceed to the world of heaven [3]. They mount the world of heaven turning away (from earth), who perform the Prsthās in succession. The Tryaha is reversed, for the return (from heaven), and for support. Having prospered in either world they cease (the rite). These (nights) are fifteen. As³ for ten of them, the Virāj is ten-syllabled, the Virāj is food; verily by the Virāj they win food. As for five, the quarters are five; verily they find support in the quarters. There are Atirātras on either side, for securing power, strength, offspring, and cattle.

vii. 3. 8. Prajāpati⁴ desired, 'May I be an eater of food.' He saw this (rite of) seventeen nights; he grasped it, and sacrificed with it. Then indeed he became an eater of food. Those, who knowing thus perform (the rite) of seventeen nights, become eaters of food. There is a period of five days;⁵ the seasons are five in the year; verily in the seasons and the year they find support. Again the Pañkti is of five elements, the sacrifice is fivefold; verily they win the sacrifice. There⁶ can be no Sattrā where there is no Chandoma; in that there are Chandomas, there is the sacrifice. The gods they win by the Prsthās, the cattle by the Chandomas. The Prsthās are force and strength, the Chandomas cattle; verily in force and strength, and in cattle, they find support. (The rite is) of seventeen nights; Prajāpati is seventeenfold;⁷ (verily it serves) to obtain Prajāpati. There are Atirātras on either side, for securing food.

power (Brahman), among the Asuras with food. The gods desired, 'May we acquire both the holy power (Brahman) and food.' They saw (the rite of) these twenty nights. Then indeed they acquired both the holy power (Brahman) and food, and became resplendent and eaters of food. Those, who knowing thus perform (the rite of) these nights, acquire both the holy power (Brahman) and food [1], and become resplendent and eaters of food. They (make up) two Virâjs; verily separately in them they find support. Man is twentyfold, ten fingers and ten toes;¹ verily obtaining the greatness of man they cease (the rite). There² are Tryahas consisting of Jyotis, Go, and Āyus. The Jyotis is this (earth), the Go the atmosphere, the Āyus yonder (sky); verily they mount upon these worlds. The Tryahas go in order;³ verily in order they mount the world of heaven [2]. If⁴ the Prsthâs were on one side there would be a lack of balance; the Prsthâs are in the middle, for balance. The Prsthâs are force and strength; verily they place force and strength in the middle. They proceed with the Brhat and the Rathantara (Sâmans). The Rathantara is this (earth), the Brhat yonder (sky); verily with them do they proceed, verily also in them they find support. These indeed are the quick paths of the sacrifice, verily by them do they proceed to the world of heaven. They mount the world of heaven turning away (from earth), who perform the Prsthâs in succession. The Tryaha is reversed, for the return (from heaven), and for support. Having prospered in either world they cease (the rite). There are Atirâtras on either side, for securing splendour and food.

tra; a Prsthya Sâdaha; three Svarasâmans; a Divâkirtya; three Svarasâmans, a Prsthya Sâdaha reversed, and an Atirâtra. BCS. xvi. 33 calls the seven days the sâmvatsarikâny ahâni.

⁶ The Para Sâman is based on RV. viii 89 5 = SV. ArS. ii. 7; the name Svara is also used, see PB. iv. 5. 1. See for the Sâman as chanted Aranya Gâna, iii. 2. 9, and cf. TS. iii. 3. 6. 1-8, and KS. xxxiii. 4, 6.

⁷ This is, of course, merely the name of a Sâman, with which cf. the Mahâdivâkirtya which is described in GCS. xi. 13. 28 seq. The editor in the Bibl. Ind. calls attention to PB. iv. 6. 12, where the comm. identifies the rtya with the ity adi given in Uthya Gâna, the Para (Sāmans), and with the Prṣṭhas they descended (from heaven). Yonder sun indeed in yonder world is surrounded by the Para (Sāmans) on both sides. In that there are Prṣṭhas the sacrificers go by them to the world of heaven, they surround it from below with the Para (Sāmans), and by the Divākirtya (Sāman) find support [1] in the world of heaven. They surround it from above with the Para (Sāmans), and descend with the Prṣṭhas. If there were not Paras above, they would depart away from the world of heaven; if there were none below, they would burn creatures. There are Parahsāmans on both sides of the Divākirtya; verily they surround them on both sides in the world of heaven. The Divākirtya is the sacrificers, the Parahsāmans the year: the Parahsāmans are on both sides of the Divākirtya; verily on both sides [2] they find support in the year. The Divākirtya is the back, the Parahsāmans the two sides, the Parahsāmans are on both sides of the Divākirtya; therefore the sides are on both sides of the back. (In the rite) the greatest number of libations are made,¹ the greatest number of Castras recited; verily in the middle of the sacrifice they tie a knot not to slip. There are seven libations; seven are the breaths in the head; verily they place breaths in the sacrificers. In that the Prṣṭhas are in succession, they mount upon yonder world with them. If they were not to descend to this world [3], the sacrificers would either go mad or perish. In that the Prṣṭhas are reversed they descend to this world with them; verily also they find support in this world, for sanity. Indra was unsettled. He ran up to Prajāpati; he gave him this (rite) of twenty-one nights; he grasped it, and sacrificed with it. Then indeed he became settled. Those, who sacrifice much and are unsettled [4], should perform (the rite) of twenty-one nights. There are twelve months, five seasons, three worlds here, and yonder sun as the twenty-first. So many are the worlds of the gods; verily in them in order they find support. Yonder sun did not shine.² He ran up to Prajāpati; he gave him this (rite) of twenty-one nights; he grasped it, and sacrificed with it. Then indeed did he shine. Those, who knowing thus perform (the rite) of twenty-one nights, shine also. (The rite) is of twenty-one nights, the Ekavīṇa (Stoma) is radiance; verily they attain radiance, and support also, for the Ekavīṇa is support. There are Atirātras on either side, for securing splendour.

iii. 1. 11-20. SV. ii. 803-5 is given as Mahādivākirtya in Ühya Gāna, ii. 12, and another in Aranya Gāna, vi. 1. 10-19.

¹ There are three extra Atigrāhya libations at this rite, and an extra Castra. The Parahsāmans are days with extra (Para) sāmans.

² Perhaps a reference to an eclipse as said expressly in PB. xxxiii. 16. 1-8; cf. Macdonell, Vedic Mythology, p. 160; Vedic Index, ii. 460.

the usual rivalry of sacrificers; cf. Bloomfield, Religion of the Veda, p. 186.

he verse is badly constructed, but yajñā-pa-malum seems to be the subject, paritram the object of kṛtā, and the rest of the accusatives predicative adjectives. kūśidam may well be rendered 'inert', for its obvious etymology would be kūś-ida.

S gets rid of sara as a voc. by having 'sa' aham and that this is correct is quite certain. But that the TS. meant sara is no doubt the and the rendering

⁵ ipsa hūre must be from hīā, not hu, and mean much the same as ā hūre above. ā gr̄āmī, also in KS., is difficult, the comm. treats it as if it were ā gr̄omī, which will hardly do. Really it is adapted to the next part of the sentence and describes the preparation of the fore- and after-sacrifices, while it must be rendered more generally to cover all the actions meant. svista-kṛtam is also doubtful, but it is most probably equivalent to the offering to Agni Svistakṛt, but it may be simply Svistakṛt, i.e. Agni.

⁶ Probably the sacrifice is the object.

⁷ The change to the gen. is curious, for that the te elsewhere is dat. is most probable. Like all sacrificial verses the sense is not satisfactory

The comm. on TS. explains the first svāhā in any desired sense, and makes it take the place of the verb. On TB. the comm. says it refers to the taking of the oblation, the second to the offering of it, and on this point the comm. on TS. agrees. They differ also in rendering ādham, which the comm. (Bhāskara and Śāyaṇa) on TS. takes as buddhi, the comm. on TB. as Prajāpati. The double svāhās do not occur in VS., and MS. has not the Mantras down to prajāpataye svāhā at all. Bhāskara ascribes the first three Mantras to the Rātriomas in the consecration, and renders either 'Be the intelligence fit for learning', or 'I offer (to) Ādhi for learning'. Eggeling (SBE. xliv. 292) supplies 'we give' in each case. The sense is conjectural.

For Ka cf. Macdonell, Vedic Mythology, p. 119. The form nārāndhisa and accent alike are cf. Wackernagel Akkad. Gramm. II. i. 206, 280

² Of very uncertain sense. Śāyaṇa on TS. is doubtful in sense, for the passage is corrupt (pāparogādibhādham arhanti seems to be the correct version), but evidently he takes it after Bhāsk. as 'those who are to be oppressed'. On TB. the comm. explains as horses, &c., evidently led to this view by khura. In MS. it is not found, but instead piṇivista, while in VS the epithet nibhūyapā occurs here, and piṇivista in the next clause.

⁴ Cf. KSAyamedha, iii. 6; see also VS. xxv. 1-9; above TS. v. 7. 11 seq.; there the Mantras are not given as here but in a Brāhmaṇa. For the Brāhmaṇa see TB. iii. 8. 17 & CR. xi. 3. 4. 1. The Mantras

³ For these colour Dvandva compounds cf. Wackernagel, Añjīnd. Gramm. II. i. 170, 171. Añjī seems to mean 'smooth' or 'glossy' rather than 'white', or as the comm. says below, 'white and black in body.' The comm. glosses añjīsañkhdya as preññānab, which is absurd; Bhāsk. is right. Cf. for the accent Pāṇini, vi. 2. 199.

⁴ The kakud of a horse is a curious idea, probably the ridge of the back is meant.

4. 1. Brhaspati⁴ desired, ' May the gods have faith in me, and may come their Purohita.' He saw this (rite) of twenty-four nights , b

KSAçvamedha, iii. 10. The TB, iii. 8. 17. 4 and ĀpCS. xx. 11. 15 ascribe the Mantras to the offering to the trees ; cf. BCS. xv. 20. The first part is a close imitation of the preceding section.

The explanations of the comm. are useless, for the fact is merely that all sorts of prefixes are used with the one idea, is in the text prārikīdya, but in Weber's extract from the comm. parārikīdya is given, to correspond with the parākīdya above. But the B. I. reads even in the comm. prārikīdya and so Bhāsk.

grasped it, and sacrificed with it. Then the gods had faith in him, and he became their Purohita. In those who knowing thus perform the twenty-four night (rite) men have faith, and they become their Purohitas. There are the three days Jyotis, Go, and Āyus. The Jyotis is this (earth), the Go the atmosphere, and the Āyus yonder (sky) [1]; verily they mount upon these worlds. The three days occur in order; verily in order do they mount upon the world of heaven. There can be no Sattras where there is no Chandoma; in that there are Chandomas, there is the Sattras. The gods they win by the Pr̄sthās, the cattle by the Chandomas. The Pr̄sthās are force and strength, the Chandomas cattle; verily in force and strength, and in cattle they find support. They proceed with the Br̄hat and the Rathantara (Sāmans). The Rathantara is this (earth), the Br̄hat yonder (sky); verily with them do they [2] proceed; verily also in them they find support. These indeed are the quick paths of the sacrifice; verily by them do they proceed to the world of heaven. (The rite is one) of twenty-four nights. Twenty-four half-months make up the year; the year is the world of heaven; verily they find support in the year, the world of heaven. Now the Gāyatrī is of twenty-four syllables; the Gāyatrī is splendour; verily by the Gāyatrī they win splendour. There are Atirātras on either side, to secure splendour.

vii 4. 2. As¹ are men, so were the gods in the beginning. They desired, 'Let us strike off the misfortune, the evil of death, and reach the conclave of the gods.' They saw this twenty-four night (rite); they grasped it, and sacrificed with it. Then they struck off the misfortune, the evil of death, and reached the conclave of the gods. Those who knowing thus perform the twenty-four night (rite) strike off the misfortune, the evil, and win prosperity, for the conclave of the gods is in the case of man [1] prosperity. The Atirātra² is light, for the lighting up of the world of heaven. There is a Pr̄ethya Sadaha. The year consists of six seasons, and, entering it, the months, the half-months and the seasons reached the conclave of the gods. Those who knowing thus perform the twenty-four night rite, entering the year, reach a better station. There are three Trayastrīṅgas before,³ and

² That is the Atirātra, the fourth form of the Jyotiṣṭoma, the typical Ekāha (see Caland and Henry, L'Agnīstoma, p. viii) is in the Jyotis form of Stomas; see p. 608, note 6. There is a play on the name.

³ According to the comm., which follows ĀpCS. xxiii. 4. 2, which is based on PB. xxiii. 19, the rite is composed as follows. (1) a Jyotiṣṭoma Atirātra (Āp. adds catur-

triṇīgā ukhyā dṛambhāṇyās triṇīgā; (2-7) a Pr̄ethya Sadaha, of which the last day is a Trayastrīṅga; (8) a Trayastrīṅga anūrukta; (9) a Trayastrīṅganūrukta; (10-13) Pr̄sthās, viz. a Triṇava, two Ekavīṇgas, and a Triṇava; (14-16) three Trayastrīṅgas, the last of which forms part of the next, and the middle one of which is anūrukta; (16-21) a Pr̄ethya Sadaha reversed; (22) a Triyrti anūrukta; (23) a Jyotiṣṭoma Agniṣṭoma; and (24) an Atirātra.

three Trayastrinças behind; verily with Trayastrinças on either hand they strike off the evil of misfortune and in the middle reach the conclave of the gods [2], for the conclave of the gods is the Pr̄ṣṭhas. There is uniformity in that there are three Trayastrinças in succession, and a break in the uniformity in that there is in the middle one which is not defined.¹ The Pr̄ṣṭhas go onwards, the Chandomas go onwards;² with both forms they go to the world of heaven. There can be no Sattra where there is no Chandoma; in that there are Chandomas, there is the Sattra. The gods they win by the Pr̄ṣṭhas, the cattle by the Chandomas. The Pr̄ṣṭhas are force and strength, the Chandomas cattle [3]; verily in force and strength and in cattle they find support. There are three Trayastrinças before, and three Trayastrinças behind; in the middle there are the Pr̄ṣṭhas. The Trayastrinças are the breast, the Pr̄ṣṭhas the breath;³ verily thus the sacrificers don a protection for the breath, to avoid injury. They proceed with the Br̄hat and the Rathantara.* The Rathantara is this (world), the Br̄hat yonder (world); verily they proceed with them; verily also in them they find support. These indeed are the quick paths of the sacrifice; verily by

But it is very doubtful if the scheme can be found in the Br̄ahmana, which very possibly ran: (1) Atirāṭa; (2-7) Ṣadāha; (8) an anirukta Trayastrinça; (9-14) Pr̄ṣṭhas beginning and ending with a Trayastrinça; (15) anirukta Trayastrinça; (16-21) a Ṣadāha reversed; and then (22), (23), and (24) as above. But no certainty is possible. The three Trayastrinças are the Chandomas referred to below. Cf. BCS. vi. 34. The three Trayastrinças are made up by the last and first days of the Ṣadahas.

¹ A Trayastrinça is nirukta if the Mantras which are sung to it show clearly the deity (spastalīṅgair mantrair gāṇam niruktam) and anirukta otherwise. Cf. ĀĀ. i. 2. 2; Sieg, Die Sagenstoffs des R̄gveda, p. 8, and Macdonell's note on BD. i. 20. The full phrase really is 'which has not the deity defined', but the brachylogy is obvious. Here, however, the term rather refers not to the Trayastrinça, as taken by the comm., but to the whole Pr̄ṣṭhya Ṣadaha, which is not of the ordinary type. Thus Baudh. gives for it the following scheme, reversing the ordinary form: (1) In place of the Trivṛt a Trayastrinça Ukthya, with the Rathantara Sāman, and the Caturviñça for the Pavamānas; (2) in place of the Pañcadaça, a Tripava Ukthya, Br̄hat Sāman, Aṣṭāvinça; (3) in place of the Saptadaça, an Ekaviñça Ukthya, Vairūpa Sāman, Dvātiñça; (4) in place of the Ekaviñça, an Ekaviñça Ukthya, Vairāja Sāman, Saṭtriñça; (5) in place of the Trinava, a Trinava Ukthya, Çākvara Sāman, Catvāriñça; (6) in place of the Trayastrinça, a Trayastrinça Ukthya, Raivata Sāman, Caṭuṣcatvāriñça. This corresponds fairly exactly with the account given in PB. and Āp. as above.

² The sense of urdhvā here (cf. vi. 4. 3. 6) is not free from doubt, but it seems best to follow the comm. in thinking that it refers to the Sāmans of the Stomas, following the usual order Rathantara, Br̄hat, &c., and the Stomas of the Pavamānas on the Chandomas being the Caturviñça, Caṭuṣcatvāriñça, and Aṣṭācatvāriñça. This contradicts the view of the ĀpCS. l.c., but there is no conclusive reason against that. Possibly urdhvā merely means 'subsequent', but that is not very probable. Cf. BCS. l.c. as in note 3, p. 600.

them do they [4] proceed to the world of heaven. They mount the world of heaven turning away (from earth) who perform the Pr̄shas in succession.¹ The six-day (rite) is reversed for the return (from the heaven), and for support. Having prospered in either world they cease (the rite). They go from a Trivṛt to a Trivṛt, for the attainment of the Stomas, for pre-eminence. There is an Agniṣṭoma in the Jyotiṣ form.² This dwelling is this (world); verily by reason thereof they depart not from this dwelling. (The rite is one)³ of twenty-four nights. Twenty-four half-months make up the year, the year is the world of heaven; verily they find support in the year, the world of heaven. Now the Gāyatrī is of twenty-four syllables, the Gāyatrī is splendour; verily by the Gāyatrī they win splendour. There are Atirātras on either side, to secure splendour.

vii. 4. 3. This⁴ (earth) was bare and hairless. It desired, 'Let me be propagated with plants and trees.' It saw these thirty nights. Then indeed it was propagated with plants and trees. Those who desire offspring and cattle should perform (the rite of) these (nights): they are propagated with offspring and cattle. This (earth) was hungry. It saw this Virāj,⁵ and placing it within itself it won food, plants [1], trees, offspring, cattle. Thereby it grew, it attained victoriousness and greatness. Those, who knowing thus perform (the rite of) these (nights), placing the Virāj in themselves, win food, grow great with offspring and cattle, and attain victoriousness and might. There is a Jyotiṣṭoma Atirātra, for the revealing of the world of heaven. There is a Pr̄shya Śadaha. The seasons are six, the Pr̄shas are six; verily by the Pr̄shas they reach the seasons, with the seasons the year; verily in the year⁶ they find support. From the Trayastrīṇī⁷ they go to the Trayastrīṇī⁸, the continuity of the sacrifice. Now the Trayastrīṇī is Prajāpati; verily they seize hold of Prajāpati for support. There is a Trinava, for victory.⁹ There is an Ekavīṇī, for support; verily they place radiance in themselves. There is a praise of Agni with the Trivṛt,¹⁰

² The PB. expressly has Jyotiṣṭoma Agniṣṭoma; ApCS. has Jyotiṣṭoma only. Here the Jyotiṣṭoma designates a particular form of Agniṣṭoma distinguished from the Go and Āyus by its use of the Stomas in the Stotras; see p. 608, n. 6. The last part of the reversed Śadaha is a Trivṛt, and then comes a Trivṛt as the 22nd day.

³ See vii. 4. 1. 8.

⁴ The PB. in xxv. 21-25 gives a series of Sattras intermediate in length between twenty-five and twenty-nine days. In xxv. 26 a thirty-day Sattrā is mentioned, but it is quite different from this one, and ApCS. xxii. 4. 18. 16 follows PB. BGH. xvi. 36 follows 18.

⁷ That is the last day of the Pr̄shya Śadaha when the Trayastrīṇī is the Stoma.

⁸ The name compares TB. i. 2. 4.

verily they burn away evil with it. Now the Trivṛt is brilliance; verily they place brilliance in themselves. There is a praise of Indra with the Pañcadaça, verily they win power (indriyá) [3]. There is a Saptadaça, for the winning of food, verily by it they are propagated. There is an Ekaviñça, for support; verily they place radiance in themselves. There is a Caturviñça. Twenty-four half-months make up the year, the year is the world of heaven; verily they find support in the year, the world of heaven. Now there is the chief (day),¹ and those who knowing thus perform (the rite of) these (nights) become the chief. From the Caturviñça they go to the Prsthās. Verily having found support in the year [4] they attain the gods. From the Trayastrīñça² they go to the Trayastrīñça. The gods are three and thirty;³ verily in the gods they find support. There is a Triñava. The Triñava is these worlds; verily in these worlds they find support. There are two Ekaviñças,⁴ for support; verily they place radiance in themselves. There are many Sodacins, and therefore there are many males among offspring. In that these Stomas are intermingled,⁵ therefore this (earth) is covered with mingled plants and trees [5]. Those who knowing thus perform (the rite of) these (nights) have both offspring and cattle. These go imperfect to the world of heaven, for they resort to various Stomas; in that the Stomas are arranged in order, they go in order to the world of heaven, and there is order in both these worlds. These (nights) are thirty in number, the Virāj has thirty syllables; verily by the Virāj they win food. There are Atirātras on either hand, to secure food.

vii. 4. 4. Prajāpati⁶ went to the world of heaven. But with whatever metre the gods yoked him, they achieved not him. They saw (the rite of) these thirty-two nights. The Anuṣṭubh has thirty-two syllables, Prajāpati is connected with the Anuṣṭubh; verily having gained Prajāpati by his own metre they mounted on him and went to the world of heaven. Those who knowing thus perform (the rite of) these thirty-two (nights)—the Anuṣṭubh has thirty-two syllables, Prajāpati is connected with the Anuṣṭubh—gaining Prajāpati by his own metre, go to prosperity [1], for the world of heaven

The comparison is apparently with the central beam of the roof of a house, or the parting of the hair (cf. Whitney and Bloomfield's notes on AV. ix. 8, 8; Zimmer, Allindischs Leben, p. 151; Vedic Index, ii. 813).

² Again the Trayastrīñça is the last of the Prṣṭha days.

³ For the number, cf. Macdonell, Vedic Mythology, p. 19.

⁴ The comm. here takes the days as 23 and 24, while it is certainly natural to take them as 24 and 25 as does Weber. The vague bhārata below prevents any certainty. Baudh. has four Catusṭoma Stomas in place of (four) Sodacins.

⁶ There are different rites in PB. xxv. 23; ĀpGS. xxiii. 5. 3, 4.

for man is prosperity. These (nights) are thirty-two, the Anustubh has thirty-two syllables, the Anustubh is speech; verily they gain all speech, all become speakers of speech, for all attain prosperity. There¹ are the three days, Jyotis, Go, and Āyus. The Jyotis is this (earth), the Go the atmosphere, and the Āyus yonder (sky); verily they mount upon these worlds. The three days occur in order; verily in order do they mount upon the world of heaven. They² proceed with the Brhat and Rathantara (Sāmans) [2]. The Rathantara is this (earth), the Brhat yonder (sky); verily with them do they proceed; verily also in them they find support. These indeed are the quick paths of the sacrifice; verily by them do they proceed to the world of heaven. Those who perform the three days in succession mount upon the world of heaven turning away (from earth). There is a three-day period reversed,³ for returning (from heaven), and also for support. Having prospered in both worlds they cease (the rite). These (nights) are thirty-two. As for thirty of them, the Virāj has thirty syllables, the Virāj is food; verily by the Virāj they win food. As for the (remaining) two, they are days and nights, and by both forms they go to the world of heaven. There are Atirātras on either side, for security.

vii. 4. 5. There⁴ are two Sattras of the gods, that of twelve days and that of thirty-three days. Those, who knowing thus perform (the rite of) thirty-three days, mount openly upon the deities. As a great man who has reached (the goal) seeks (more), so he does. If he fail he becomes worse; if he fail not, he remains the same.⁵ Those, who knowing thus perform (the rite of) thirty-three days, are distinguished from the evil enemy. The gods in the beginning seized these (nights), sharing the days [1]. One took one day, one another, and with them all equally prospered. Those, who knowing thus perform (the rite) of thirty-three days, all equally prosper, all gain the rank of village chief. There are five day periods;⁶ the year has five ¹ See above, TS. vii. 8. 9. 2; 4. 1. 1. The number of Tryahas is to be nine according to the comm. to make up the required number of days, in this case 27, the scheme being this: (1) Atirātra; (2-28) nine Tryahas; (29-81) a reversed Tryaha; (82) an Atirātra. See EGS. xvi. 35.

² See above, TS. vii. 3. 5. 3; 4. 1. 2; 2. 4. 6.
These are the Sāmans used alternately in the Tryahas.

* i. e. not in the usual order, but as Āyus, Go, Jyotiś.

* In the PB. xxiv. 1-8, ĀpGS. xxiii. 4, 5-11, are described three sets of rites of thirty-three days. The exact composition of this Sutta here corresponds with that of the first one there given, viz. (1) an Atirkatra; (2-16) three Pañcāhas; (17) a Viṣṇujit; (18-22) a Pañcaha; (23-22) a Daśāvara (being, as the other authorities put it, ten days of a Dvādaśā); and (23) an Atirkatra. The place of the last Pañcāha is not, however, certain from the Saṅkhīta, as it might follow the Daśāvara. BCS. xvi. 35 agrees with TS.

The comm. treats this as a naturekatha and it seems the only way to make sense of it. In human affairs greatness cannot be exceeded; a king can fall from his high place, but cannot be more than a king, while sacrificers can gain heaven.

⁴ Probably made up of Jyotia, Go, Ayna, Go,

seasons; verily they rest on the seasons, the year. Again the Pañkti has five syllables, the sacrifice is fivefold; verily they win the sacrifice. There are three (days with the) Āçvina (Castra);¹ three are these worlds; verily in these [2] worlds they find support. Again three are the powers of the sacrifice; verily they win them. There is a Viçvajit (day), for the winning of food. It has all the Pr̄sthas,² for the conquest of all. The twelve-day (rite) is speech. If they were to perform the twelve-day (rite) before (what has already gone), they would perform speech imperfectly, and their speech would be likely to fail. They perform the twelve-day (rite) afterwards; verily they perform speech perfectly, and therefore we utter speech from above.³ Intermediately indeed [3] by means of a ten-nights' (rite) did Prajāpati create offspring. In that there is a ten-nights' (rite), the sacrificers create offspring. Udañka Caulbayana has declared the ten-night rite to be the prosperity of the Sattra. In that there is a ten-nights' rite, (it serves) for the prosperity of the Sattra. Verily also whatever is wrongly done in the former days, it serves to atone. These nights form two rows, the sacrificers are the Viçvajit, the first are sixteen with the Atirātra, the second are sixteen with the Atirātra. To those, who knowing thus perform (the rite) of thirty-three days, are born children in two rows.⁴ There are Atirātras on either side, for security.

vii. 4. 6. The⁵ Ādityas desired, 'Let us go to the world of heaven.' They discerned not the world of heaven, they went not to the world of heaven. They saw this (rite) of thirty-six nights; they grasped it, and sacrificed with it. Then indeed did they discern the world of heaven, and went to the world of heaven. Those, who knowing thus perform (the rite) of thirty-six nights, discern the world of heaven, and go to the world of heaven. The Atirātra is light [1]; verily they put light before them, to reveal the world of heaven. There are Śadahas; six are the seasons; verily in the seasons they find support. There are four (Śadahas); four are the quarters; verily in the quarters they find support. There⁶ can be no Sattra where there is no Chandoma; in that there are Chandomas, there is the Sattra. The gods they win by the Prsthās, the cattle by the Chandomas. The Prsthās are force and strength, the Chandomas cattle; verily in force [2] and strength they find support. (The rite has) thirty-six nights; the Br̥hatī has thirty-six syllables, cattle are connected with the Br̥hatī.¹ verily by the Br̥hatī they win cattle. The Br̥hatī obtained the sovereignty over the metres. They obtain sovereignty who knowing thus perform (the rite) of thirty-six nights, verily they go to the world of heaven. There are Atirātras on either side, for the securing of the world of heaven.

vii. 4. 7. Vasiṣṭha,² his sons slain, desired,³ ‘May I win offspring, and defeat the Saudāsas.’ He saw this (rite) of forty-nine nights; he grasped it, and sacrificed with it. Then indeed did he win offspring and defeated the Saudāsas. Those, who knowing thus perform (the rite) of forty-nine nights, win offspring and defeat their enemies. There are three Agniṣṭomas with the Trivṛt; verily they sharpen the point of the bolt.⁴ There are ten Pañcadaças; the bolt is fifteenfold [1]; verily they take away the bolt from their rivals.⁵ The tenth day has a Sodācin; verily they place strength in the bolt. There are twelve Saptadaças, to win food; verily also they are propagated by them. There is a Prsthya Śadaha. Six are the seasons, six the Prsthās; verily by the Prsthās they mount upon the seasons, by the seasons upon the year; verily in the year they find support. There are twelve Eka-viṇas, for support; verily they place radiance in themselves [2]. There are many⁶ Sodācins, for conquest. There are six (days) with the Āçvina (Castral), six are the seasons; verily they rest on the seasons. These nights are deficient and redundant. They are deficient in that they are fifty less one, redundant in that they are (one) more than forty-eight. Both from the deficient, indeed, and from the redundant Prajāpati was propagated.⁷ Those who desire offspring and cattle should perform (the rite of) these nights; verily are they propagated with offspring and cattle. This sacrifice is connected with the Virāj because it is one of forty-nine (nights). Those, who knowing thus perform (the rite) of forty-nine nights, attain the Virāj, and become eaters of food. There are Atirātras on either side, for the securing of food.¹ vii. 4. 8. Those² who are about to consecrate themselves for the year (rite) should consecrate themselves on the Ekāṣṭakā.³ The Ekāṣṭakā is the wife of the year; on that night he dwells with her; verily they consecrate themselves grasping openly the year. Those who consecrate themselves on the Ekāṣṭakā consecrate themselves in the troubled part of the year, for then are the two months called the end.⁴ Those who consecrate themselves on the Ekāṣṭakā consecrate themselves on the torn part of the year, for them are the two seasons called the end. They should consecrate themselves on the full moon in Phalgunī.⁵ The full moon in Phalgunī is the beginning of the year [1]; verily they consecrate themselves grasping the year at its beginning. To that there is this one objection that the Viśuvant day falls in the cloudy season. They should consecrate themselves on the full moon in Cītra. The full moon in Cītra is the beginning of the year; verily they consecrate themselves grasping the year at the beginning. In that there is no objection at all. They should consecrate themselves on the fourth day before the full moon.⁶

² PB. xxiv. 11-17 and ĀpCS. xxiii. 7 give seven kinds of forty-nine night rites, but none absolutely correspond with this. It is, in Weber's view, composed as follows: (1) an Atirātra; (2-4) three Agniṣṭomas; (5-13, 15) ten Pañcadaças; (14) a Sodāpin; (16-27) twelve Saptadaças; (28-33) a Prsthya Śadaha; (34-45) twelve Eka-viṇas; (46-48) Sodācins; (49) an Atirātra. BCS. xvi. 37, agreeing with ĀpCS. xxiii. 7. 8, has (1) Atirātra; (2-4) three Agniṣṭomas; (5) Atirātra; (6-13, 14) ten Pañcadaças; (15) a Sodāpin; (16) an Atirātra; (17-28) twelve Saptada-

² There is a parallel passage to this in PB. v. 9, and some parallelism in KB. xix. 2, 3. The evidence of these passages has been repeatedly discussed in connexion with the question of the Vedic dates; see Weber, Nazatra, ii. 341 seq.; Thibaut, Ind. Ant. xxiv, 89 seq.; Vedic Index, i. 420-427; Whitney, JAO xvii. lxxxvi seq.

⁶ According to the comm. if one begins with the full in there are twelve Dīkṣā days and twelve Upasads, so that the rite of a year's duration begins on the ninth of the bright half of Caitra, and the Viśuvant on the ninth of the bright half of Āṣāḍyauja, which is just on the verge of the rainy season. If Cītra is taken as the starting-point the Viśuvant falls on the ninth of the bright half of Kārttika, and that is not near the rainy season. But the terminus chosen is the fourth day before the full moon of Māgha (so the comm. Bhāskara and Sāyaṇa), i.e. the eleventh of the bright half of Māgha. The twelve Dīkṣās then end on the seventh of the dark half, the twelve Upasads on the fourth of the bright half of Caitra, and the Sutyā on the fifth, and all the months of the sacrifice end on the bright half. That Māgha is meant, not Caitra, is supported also by KCS. xiii. 1. 8-10, where Māgha is definitely mentioned. It was also the view of Āçmarathya, see ApCS. xxi. 15 6, while Alekhana preferred Caitra, and so the comm. on PB. v. 9. 12; cf. Weber, p. 843, n. 1. All the probabilities tell not in favour of Māgha (which is adopted also by Jaumini, vi. 5 50-57 and Tilak

Then the buying (of the Soma) falls for them on the Ekāṣṭakā; verily they do not waste¹ the Ekāṣṭakā. In their case [2] the pressing-(day) falls on the first half (of the month), the months end in the first half, they complete (the rite) in the first half, and when they complete the rite the plants and trees come out after them. And after them follows the fair report, 'These sacrificers have succeeded', and therefore all succeed.

vii 4. 9. They² go to the world of heaven who perform the Sattras. They kindle themselves with the Dikṣas,³ and cook themselves with the Upasads. With two they cut off their hair, with two their skin, with two their blood, with two their flesh, with two their bones, with two their marrow. In the Sattras the self is the sacrificial gift; verily taking the self as the gift they go to the world of heaven. They cut off the top-knot, for prosperity, (thinking), 'More swiftly may we attain the world of heaven.'

vii. 4. 10. The⁴ theologans say, 'The Atirātra is the highest of the forms of sacrifice. Why do they perform it first?' Now in doing so⁵ they really perform in order first the Agnistoma, then the Ukthya, then the Śodacīn, then the Atirātra, all the forms of sacrifice, and seizing and holding them, they keep drinking the Soma. They perform the Jyotiṣṭoma⁶ first; the Jyotiṣṭoma is the beginning of the Stomas; verily they commence the

¹ op. cit. pp. 44–62) but in favour of Caitra, as accepted by Weber, Whitney (p. xci) and Thibaut. The version of the comm. assumes that the purchase of the Soma falls on the thirteenth day (= first Upasada day) after the Dikṣa, and the Ekāṣṭakā must mean that of Māgha, but for this there is no cogent authority (cf. Eggeling, SBE. xxvi. 105, 442), and the text naturally means either that the purchase takes place on the Ekāṣṭakā of Caitra and the Dikṣā four days before full moon (Ekāṣṭakā being used not technically of Māgha, but as the first Aṣṭaka of the year; Vedic Index, II. 157–8). BCS. vi. 18 gives as variant the fourth day before the full moon of Māgha, Phālguni, or Caitra.

² In PB. the form is chātrā; iv. 10. 4; v. 9. 18, and so in the Gāṇa cōd. But cf. the interjection ba in the RV.; Macdonell, Ved. Gramm. p. 482; BCS. vi. 18 has chambat.

⁴ The Dikṣa or — is held by Hillebrandt (Ved. Myth. I. 452 seq.) to have been a preparation for a suicide by fire as a religious act—such as is recorded of the later Indians. But this is not probable. Oldenberg (Rel. des Veda, pp. 398 seq.) regards it as a magic rite intended to place the worshipper in communication with the divine essence, and this is no doubt correct; cf. also ZDMG. xlvi. 176. For the rite itself cf. OB. III. 1. 1. 1; iv. 6. 8; Lundner, Die Dikṣa (Leipzig, 1878); Hillebrandt, Ritualliteratur, p. 125; Caland and Henry, L'Agnistoma, pp. 17 seq.

⁵ Cf. KS. xxiii. 2.

⁶ i.e. the Atirātra which has twenty-nine Stomas includes all the rest, the Agnistoma with twelve, the Ukthya with fifteen, and the Śodacīn with sixteen. The answer is very condensed, but intelligible.

Stomas from the beginning [1]. The Stomas being sung together make up the Virāj,¹ and two verses are redundant; the Gostoma has one too many, and the Āyuṣṭoma one too few. The Jyotiṣṭoma is the world of heaven, the Virāj is strength; verily by it they go to the world of heaven. 'The Rathautara is used in the day, the Rathantara at night', say the theologians, 'what is used to avoid repetition?' The great Sāman of Sobhari is used as the Brahmasātman² at the third pressing; if they place in the middle, to separate them; verily there is no repetition.

vii. 4. 11. They³ first perform the Jyotiṣṭoma;⁴ verily by it they find support in this world. They perform secondly the Gostoma, verily by it they find support in the atmosphere. They perform thirdly the Āyuṣṭoma, verily by it they find support in yonder world. The Jyotis is this (earth), the Go the atmosphere, and the Āyus yonder (sky). In that they perform these Stomas, the performers of the Sattra keep finding support in these worlds. These⁵ (Stomas) being sung together make up the Virāj [1], and two verses are redundant; the Gostoma has one too many, and the Āyuṣṭoma one too few. The Jyotiṣṭoma is the world of heaven, the Virāj is strength, verily they win strength. They experience not misery through hunger, and are not hungry, for the performers of Sattras are as it were afflicted with hunger. The two Agniṣṭomas⁶ on either side are the rims, the Uktiyas in the middle the nave, and that is the circling wheel of the gods. In that they go [2] by that Sañaha,⁷ they mount the wheel of the gods, for safety. They obtain prosperity. They go with the Sañaha; there are six seasons; verily in the seasons they find support. They go with a Jyotiṣṭoma on either hand, verily on either hand they find support in the world of heaven. There are ¹ i.e. the total is a multiple of ten for which the Virāj is normally the symbol. The comm. explains te as प्रतिषेधः but the sense clearly is that the whole of the three make up a multiple of ten, the Jyotis itself being a multiple of ten, and the other two respectively having one verse too many (241) and one too few (259). atritrīyē is strictly incorrect, but quite obvious.

² The Sāman corresponding to the Ṣastrā of the Brāhmaṇādachāhāśin.

³ Cf. KS. xxxiii. 3; AB. iv. 15, 16, where the parallelism is very close. This chapter describes the months of the Sattra.

⁴ The Jyotiṣṭoma in this sense (vii. 4. 10, n. 6) is an Agniṣṭoma, while the Go and Āyuṣṭomas are Uktiyas, i.e. the former has twelve, the two latter fifteen Stotras.

The comm., mindful of TS. vii. 4. 10. 1, thinks it necessary to explain that there the Jyotiṣṭoma takes the form of an Atiratra, but not here. Cf. p. 577, n. 2.

two Śadahas, they make up twelve days. Man is of twelve parts, two thighs, two arms, the trunk and the head, four members, and the breasts as the eleventh and twelfth¹ [3]. Therefore (the days) follow man. There are three Śadahas, they make up eighteen days, nine and nine. Nine are the breaths in man; verily they follow the breaths. There are four Śadahas, they make up twenty-four days. The year consists of twenty-four half-months; verily they follow the year. 'The year is not fixed', they say. 'It is greater than a support.'² The Brāhmaṇa of the month is that of the year also, verily they go finding support in each month.³

² Or 'too great for a support'; Bhāsk. gives both versions. The answer in the last sentence seems to be that what is said of the month applies still more to the year, each month being governed by the rule for one.

³ The Sātra as here contemplated, the Gavāṁ Ayana, is thus made up according to BCS. xvi. 14, 15:

1 Caturvīṅča Uktiyā;

4 Abhiplava Śadahas (arranged as Jyotiṣṭoma, Gostoma, Āyustoma, Gostoma, Āyustoma, Jyotiṣṭoma, the first and last being Agniṣṭomas, the rest Uktiyas), Rathantara on uneven, Br̥hat on even days for the Pr̥ṣṭha Stotras);

CB. xiii. 2. 7. 8; KQS. xx. 6. 7) the first Mantra is the apāryahonamantra, apārya being explained as aya-arya 'needing no help'. It is used at the going round the victim with fire; cf. BQS. xv. 28. The second Mantra is used as the wives of the king go round the horse; see TB. iii. 9. 6. 1 and ĀpCS. xx. 17. 18. Possibly BQS. gives a better idea of apārya as it follows the carrying round of the fire by the sending away of the two sheep mentioned in TS. v. 6. 21; cf. ĀpCS. xx. 17. 5.

is singular because each wife utters the same Mantra.

Cf. KSAqvamedha, iv. 3; VS. xxii. 25.

The Māntas are part of the offerings to the waters. Cf. also TE. iii. 8. 18. 1-3. parvāhanīkhyah refers, according to the comm., to such things as devatās or whirl-pools.

gīham the comm. take as gobhanam, 'beautifully', but it is merely a synonym of gīgram; cf. TS. v. 6. 1 f.

As in the case of waters flowing from a hill (Sāyana); udgīrṇam (Bhāsk.).

The comm. interprets this as referring to waters in which wild beasts like makaras or dolphins are seen.

ambhas, nibhas, and māhas seem clearly to be used as technical terms for the three kinds of waters; see TE. l. c.

Cf. KSAqvamedha, iv. 4, and for the first verse MS. iii. 12. 1; VS. xxii. 5. According to ĀpCS. xx. 3. 12 seq. the first Mantra is used to accompany the slaying of a dog or dogs (the MSS. have pūnāk or pūnasa; probably the former is a mistaken correction of the irregular second form) by a son of a Hetaira (paunculaya), while with the second the Adhvaryu takes the hand of the — and with the third the — speaks. The of the first is given in KCS. xx. 1. 38-2. 2, and cf. ČB. xiii. 1. 2. 9 with Eggeling's note; TB. iii. 8. 4. 1-3; EGS. xv. 5, 6, who ascribes the taking of hands to the sacrificer and the Brahman.

* According to the comm. yī applies to the dog which wishes to slay the horse. But this is very unlikely. It makes the comm. take the last Pūda as meaning 'let this dog go and die'. It is curious that the comm. on TB. i. c. interprets the Sūtra (presumably ĀpCS. as usual) as referring the words parī mārīkā pārī mād, which according to Āp. accompany the casting of the dog below the horse (i.e. the sense is: 'Down with the man who would injure the horse just as this dog is cast down below the horse'), to the spots on the dog which with its two eyes make it a 'four-eyed' dog. But there is no trace of this. Cf. Eggeling, SBE. xliv. 279, n. 1.

* This is RV. viii. 62. 11, where, however, there is yajyāra for the unnatural babbhaṇa—clearly a ritual alteration—and mārīkā for mārīkāt (for which cf. Macdonell, Vedic p. 380 n. 8). KS has arka-

4. 16. Homage² to the king !

Homage to Varuṇa !

Homage to the horse !

Homage to Prajapati !

Homage to the overlord !

Thou art an overlord ; make me an overlord : may I be overlord of creatures.

Place me, place in me.³

To him that is driven near hail !

To him that is taken hold of hail !

To him that is sacrificed hail !

4. 17. a Let⁴ the healing wind blow upon our cows,

Let them feed on strengthening herbs ;

Let them drink waters full of life and fatness ;

Rudra, be gracious to the food that hath feet.⁵

b Those which are of one, of various hues, or of like hue :

Those whose names Agni knoweth by sacrifice :

Those which the Āṅgirases made here by devotion,

To those, O Parjanya, grant abundant protection.

c Those who offered to the gods their bodies ;

Those whose every form Soma knoweth ;

O Indra [1], place them in our pastures,⁶

Swelling with milk and rich in offspring.

d Prajapati, bestowing these on me,

In harmony with all the gods⁷ and Pitrīs,

Hath brought them, auspicious, to our pastures.

May we possess⁸ their offspring.

This is exactly RV. vii. 21. 6.

f. KSAyvamedha, iv. 5. The Brāhmaṇa explanation is given at TB. iii. 8. 18. 3 ; 9. 16. 1, 2. The Mantras except the last three are used to accompany the Yavya-homa, while the last three are uttered to accompany the acts denoted ; see ĀpCS. xx. 12. 11; 13. 1; 15. 6. In BCS. xv. 86 they accompany ten Vāruṇāni offered after the second Avabhrta libation ; in 37 as Yavyāni they precede the offering to Svistakṛt in the cake offering in the animal sacrifice.

he comm. renders this as referring to overlordship, but the comm. on TB. iii. 9. 16. 3 that it place me on this rite and place in me the fruit of this rite', which is certainly improbable

* Cf. KSAyvamedha, iv. 6. The Brāhmaṇas is TB. iii. 8. 18. 3. The Mantras accompanying the oblation are called Gavya see ĀpCS. xx. 12. 2; BCS. xv. 37.

⁵ The verses are RV. x. 109. 1-4 without variant.

⁶ gṛghā is more general than merely 'stall' or gopūla as the comm. takes it ; see Veda Index, i. 240; ii. 416.

⁷ Or with the 'All-gods'. The sense is not certain.

⁸ sim sadama suggests the easy variant madama which the MS. C actually reads.

 12-22. In the ritual the riddle (brahmodya) is spoken by the Hoty who asks the questions and the Brahman priest who replies, the former being at the north, the latter at the south of the Agnistha, the sacrificial post in the middle of the twenty-one such posts; see AÇQS.
 xx. 19. 6, 7, and cf. BQS. xv. 28, 29;
 MQS. ix. 2. 3; KQS. xx. 5. 20-22; 7. 10-15; QCS. xvi. 5. 1-6; ACS. x. 9. 1-3;
 LQS. ix. 10. 8-14. For the brahmodya cf.
 Bloomfield, Religion of the Veda, pp. 216 seq.
 MS. and VS. xxiii. 91 and 58 differ in having hāvī avid with the feminine sub-stantives. KS. has bṛhadrayah, probably a mere error. Mahidhara on VS. xxiii.
 11 takes vāyāh as 'bird', but this is improbable, and Harisvāmin on QB. xiii. 2.
 6. 15 renders it vārdhahum, 'long life';
 see Eggeling, SBE. xliv. 815, n. 1.

KS., MS., and VS. agree in inverting the order of the last two Pādas of this stanza.
Q. is to interpret TB. iii. 9 5. 3 and QB. xiii. 2. 6. 16 it as grīh, and the comm. on TS. explains it also as grīh because it 'helps (avah) all living creatures'. Bhāsk. has an alternative vyādhī. Mahidhara, on VS. xxiii. 12, thinks that avīk, 'gentle', is an epithet of the earth, and interprets grīh in the QB.

 as referring to the earth; and pīḍīḍī he interprets as 'slippery', as applying to the earth after rain (perhaps from apī, 'smear'). Harisvāmin also thinks avīk and grīh apply to the earth, while pīḍīḍī he considers onomatopoeic (rūpānukaranaqabda) in the sense of 'beautiful', or 'shining'. Cf. Eggeling, SBE. xliv. 816. pīḍīḍī is explained by Mahidhara as pīḍān-gīḍā, 'beauty devouring', but pīḍāgīḍā,
 'ruddy brown', suggests the real sense.
 The comm. here and on TB. prefer to see in it the sense of 'very beautiful', because of the moon and the Nakṣatras! Bhāsk. has vyāmigrāḍīḍā. QB. xiii. 2. 6. 17 takes 'night and day' as the two pīḍīḍī, which is curious.

² KS., MS., and VS. agree in exchanging the places of the Pādas b and d. VS. and QB. xiii. 2. 6. 18 have kim u and MS. ku u atidipanash, which probably stands for kim u (Bloomfield (Vedic Concordance, p. 326^b) says for kim, but this is not likely).

d The sun moveth alone [1].

The moon is born again.

Fire is the remedy for the cold.

Earth is the great enveloper.¹

e I ask thee of the furthest end of the earth.

I ask thee of the navel of the world.

I ask thee of the seed of the strong horse.

I ask thee of speech's highest realm.²

f They call the altar-ground the furthest end of the earth.

They call the sacrifice the navel of the world.

They call Soma the seed of the strong horse.

(They call) the Brahman the highest realm of speech.³

ii. 4. 19. a O Ambā!⁴ O Ambāli! O Ambikā!⁵

b No one leadest me.

The wicked horse is sleeping.

c O fair one, clad in fair raiment⁶ in the world of heaven be ye two covered....⁷

This is without variant in KS., MS., and VS., showing that in the preceding verse the interchange of Pādas is a slip.

This is RV. i. 164. 34; AV. ix. 10. 18, with slight variations in Pāda b, where RV. has yatra bhūvanasya nābhīḥ, and AV. vīpasya bhūvanasya nābhīm, while AV. inverts the order of b and c, and spoils the metre by omitting śū before vīśo. VS. xxiii. 61 agrees with RV., and KS. with TS. MS. has not the verse. It is found in LGS. ix. 10. 18 with the curious change prahāmo.

TS. and KS. here differ from the other texts, while MS. has nothing corresponding. RV. i. 164. 35 has iyām vīdih param antam prthivyāḥ | ayām yajñō bhūvanasya nābhīḥ | ayām sōmo vīśo dīpasya rētāḥ | brahmāyām vācdh paramām tyoma. || VS. xxiii. 62 and LGS. ix. 10. 14 agree, while AV. ix. 10. 14 inverts b and c, and in the latter has vīpasya, omitting yajñō.

Cf. KSAgamedha, iv. 8; MS. iii. 12. 20; 13. 1; VS. xxiii. 18-32. For the Brahmanas see TB. iii. 9. 6. 3-7. 5; CB. xiii. 2. 8. 8-9. 9. The Mantras are used to accompany the rite in which the king's first wife lies down beside the horse as a spell for fertility; see ĀpCS. xx. 17. 12 seq.; BCS. xv. 29, 30; MGS. ix. 2. 4; KGS. xx. 6. 12-21; GGS. xvi. 3. 34-4. 6; ĀGS. x. 8. 9-13; LGS. ix. 10. 1-4. The division of the verses is Ap ascribes a to the wife (b included); e to her; c (with d?) to the priest; f to him, then g and h to the queen. For Baudh see below.

⁵ VS. xxiii. 18 has āmbe āmbikē 'mbalike; MS. iii. 12. 20 āmby āmbike ambalike. The formula is said while the Unnetr or Pratiprasthātṛ (KGS. xi. 6. 12; ĀpCS. xx. 17. 12) or Adhvaryu (BCS. xv. 29) leads the wife of the king up to fan the slain horse, and she lies down. If this is so the words mean no more than 'lady' (literally 'mother'). Bhāsk. takes a and b as said to herself by the wife. But the number three is curious and there seems force in Weber's view (Ind. Stud. i. 183) that the three minor queens are so ad dressed by the Mahisi. The next words may then refer to the queen as willing to go, 'no one leads me (against my will)', and this is in harmony with the common view that a victim should offer itself willingly. Cf. Eggeling, SBE. xliv. 322. But the later verses with yābhāt suggest that it merely means 'no one is taking me' (as a bride). The verse is not said by the Adhvaryu; Caland's punctuation in BCS. is wrong.

⁶ The VS. and MS. have quite a different reading, sibhadrikāḥ kāmpilārdśinim, which must go with the preceding verse, and can only be rendered 'Subhadrika'

- l* When the deer eateth grain
He deemeth not his flock fat.

dwelling in Kāmpila', as Weber takes it, cf. also Vedic Index, i. 149; Bhāsk. gives both versions. The reading of TS. is also that of KS., TB., and ĀpCS. and BCS., and kāmpilavānum must refer to some sort of garment with which the queen is covered as the ritual indicates (tarpaṇa) ; cf. kombala. The Mantra is used while the priest covers the queen and the horse. With d the queen takes on her lap the peṛka, and says e; f is said by the Adhvaryu as is also g; h by the queen; i by the sacrificer, k by the queen, according to Baudh. The next verses are hardly translatable. See Eggeling, SBE. xliv. 323 seq. The Sūtras recognize the obscenity of the passage : the queen is reluctant and complains, he comm. evidently does not understand this passage, the sense must be that if a wild deer eats the corn, the flocks or herds are not fattened. The subject of māṇye is uncertain : according to Eggeling (SBE. xliv. 326), following the comm., it is the deer (harī in VS. xviii. 30), but it may be the owner. pāṇi is a curious neuter, but is protected by the metre : the sense is perhaps contemptuous ; cf. St Petersburg Dictionary, s. v., and above, TS. v. 1. 5, n. 1. The sense of nā pāṇya dhānyati is vague : the subject may be she as taken by the Sbs. is delighted in her master, and takes no thought of wealth. Eggeling prefers the view that the Aryan (taken by CB as Vārya) is the subject ; or again the Cūdrā may be the subject, but this is not probable. On any theory it is difficult to see much point in the verse. Bhāsk. gives a series of guesses. Baudh. puts it in the mouth of the Vāvītā ; the queen replies with m.

¹⁰ For this cf. Eggeling, SBE. xliv. 386. The verses (a and c) are alternately spoken by the Parivṛkti wife and the Mahī, who complains or grumbles at the horse, who lies asleep and does not unite with her. On the other hand Āp. ascribes i, l, m (and o?) to the wives, the Mahī making the responses.

¹³ Cf. Eṣāgvamadhu, iv. 9 ; MS. iii. 12. 18, 19 ; VS. xxiii. 5. 8. For the Brāhmaṇa explanations see TB. ii. 9. 4. 1-8 - CB. xii. 2. 6. 1-8. In the ritual Mantras panies the fastening of māṇī of gold, silver, and sāmudra, on the horse by the Mahīṣī, Vāvāth, and Parivṛktī respectively, the places being before the place where the yoke rests, below that and the buttocks, and below the buttocks. Mantra b is said to accompany the anointing of the horse with substances of bdelium, of kasāmbī (cf. AV. xviii. 4. 37, which is partly explained by this), and of maustakṛta (unknown sense). Mantra c accompanies the leading round of the horse after it has tasted water. Mantras d and e are used when the wives cast down the remains of the food offerings to the horse. Mantra f accompanies the yoking of the horse, g of two side horses, and h the fixing of the flag of the car; see ĀpCS. xx. 15. 6-13; 16. 19, 20; 16. 1-8, and cf. MCS. ix. 2. 3; KCS. xx. 5. 10-18; BGS. xv. 24 (c, f-h), 26 (d, e). S. and VS. agree in reading āgarīgan, grīḍām indrasya, and anoma in place of the text of TS. and KS. āgamat is not satisfactory, for the sense is really past rather than proximate past. are again TS. and KS. differ from MS. and VS., which omit yāye māndīm and have yāye gāye and transpose devāḥ and is content to see in the words lājīn and cācīn accusatives, and so CB. xiii. 2. 6. 8, but here at any rate they are vocatives with the double accent of Pluti; see Whitney, JAOS. ix. 323, 324. MS. in von Schroeder's ed. has lājī 3 and cācī 8, which seem rather to be slips for lājīñ and cācīñ. Bhāsk. has māmā 4m. The forms gāryāyai and gāryāyat may, of course, have ablative sense as well as dative, and this would suit the context quite adequately.

³ The exact sense of this verse, RV. i. 6. 1, is very obscure. See Oldenberg, Rgveda-Noten, i. 4 seq., who differs considerably from Max Müller, SBE. xxxii. 14 seq. The form tasthūṣuh is clearly accus., not nom. or abl.; cf. Macdonell, Ved. Gramm. pp. 285, n. 20; 296, n. 7; Whitney, PAOS. May, 1876, pp. xxi, xlii.

⁴ This is RV. i. 6. 2. The view of ApCS. xx 16. 1, 2, is that there are four steeds, the horse being on the right side of the pole. But three seems a more likely number in every way. BGS. xv. 24 and xi. 6 seems to regard the first horse as the dakṣinayoga, the other two as the uttarayoga, left of which (uttarataḥ) the Prasīti is placed. This assures that the Prasīti was not a 'spike horse' in this case; cf. Vedic Index, II. 515 is very unlikely that the original reference is to the raising of a banner, but it is clearly so understood by TB. iii. 9. 4. 3. maryād, explained as maryādh in the Pada text, is of uncertain meaning. Max Müller (SBE. xxxii. 80) contends that it is a particle as it is classed with the Nipātas by the Vijasaneyī Prātiśākhya, n. 16. Fischel (Ved. Stud. i. 61 seq.) supports this view, but the sense, 'O men', is adequately defended by Oldenberg, Egysdu-Noten, i. 9, 10. Lanman (JAOS. x. 839) sees in it a voc. sing. with metrical lengthening. Kluge (KZ. xxv. 809) suggests that it be taken as a dative in ai, and so Aufrecht, Fastgruss an Bṛhattingk, p. 2. But the evidence is quite insufficient to support so strange a form. Roth (KZ. xxv. 602), to avoid the occurrence of a second person and a plural, suggests the reading ajāyata, but this is not necessary. The poet addresses his audience, and apostrophizes the god.

X. KSAgvamedha, iv. 10. There is no precisely parallel in either MS.

or VS., though of the individual Mantras some are cited found elsewhere. Cf. above, TS. vii. 1. 19. 1; KSAgvamedha, i. 10, MS. iii. 12. 8, 20; VS. xxii. 23; xxiii. 18, xxxii. 9. The Mantras accompany the Annahoma, and the rite bears the technical name of Saṁtatihoma; see TB. iii. 8. 18. 8; ĀpCS. xx. 12. 8. 14CS. xv. 29 recognizes seven Prāna libations.

⁴ For samitādhna cf. TS. vii. 5. 25. 1.

⁵ Cf. KSAgvamedha, v. 1. Neither MS. nor VS. has any parallel passage. The horse is addressed in these Mantras, and the ceremony is called the Pramuktihoma, see TB. iii. 8. 18. 4; ĀpCS. xx. 12. 4.

PRAPĀTHAKA V

The Gavām Ayana

vii. 5. 1. The² cows performed that Sattrā, being hornless, with the desire, 'May horns be born to us.' For ten months they performed it, and then horns were born, and they ceased (the rite), (saying), 'We have obtained (our desire).' Then those whose horns were not born ceased (the rite) after making up the year, (saying), 'We have obtained (our desire).' Both those which obtained horns and those which did not cease, (saying), 'We have obtained (our desire).' The year is the cows' Sattrā [1], and those who knowing thus perform the year (sacrifice) are prosperous. Therefore a hornless cow has pleasure³ during the two months of the rainy season, for that is won for it by the Sattrā. Therefore whatever is done in the house of one who performs for a year (a Sattrā), that is done completely, successfully, and adequately. Those who perform the year (Sattrā) are swimming on the ocean. He who does not see the further bank of the ocean cannot get out from it. The ocean is the year [2]. Its further banks are the two Atirātras. Those who knowing thus perform the year (Sattrā) reach the end without injury. The former Atirātra is thus (earth), the latter is yonder (sky); the former is mind, the latter speech, the former expiration, the latter inspiration; the former the commencement, the latter the end. The Atirātra is a Jyotistoma, of Vaiçvānara;⁴ verily they put light before them, to reveal the world of heaven. There is a fore-

¹ The various forms of vac are said by the comm. to refer to the movements of a ridden horse, while the other words apply to the horse's own movements. But this view can hardly be correct.

² Cf. K.S. xxxiii. 1, 2; P.B. iv. 1. 1-3. 7; A.B. iv. 17.

³ grīva prāpya is the version of the comm. of the mysterious pārtvā, who explains that in the months of the rains those cattle which have long horns have any amount of trouble, as, when they lay their heads on the ground, the weight of their horns causes them trouble, while the hornless ones have no trouble. Bhāsk. has prīta only. Böhtlingk (BKSGW. 1897, pp. 45-47) suggests partvā, from pard, 'pedens'. He had thought of partvā, 'having made complete' the months.

⁴ vaiçvānara dyatih according to the comm. The real sense is of course 'pertaining to Agni Vāyu' offering, accompanied by the Caturvīṇa Stoma.¹ The year has twenty-four half-months [3]; verily as they go on they find support in the year. There are three hundred and sixty Stotriyās;² so many are the nights of the year; verily they attain both forms of the year.

They perform (the rites of) the next days for rest, for safety. There are six-day periods. The year has six seasons; verily they find support in the seasons, the year. The Go and the Āyus (Stomas) are the Stomas in the middle; verily they place a pair in the middle of the year [4] for procreation. On either side there is the Jyotiṣṭoma.³ It is the releasing; verily the metres are released; verily also they go to the world of heaven with the six-day (rite) which has a Jyotiṣṭoma on either side. The theologians say, 'They sit;⁴ by what path do they go?' One should reply, 'By the path that leads to the gods. The path that leads to the gods is the metres, the Gayatri, Trisṭubh, and Jagatī. The Gayatri is the Jyotiṣṭoma, the Trisṭubh the Gostoma, the Jagatī the Āyustoma. In that there are these Stomas, so do they go by the path that leads to the gods [5]. There is used the same Sāman.⁵ The Sāman is the world of the gods; verily they leave not the world of the gods. There are used various verses. The verses are the world of man; verily they keep mounting one world of gods after another from the world of men. There is the Brahman's Sāman as the Abhivarta⁶ to win the world of heaven. There is the Abhijit (day)⁷ for the gaining of the world of heaven. There is the Viçvajit (day)⁸ for the gaining of all. Month by month they perform the Prsthas, month by month the Atigrāhyas are drawn; verily in each month they place strength, for the support of the months. They perform the Prsthas in the latter part of the month. Therefore it is on the top that the plants bear fruit.⁹

vii. 5. 2. The¹⁰ cows performed that Sattra, being hornless and desiring to obtain horns. For ten months they performed it, and then horns appeared.

¹ The Prāyanīya day is the day after the preceding Atirātra, and bears the name because it precedes the months of the sacrifice.

² i.e. 15 Stotras of 24 R̥es each = 360.

³ The first and last days of the six are Jyotiṣṭoma days.

⁴ This is not a case of the omission of the relative, as the comm. is inclined to take it: the sense is 'they sit (perform); by what do they go', but it shows the way in which cases like AA. ii. 6 (where see Keith's note) arise.

⁵ In each day there is the same Sāman in the Prsthā Stotra, the Brhat or Rathantara but are used for the one time.

⁶ The other versions have Abhivarta as the name of the Sāman. It is usually so styled and covers many varieties, being used with various verses; see Ind. Stud. iii. 203; below, TS. vii. 5. 7; p. 626, n. 3.

⁷ The day is that preceding the three Svara Sāman days just before the Viśvavart day.

⁹ This is probably the sense of विप्राग्नि.

¹⁰ Cf. KS. xxxiii. 1; PB. iv. 1. 2. The point of this chapter is merely that a Sattra may occupy ten or twelve months. Some cattle obtained horns by ten months' sacrifice, some by twelve, and some not at all, but still they won

of Shamashatri, based on this

They said, 'We have gained (them), let us cease (the rite), for we have attained the desire for the sake of which we began (the rite).' But others¹ said, either half of them or as many as might be the case, 'Let us perform (the rite) for these months, the eleventh and the twelfth,² and when we have made up the year, let us cease' [1]. In their case their horns grew in the twelfth month. Whether by faith, or by lack of faith—that is, those which have no horns—both indeed were prosperous, those which gained horns and those which won strength. He who ceases after ten months³ is prosperous, and he who ceases after twelve also, if he knows thus. They go by their feet, and he who goes by his foot attains (what he seeks). The Ayana is successful, and therefore is it productive of cows.

vii. 5. 3. They⁴ perform the Pr̄ṣṭhas in the first month, they perform them in the middle month, they perform them in the last month. They say, 'In the case of a cow which they milk thrice a day, she yields sparingly at the latter two milkings;⁵ how then can she be milked who is twelve times milked?' Having made up the year, they should perform the Pr̄ṣṭhas once in the last month; verily the sacrificers win the sacrifice and cattle. It is an ocean [1] without a near or a further shore that they enter upon who perform the year (rite). If they employ the Br̄hat and the Rathantara Sāmans, it would be as if they were to provide a boat in the middle of the ocean. Going continuously with the Br̄hat and the Rathantara they obtain support. The union⁶ is milked for all desires; thus the sacrificers obtain all desires.

vii. 5. 4. The⁷ Rcs are the same. The Rcs are the world of men; verily they leave not the world of man. There are different Sāmans; the Sāman is the world of the gods; verily they descend from the world of the gods and other chapters (see his Gavām Ayana), may be disregarded as wholly groundless.

¹ Weber conjectures for tai, tādī, i.e. removing the accent of the Sañhitā tād explained in the Pada as tī tāi (TPr. v. 18); it is perhaps so, but not necessarily; cf. Ind. Stud. xiii. 97. KS. has tādī, but the passage is unaccented.

² This usage is illustrated by Weber (Ind. Stud. xiii. 113, n. 2) from KS. xxxii. 8; ČB. iv. 5. 7. 2; xi. 6. 3. 5; xiv. 6. 9. 8; xii. 3. 2. 2; PB. vi. 2. 5, as well as from the parallel passages KS. xxxii. 1; PB. iv. 1. 2.

³ mātū must be equivalent to mākṣī read in the parallel KS., which probably should be restored in the text.

⁴ Cf. KS. xxxii. 5. The Pr̄ṣṭhyas can be performed on three months, or on the last in the only in which case the other months have the Abhiplava Sadaha not the Pr̄ṣṭhya Sadaha. Cf. ApCS. xxi. 16. 19, 20; BGS. xvi. 16.

⁵ Cf. Geldner, Ved. Stud. iii. 112. If the Pr̄ṣṭhya were performed each month, there would be twelve milkings.

⁶ sandhi means, according to the comment, a cow which yields milk even for a strange calf, or a cow, sakṛddohyā. There is also the reference to the Sandhi Stotra of which the Br̄hat and Rathantara form the parts. Cf. Eggeling, SBE. xli. xviii, xix, 12.

⁷ In the second half of the year the whole order of the sacrifice is reversed. The Jagati metre begins instead of the Gāyatri, the Āgrayana commences, instead of ending; the Rathantara yields to the Br̄hat, &c. See BGS. xvi. 17. 18.

to one world after another of men. They first use the Jagati, and the metres descend from the Jagati, the cups from the Āgrayana, the Pr̄shthas from the Bṛhat, the Stomas from the Trayastrīṅga. Therefore the younger descends before an elder. The Viçvakarman cup¹ is drawn; verily by it the sacrificers win all rites. The cup for Aditi [1] is drawn. Aditi is thus (earth), verily they rest on this (earth). The one and the other are drawn, for pairing, for propagation. Of old Prajāpati created offspring by means of the ten-night (rite), in that the ten-night rite is performed, the sacrificers create offspring. Udañka Čauhbāyanā² has declared the ten-night rite to be the prosperity of the Sattra, and the ten-night rite serves for the prosperity of the Sattra. Verily also whatever is done wrongly in the earlier days, this serves to atone for it.

vii. 5. 5. If³ two libations are offered simultaneously, then one should perform the early litany in the advanced part of the night. He who does it first wins the speech, the gods, and the metres (of the others). The strophe should contain the word 'strong (vr̄ṣan)':⁴ verily he takes Indra away from their morning pressing. Or rather they say, 'The strophe at the beginning of each pressing should be of this kind'; verily he takes Indra away from each of their pressings.

For entry, for rest, for the overcoming, of the Gāyatri, of the Trisṭubh, of the Jagati, of the Anusṭubh, of the Pañkti, hail!

Entry and rest are the metres: verily by the metres [1], he takes away their metres. One should recite the Sajaniya hymn;⁵ one should recite the Vihavya hymn;⁶ one should recite the Kayaçubhiya hymn of Agastya.⁷ This indeed is so much as that; verily he takes away so much as is theirs. If at the early pressing the bowl is broken, they should sing verses addressed to Viṣṇu and containing the epithet Cipiviṣṭa.⁸ Whatever in the ⁶ That is RV. x. 128. 1 in place of the hymn, RV. i. 89. 1 of the Vañgvadeva Castra.

⁷ In the place of RV. x. 78. 1 in the Marutavatiya Castra. Weber points out that as there is no other Kayaçubhiya than Ayastya, RV. i. 165, the addition of the name (so KS., PB.) is curious. The comm. however, admits as an alternative explanation the view that the hymns are not in place of those enumerated, but that each one should be recited in front of the ordinary Castra at the beginning of each set of Castra.

⁸ The epithet is of unknown sense; the comm. makes cipi = pūṣa; Geldner (Ved. Stud. iii. 81 n.) thinks of the Vāmana as meant (cf. MS. ii. 2. 13 yāt krodhīgham tāt cipiṇḍīm); Johansson (Söd/lyein: Indien, pp. 12 seq., followed by Charpentier, VOJ. xxv. 427) finds hīlga in cipi, a view supported vaguely by Nirukta, v. 7.

sacrifice is redundant, is redundant with regard to Viṣṇu Cipivista; verily Viṣṇu Cipivista places the redundant in the redundant. Verily having obtained the redundant by the redundant, they win it. If it is broken at the midday pressing, they should make the Sāman have the Vasatkāra as its finale. The support of the sacrifice is the Vasatkāra; verily they make the Sāman obtain support. If it breaks at the third pressing, the same thing (should be done).

vii. 5. 6. Having¹ made up the month with the six-day periods,² they leave out a day, for they behold the months by the six-day periods. Having made up the months with the half-months, they leave out a day, for they behold the months by the half-months. Having made up the months by the new moon night,³ they leave out a day, for they behold the months by the new moon night. Having made up the months by the full moon night, they leave out a day, for they behold the month by the full moon night. He who pours (liquid) into a full (vessel) wastes the liquid, he who pours out from a full (vessel) [1] places breath in it. In that, having made up the months with the full moon night, they leave out a day, they place breath in the year, and the performers of the Sattrā breathe along it. If they did not leave out a day, then the year would fall asunder, as falls asunder a skin bag tied tight,⁴ and they would be ruined. In that, having made up the months with the full moon night, they leave out a day, they place out-breathing in the year, and the performers of the Sattrā breathe out along it [2], and are not ruined. At the full moon (the Soma) of the gods is pressed. In that, having made up the months with the full moon night, they leave out a day, with the sacrifice to the gods they go to another sacrifice. They cleave asunder the sacrifice, in that (after performing it) as a series of six-day rites they leave out a day. They offer an animal for Prajāpati. Prajāpati is all the gods; verily with the gods do they offer the sacrifice. They leave the pressing [3], who leave out the day. The Sāmnāyya is the fourth pressing. Because there is the Sāmnāyya, they do not leave the pressing. They partake of it after uttering the invocation, for they have this then as their Soma drink. The deities who share in the pressings of those who leave out the day go to their places; they offer the sacrificial cakes in each of the pressings; verily they win the deities who share in the pressing from their several places.⁵ (They offer the cakes)

² i.e. five periods of six days each (Abhiplava Śadaha) or four Abhiplava Śadaha and a Prsthya Śadaha.

³ This section seems to contemplate the ending of the month either with the new moon or the full moon as alternatives, showing that neither the pūrgimānta nor the amānta reckonings was in exclusive use. Cf. Vedic Index, ii. 157, 516.

on eight potsherds at the early pressing, on eleven potsherds at the midday pressing, and on twelve potsherds at the third pressing; verily they obtain and win the meeres. They offer an oblation to the All-gods at the third pressing. The third pressing belongs to the All-gods; verily they leave not the third pressing.

² The new and the full moon are important not merely for the great sacrifices named from them, but also for the sacrifices which form minor portions of the Gavām Ayana and so cannot be left out, according to this view. For the importance of the new and full moon cf. TS. ii. 6. 6. 5.

³ The Vyāṣṭakā is defined by the comm. as the first day of the dark half of the month, for which he cites TB. i. 8. 10. 2, where the Paurnamāsi and the Vyāṣṭakā are contrasted; cf. ĀpGS. xviii. 22. 14. The epithet pratīkā he explains because the dark half of the month comes first, i.e. reckoning the month as ending with full moon, the day omitted being the first of the month (cf. Weber, Nazara, ii. 345, n. 4). Bhāsk. says it is the eighth day of the dark half, and this accords with asaka. The term is curious and the exact origin uncertain. esa in this passage is a case of the usual attraction to this pred. and māsa is gen. not nom. as the comm. takes it, according to the account; cf. Weber, Ind. Stud. xiii. 94, 95.

Mahāvrata or Viṣṇvant which has special rites appointed for it. The comm. offers another version of the text, reading the previous clause with the words addigam & śīyapa. Since the month would be mutilated by omitting such a day, they should not do so, but this gives no real force to addigam.

⁵ The comm. explains this passage to mean that if they wish to omit a specified day, they should omit a day such as coetus in the recurrent middle of the six-day period, not the Viṣṇvant or Mahāvrata. It is impossible to get any very satisfactory sense out of this. His idea may have been that if the day to be left out is a Jyotiś day (being the first of an Abhiplavā Śekhāra), then that day is left out in each case from the beginning of the next month, and so presumably if any other day were taken, the same day would be omitted. ĀpGN. xxi. 2-4 recognizes the omission of five Jyotiś days before the Viṣṇvant, and after it of four Trayastriṅga days (being the beginning of reversed Prathyas) and a Jyotiś in the twelfth or Śambhūrya month, which begins with two Abhiplavas reversed. The comm. thinks yādīgama is equivalent to yādīpa, but the latter in possible sense, 'on whatever day of recurrence (paripūḍita) in the middle.' KS. has the same words

Indra curds, to Indra with the Maruts a cake on eleven potsherds, to the All-gods a cake on twelve potsherds. The early pressing¹ belongs to Agni with the Vasus; in that they offer to Agni with the Vasus a cake on eight potsherds, they make the god share in it [2], and they approach the pressing with eight. In that the curds belong to Indra, they do not shut out Indra from a share. The midday pressing belongs to Indra with the Maruts. In that they offer to Indra with the Maruts a cake on eleven potsherds, they make the god share in it, and they approach the pressing with eleven [3]. The third pressing belongs to the All-gods with the Rbhūs. In that they offer to the All-gods a cake on twelve potsherds, they make the gods share in it, and they approach the pressing with twelve. They offer a beast to Prajāpati—Prajāpati is the sacrifice—that the sacrifice may not be abandoned. For six months (as they go) hence² the Brahman's Sāman should be the 'victorious'.³ The 'victorious' is the holy power (Brahman); verily they go winning the world of heaven by the holy power (Brahman); for the world of heaven is as it were opposite from hence. When they come thence the Brahman's Sāman for six months should be 'O Indra, bear us strength, as a father to his sons. Guide us, O thou that art much invoked, on our path. Living, may we attain the light.' The light is this world, the light is offspring; verily they come, gazing on this world by repeating the verse.

vii. 5. 8. When⁴ the gods had come to the end, their power and strength adds iz after sampadyata: it would be interesting to know how the editor construes it. Bhāskara's view seems to be: nādīdam iñcīyāt is 'where once any day is omitted, then they should not omit it for the second time'. Then if a day is omitted (as a Soma day), being the day in the middle of a set of six in the series (paryavartta vartamāndyām) on which the āgami falls, it is not to be omitted again, but the day to be omitted must be a different one, being the first in the next set of six. Possibly the sense is that the āgami is not to be adopted, but instead the first day of each month, after the first; ādīgam is so vague as to render no sense certain.

departed. They won them again by the Kroṣa (Sāman),¹ and that is why the Kroṣa has the name. In that they sing the Kroṣa at the end of the pit, they win power and strength at the end of the sacrifice. They sing the Sattra-syārdhi (Sāman)² at the end of the Āhavaniya; verily, making Agni a witness, they advance to prosperity. They sing the Prajāpater Hṛdaya³ within the shed; verily they win his favour. They sing the Ī-Clōka (Sāman)⁴ in front of the Sadas [1], the Anuclōka (Sāman) behind, verily fame is their portion at the end of the sacrifice. The Adhvaryu⁵ sings nine (verses). Nine are the breaths in man; verily he places breaths in the sacrificers. All of them are addressed to Indra; verily he places power (indriya) in the breaths. He sings without the Pratihāra.⁶ Therefore a man can contract all the other members (of the body) except the head, but the head not. The Rathantara (Sāman)⁷ has the Pañcadaça (Stoma); verily they win power. The Br̥hat⁸ has the Saptadaça [2], for the winning of food; verily also they are propagated by it. The Bhadra (Sāman)⁹ has the Ekavīṇa (Stoma) with Dvipada verses, for support. The wives (of the sacrificers) sing, for offspring, for propagation. Prajāpati created offspring; he desired, 'May I gain the kingship over them.' He obtained the kingship over them by the Rājana (Sāman),¹⁰ and that is why the Rājana has the name. In that there is the Rājana, the sacrificers obtain the kingship over offspring. It has the Pañcavīṇa (Stoma), to win Prajāpati [3]. They sing five (verses) standing; verily they win the world of the gods; five sitting; verily they win the world of men. These come to ten; the Virāj is of ten syllables, the Virāj is food; verily they win food by the Virāj. In five places they sing sitting down; there are five quarters; verily they rest on the quarters. They come up each before one verse has been sung;¹¹ verily they bear food from the quarters. The Udgātṛ sings these (verses); verily having borne food from the quarters [4] they place glory in themselves. Therefore one breath protects all the limbs. Therefore, just as a bird about to fly upwards raises its head aloft, so the sacrificers are highest among people. The Udgātṛ mounts a throne,¹²

So many indeed are the worlds, and in them in order they find support. Then the sacrificers make thus a bridge to mount,¹ for the gaining of the world of heaven.

vii. 5. 9. By² means of the Arkya (Sāman)³ Prajāpati created offspring in thousands. From⁴ them by means of the Ilāmāda (Sāman)⁵ he took away the food they had gathered. In that there is the Arkya, the sacrificers create offspring; in that there is the Ilāmāda, they take away from the offspring which has been created the food they have gathered. Therefore, in whatever year the Sattrā is performed, the offspring are hungry in that year, for they take their food and strength; in whatever year the Sattrā is imperfect, the offspring are not hungry in that year [1]; for they take not their food and strength. They raise a loud noise. As men being freed from bonds cry aloud, so the sacrificers freed from the bonds of the gods cry aloud, placing food and strength in themselves. The lute⁶ has a hundred strings. Man is of a hundred (years) of age,⁷ and of a hundredfold strength; verily they find support in age and strength. They run a race,⁸ to win what has not yet been won. They beat drums,⁹ the voice of the drum is the highest (form of) speech; verily they win the highest (form of) speech. They beat the earth-drum; verily they win that speech which has entered this (earth); verily also they conquer the earth. All (forms of) speech they utter, to gain all (forms of speech). Two strive on a dry hide, to gain strength. One reviles, another extols. He who reviles purifies them, he who extols places food in them after they are purified. They win by the first months what is done by the Rsis and by the gods; in that the Bhūtechad Sāmans¹⁰ are used, both are gained. Those who perform the year rite lose their virility. There vii. 5. 13. Who² yoketh thee?³ Let him yoke thee. Let Viṣṇu yoke thee, for the prosperity of this sacrifice, for my pre-eminence, for N.N.'s pleasure; for life thee, for expiration thee, for inspiration thee, for cross-breathing thee, for dawning thee, for wealth thee, for prosperity thee, for sound thee, for nourishing thee, for calling from afar thee, for falling⁴ thee (I yoke).

vii. 5. 14. To⁵ Agni, of the Gāyatrī (metre), the Trivṛt (Stoma), the Rathantara (Sāman), the spring (season), (offering is made) on eight potsherds. To Indra, of the Trīṣṭubh (metre), the Pañcadaça (Stoma), the Br̥hat (Sāman), the summer (season), (offering is made) on eleven potsherds. To the All-gods of the Jagatī (metre), the Saptadaça (Stoma), the Vairūpa (Sāman), the rainy (season), (offering is made) on twelve potsherds. To Mitra and Varuṇa, of the Anuṣṭubh (metre), the Ekaviñča (Stoma), the Vairāja (Sāman), the autumn (season), curds.⁶ To Br̥haspati, of the Pañkti (metre), the Trīṇava (Stoma), the Çākvara (Sāman), the winter (season), an oblation (is made). To Savitṛ, of the Atichandas (metre), the Trayastrīñča (Stoma), the Raivata (Sāman), the cool (season), (offering is made) on twelve potsherds. To Aditi, as Viṣṇu's consort, an oblation (is made). To Agni Vaiçvānara (offering is made) on twelve potsherds. To Anumati an oblation (is made). To Ka (offering is made) on one potsherd.

vii. 5. 15. Now⁷ for the fire which is produced on the fire-altar and for Soma, the king, the beast for Agni and Soma is the guest-offering. Again the fire which is piled up is cruel, and if one were not to cast upon the fire which has been piled up these oblations, the cruel fire would spring

¹ dīman is as usual doubtful in sense, but the 'trunk' is the natural meaning as part of the body and contrasted with the āṅgas.

² This chapter contains the Mantras accompanying the placing of the Paridhis. Cf. KSAçvamedha, v. 9; TB. iii. 8. 18. 4; ApGS. xx. 9. 4; BGS. xv. 17.

³ The comm. takes Ka as Prajāpati, and makes the three sentences apply to the three Paridhis. But clearly one Mantra alone is t and ApGS. i. 2 to take the passage thus.

⁴ sartaduhkhunivṛtti according to the comm.
⁵ Cf. KSAçvamedha, v. 10, MS. iii. 15. 10, VS. xxix. 60. For the Brāhmaṇa see TS. vii. 5. 15; CB. ix. 4. 3. 11; the verses accompany a set of ten oblations to the various deities; see ApGS. xx. 9. 2. Cf also KB. xix. 5; GGS. ix. 27. 1.

⁷ The ten oblations in chapter 14 are here explained, and justified.

up in wrath, and injure the offspring and cattle of the sacrificer. In that he casts the oblations on the fire which has been piled up, he appeases it with its own portion, and the cruel fire [1] does not spring up in wrath and injure his offspring and cattle. There are ten oblations. Nine are the breaths in man, and the navel is the tenth; verily he places breaths in the sacrificer. Again the Virāj is of ten syllables; the Virāj is food; verily he finds support in the Virāj as food. 'It must be piled with the seasons, the metres, the Stomas, and the Pr̄thas', they say. In that he casts these oblations, he piles it with the seasons, the metres, the Stomas, and the Pr̄thas. 'The quarters can be won by one who has pressed the Soma', they say [2]. In that he casts these oblations, (it is) for the winning of the quarters.¹ The gods made Indra sacrifice with it, and therefore is it Indra's pressing; men made Manu sacrifice with it, and therefore is it Manu's pressing. As Indra among the gods, as Manu among men, becomes he who knowing thus sacrifices with this sacrifice. The Puronavākyās contain the word 'quarter',² for the conquest of the quarters.

vii. 5. 16. a Who³ is the sole lord of the world,

Which breatheth and waketh, through his greatness,

Who is the lord of biped and of quadruped here,

Who is the god whom we are to worship with oblation?⁴

b Thou art taken with a foundation. I take thee dear to Prajāpati. Of thee the sky is the greatness, the Nakṣatras the form, the sun the splendour; to his greatness, to Prajāpati, thee (I offer). Hail!

vii. 5. 17. a He⁵ who is the giver of soul, the giver of strength,

On whose instruction all, on whose (instruction) the gods depend.

Whose shadow is immortality, whose shadow is death;

Who is the god whom we are to worship with oblation?⁶

b Thou art taken with a foundation. I take thee dear to Prajāpati. Of thee the earth is the greatness, the plants and trees the form, the fire the splendour; to his greatness, to Prajāpati, thee (I offer). Hail!

² See above, TS. iv. 4. 12.

³ This and the following chapter are the so-called Mahimākhyāgraha Mantras. Cf. KSAcavamedha, v. 18; MS. iii. 12. 17; VS. xxiii. 3, and see TB. iii. 8. 18. 5; 9, 10; GR. xiii. 5. 3. 7; ApYS. xx. 12. 6; 18. 2; KGR. xx. 5. 2; BG. iv. 51.

⁴ This is in RV. x. 131. 3 and in several often elsewhere with variants, for which see Whitney's notes on AV. iv. 2. 1 and 2, where references are given to the discussion of the hymn, and see above, TS. iv. 1. 8.

⁵ This is the second Mahiman Grāha Mantra. It is not specially rubricated in the CB. or KGS. but it is mentioned with the first in the passages of the TB. and ApGS. and BG. above cited.

⁶ For the verse see RV. x. 131. 2; AV. iv. 2. 1; VK. xxv. 13; BG. ii. 12. 23.

5. 18. In¹ the priesthood may a Brahmana be born of spiritual glory. In this kingdom may a prince be born, an archer, a hero, and a great car-fighter; a milk cow; a draught ox; a swift racer; a prolific² woman; a victorious warrior; a youth fit for the assembly.³ To this sacrifice be a hero born. May Parjanya rain for us whosoever we desire. May our plants ripen with fruit. May union and peace⁴ be ours.

5. 19. a The⁵ steed hath come to the earth; the strong steed hath made Agni his yoke-fellow.

The steed hath come to the atmosphere; the strong steed hath made Vayu his yoke-fellow.

The steed hath come to the sky; the strong steed hath made Surya his yoke-fellow.

b Agni is thy yoke-fellow, O steed; I grasp thee; bear me prosperously. —

Vayu is thy yoke-fellow, O steed; I grasp thee; bear me prosperously [1].

The Aditya is thy yoke-fellow, O steed; I grasp thee; bear me prosperously.

Thou art the supporter of expiration; support my expiration.

Thou art the supporter of cross-breathing; support my cross-breathing.

Thou art the supporter of inspiration; support my inspiration.

Thou art the eye; place the eye in me.

Thou art the ear; place the ear in me.

Thou art life; place life in me.

¹ KSAçvamedha, v. 14; MS., iii. 12. 6; VS. xxii. 22, which all agree very closely. The Mantras are the Annahoma Mantras, and are said after the Ukhā, or fire-pen, has received the fire-sticks (samīdh); see ApGS. xx. 8. 13; 12. 7; KGS. xx. 4. 11; MQS. ix. 2. 2. BGS. xv. 37 places them as Brahmayarcasini before the Sviñkrt offering of the Paçupurodāça. For the Brahmana explanations see TB. iii. 8. 13. 1-8; QB. xiii. 1. 9. 1-9.

or the sense of piṇḍādhī see Fischel, Ved. Stud. ii. 202 seq.; Geldner, ibid. 271. Both TB. and QB. render it as 'beautiful', which is too wide, while 'intelligent' is out of place.

dhēya is as usual of doubtful sense. Eggeling, SBE. xliv. 295, prefers 'a blitheful youth', and this may be the

Cf. Vedic Index, II. 426, 427

² 'Security of possession' is Eggeling's version, which is quite possible, and which suits best the technical grammar (see Wackernagel, Allind. Gramm. ii. i. 163 seq.), but the sense may well be peace (kṣema) consisting in union, not technically a Dvandva at all. Cf., however, Keith, JRAS. 1912, pp. 1101, 1102.

³ Cf. KSAçvamedha, v. 15. The horse is addressed in these Mantras, and they are explained in TB. iii. 9. 4. 8, which is rubricated in ApGS. xx. 16. 15; 17. 1; 21. 6 for the going to the water, the addressing of the horse (as here), and the offering of the horse and the piṇḍa and gomya respectively; cf. BGS. xv. 5, 24 (washing of horse), 34 (throwing of victims on fire with mat). Bhāskarā's comma is missing from here to the end.

vii. 5. 20. May the seed be living, Parjanya rain,² the corn be ripened,³ the plants rich in leaves, this (earth) easy to walk on, the fire easy of approach, the atmosphere easy to see through, the wind⁴ purifying, the sky easy of access, he that burns yonder kindly, the day and night as of old, the half-months of fifteen days, the months of thirty days, the seasons in due order, and the year auspicious.

vii. 5. 21. To⁵ Agni (offering is made) on eight potsherds; to Soma an oblation; to Savitṛ (offering) on eight potsherds; to Pūṣān an oblation; to Rudra an oblation; to Agni Vaiśvānara (offering) on eight potsherds, if he should not go to the wild beast's lair; to Agni, saviour from distress, (offering is made) on eight potsherds; to Surya milk (is offered); Vāyu receives a share in the butter offering.

vii. 5. 22. To⁶ Agni, saviour from distress, (offering is made) on eight potsherds; to Indra, saviour from distress, on eleven potsherds; to Mitra and Varuna, saviours from sin, a milk offering; to Vāyu⁷ and Savitṛ, saviours from sin,⁸ an oblation; to the Aśvins, saviours from sin, grain, to the Maruts, saviours from evil, on seven potsherds; to the All-gods, saviours from evil, on twelve potsherds, to Anumati an oblation; to Agni, ¹ Cf. KSAyamedha, v. 17. It is mentioned in TB. iii. 8. 18. 5, and the ĀpQS. xx. 8. 13; 12. 8, rubricates the Mantras as used after chapter 18 as Annahomamantras; cf. BCS. xv. 26.

³ पक्ति is a case of the vagueness of the nominal formation of a neuter from a य base (Macdonell, op. cit. p. 234). KS. has the ludicrous variant पक्त्वा, which is nonsense, and shows that KS. is merely here dependent on TS. which it has in the tradition corrupted.

⁴ Here the reference cannot be to Soma, and the wind must be alluded to.

⁵ Cf. KSAyamedha, v. 16. The ritual is explained in TB. iii. 9. 17. 1-5, and set out in ĀpQS. xx. 12. 7 seq. After the eleventh month the horse is tied up in a pen of Aśvattha wood, and fed on gauṣaṇa. The offerings described here are intended in case of several contingencies. The first three are to be made if the horse is affected by upacīpa 'over-heating' The fourth if it is lame. The fifth if the great deity (i.e. Rudra) is hostilely minded (akīmav) towards the horse. The sixth for the cause given in the text, which the comment. on TS. and on TB. explains as simply meaning, 'if the horse will not go to its stable.' The seventh is used if the horse thinks of a mare, and so are the eighth and ninth. Ap. proceeds to give a long series of other Prāyaścittas. BCS. xv. 8 varies the use, but especially treats mṛgākharī as the place of the offering, which is perfectly possible.

⁶ Cf. KSAyamedha, v. 19, and see above TS. iv. 7. 15. 1-7 for the Mantras which form the Yajikas and the Puronuyikyas of the ten oblations here mentioned, which are known as the Mṛgāśrāstis; see TB. iii. 9. 16. 4 and ĀpQS. xx. 23. 2-4. BCS. xv. 37 calls them the eight dāsvarādhikā havīḥ, after the offering of the cakes of the animal sacrifice.

⁷ वृद्याश्चित्रि is an extraordinary form; cf. Wackernagel, Altind. Gram. II. i. 162, Weber, Ind. Stud. xiii. 102.

⁸ द्योमि here is practically identical with snomik used below, and rendered 'evil' for the sake of īcavānara on twelve potsherds; to heaven and earth, saviours from evil, on two potsherds.

5. 23. To¹ Agni he made obeisance;² to the earth he made obeisance; as Agni with the earth made harmony, so for me may favourable harmonies be made.

To Vāyu he made obeisance, to the atmosphere he made obeisance; as Vāyu with the atmosphere (made harmony, so &c.).

To Sūrya he made obeisance, to the sky he made obeisance; as Sūrya with the sky (made harmony, so &c.).

To the moon he made obeisance, to the Nakṣatras he made obeisance; as the moon with the Nakṣatras (made harmony, so &c.).

To Varuṇa he made obeisance, to the waters he made obeisance [1]; as Varuṇa with the waters (made harmony, so &c.).

To the Sāman he made obeisance, to the R̥c he made obeisance; as the Sāman with the R̥c (made harmony, so &c.).

To the Brahman (caste) he made obeisance, to the Kṣatriya (caste) he made obeisance; as the Brahman with the Kṣatriya (made harmony, so &c.).

To the king he made obeisance, to the people he made obeisance; as the king with the people (made harmony, so &c.).

To the chariot he made obeisance, to the horses he made obeisance; as the chariot with the horses (made harmony, so &c.).

To Prajāpati he made obeisance, to creatures he made obeisance, as Prajāpati with creatures made harmony, so for me may favourable harmonies be made.

5. 24. a Thine³ ancient paths, O Savitṛ,

That are extended dustless through the atmosphere,

f. KSAçvamedha, v. 20. These Mantras accompany the Saṁnatihomas, or obeisance offerings, to which others are added in the TB. iii. 6. 18. 5 and ĀpCS. xx. 12. 8. BGS. xv. 37 places them, ten in number, before the pāñu Svītakṛt offering. Cf. Bloomfield, Atharvaveda, p. 73.

he word savīnam does not permit here of any really adequate rendering. The sense is according to the comm., in the cases where the instr. is used, 'accompanied by Agni, &c., benefited the sacrificer.' But this is hardly the case: the idea is rather of the agreement or harmony between the various things mentioned, such harmony being desired by the utterer of the ————— The change in the sense produced by the change in case from dat. to instr. can hardly be reproduced in English without a change of expression from 'obeisance' to 'harmony'. In the parallel, AV. iv. 39, there is no such alteration of the construction and sense.

³ Cf. KSAçvamedha, i. 1. These words are said by the sacrificer at the bidding of the Adhvaryu, see TB. iii. 9. 4. 8; ĀpCS. xx. 16. 15. Ib: d. xx. 2. 2 the first Mantra is used when entering the hall (prāgṛvīḍa) by the eastern or front door. The second Mantra is rubricated in ĀpCS. xx. 2. 1 for reverence to the sun. In BGS. xv. 2 he enters the hall with a and adores the ————— a with a.

With these to-day, with thy paths easy to travel,
Guard us, and, O God, speak for us.¹

5 Reverence to Agni, dweller on earth, maker of room;² grant room to this thy sacrificer. Reverence to Vāyu, dweller in the atmosphere, maker of room;³ grant room to this thy sacrificer. Reverence to Surya, dweller in the sky, maker of room;⁴ grant room to this thy sacrificer.

vii. 5. 25. He⁵ who knows the head of the sacrificial horse becomes possessed of a head and fit for sacrifice. The head of the sacrificial horse is the dawn, the eye the sun, the breath the wind, the ear the moon, the feet the quarters, the ribs the intermediate quarters, the winking the day and night, the joints the half-months, the joinings⁶ the months, the limbs the seasons, the trunk the year, the hair the rays (of the sun), the form the Nakṣatras, the bones the stars, the flesh the mist, the hair the plants, the tail hairs⁷ the trees, the mouth Agni, the open (mouth) Vaigvānara⁸ [1], the belly the sea, the anus the atmosphere, the testicles the sky and the earth, the membrum virile the pressing-stone, the seed the Soma. When it chews,⁹ there is lightning; when it moves about, there is thundering; when it makes water, there is rain; its speech is speech. The Mahinan (cup) indeed is born before the birth of the horse as the day;¹⁰ The Mahiman (cup) is born after it as the night. These ¹ This is BV. i. 25. 11; VS. xxiv. 27; KSAyamedha, i. 1. But in BV. panikṣī is read, and for vitalī, svayātī, and dava follows brūti, while VS. agrees with BV. except in the first point, and KS. agrees with TS. except in having dava after brūti.

³ Identical in KS.; in CU. II. 24. 9 with lokakṣītī which contradicts antrikṣītī, in MU. with lokasmṛti.

⁴ In KS., nāma adityāya; in MU., adityāya and lokasmṛti. In CU. II. 24. 14: nāma adityabhyāḥ or vivebhāya; or devabhyo dīkṣitidhyo lokakṣīdhyo.

are given in TB. III. 9. 23, which is a quasi-supplement to the TS.

⁶ sambhīrṇī has probably no very technical sense.

⁷ The tail are the long hairs of the tail, and so the trees, the short body hairs (lombī) are the plants.

⁹ vṛymbhī, ‘yawns’, is the CB. and BAU. version.

¹⁰ The Mahinan cups are two used at the Ayvamedha; cf. CB. xiii. 9. 11. 1; 5. 2. 23; ApVS. xx. 12. 8; 13. 2; 19. 2. 6; 20. 3. The CB. and BAU. differ in expression, and Böhtlingk seems correctly to take the meaning of the BAU. to be that both cups are born after the horse, though Eggeling (SBE. xlvi. 401) takes the sense of CB. to be as in the TS., where the sense is clearly that the first māṇī—is born before the horse. For the see TB. vii. 5. 16 and 17.

two Mahiman (cups) surround on either side the horse. As Haya (steed) it carried the gods, as Arvan (courser) the Asuras, as Vājin (racer) the Gandharvas, as Aṣva (horse) men. The birthplace of the horse, indeed, is the sea, its kindred¹ is the sea.²

¹ Curiously enough the essential bāndhu (found in ĀB. and BAU. and clearly to be read) is lost in all text MSS. used by Weber and probably by the other editors. It is found, however, in the comm. and is necessary to make up the twelve words after avahat postulated by the text MSS. and is also found in the comm. on TPr. xviii. 1, where see Whitney's note (JAOS. ix. 854, 855). Cf. Weber, Ind. Stud. xiii. 97–99 (the Kāshaka numbers he refers to in the note are cases where the number of lines of the MSS. are given, the glokasamkhya of the scribes). The word occurs indeed in the edition of the text with Bhāskara's commentary, but it admittedly here merely follows Śāyana and has no independent value. Cf. above, p. xxxvi.

² For the sea cf. TS. vii. 5. 1. 2; AA. ii. 2. 3 with Keith's note.
